OFFICIAL PAPER OF ADAMS CO.

HISTORY

REPEATING ITSELF

In his speech before the Marquette Club of Chicago, Saturday night, Senator Albert B. Cummins of Iowa, made a powerful arraignment of the Republican congressional leaders as traitors to the Republican party. Answering the attempt of Speaker Cannon to read the tariff "insurgents" out of the party, he showed by quotation from the Republican platform that it was not the so-called insurgents, but Cannon, Payne and Aldrich that were guilty of treason to Republican pledges. His speech recalls the parliamentary debates in England just previous to the Revolutionary war, when William Pitt declared that the colonists were maintaining the ancient rights of Englishmen which the British ministry was attempting to overthrow, and declared that, were he an American as he was an Englishman, he "would never submit—never! never! never!"

It recalls also the events just preceding the Civil war, when Buchanan's administration, repudiating the principles of the Democracy of Jefferson and Jackson, became simply the servile tool of the southern oligarchy; and patriotic Democrats arose in their might and majesty all over the land, under the leadership of such "insurgents" as Stephen A. Douglas of Illinois, David C. Broderick of California, Stewart of Michigan, Payne and Pugh of Ohio, and Fortney, Hickman and Dougherty of Pennsylvania.

This latter example is remarkably like the present situation. The slaveholding oligarchy, maddened by lust of power and drunk with success, had such an influence with both Whig and Democratic leaders that it was able to control the congressional policy of both parties, so far as its interests were concerned. It enacted compromises and fugitive slave laws sneeringly regardless of the growing moral sense of the people. The result was the destruction of the Whig party and a popular upheaval and political reorganization which ended the slave power forever.

In the present instance the oligarchy is of monopoly. It is as drunken with greed as were the southerners with power. It is as reckless of awakening moral sense as were they. Through abhorrent influences it controls a sufficient number of congressmen to enact legislation in its interest, cynically unmindful of party pledges and mercilessly regardless of the interests of the people. As the "insurgents" of Buchanan's time were soon recognized as patriotic leaders, so will the "insurgents" against monopolistic and plutocratic rule be regarded as champions of the rights of the people and leaders in a movement that is sure to triumph, if there be virtue left in the republic. The Times believes such virtue exists, and that it will manifest its power when the people are aroused to the true issues, as the late elections demonstrated in many places.—South Bend Times.

THE TIME

TO JUSTIFY THEIR EXISTENCE

In an address on "Democratic Day" at the Texas state fair Governor Harmon of Ohio declared that if there ever was a time for the Democratic party to justify its existence that time is now. Speaking of the Payne-Aldrich-Cannon tariff law he said that for many years the Republican party and through it the national government, have been controlled by interests which thrive by the artful use of the taxing power as a means of private gain. And then he added:

"One thing has been gained and will not be lost. The system of legislation for private interest of for public advantage stands at last stripped naked before the eyes of the people. They can no longer be deceived about its nature, design and operation."

Let us hope that it is true that the people "can no longer be deceived" about the nature of the present and other Republican tariffs. Mr. Taft thinks they can, and he is doing his part by traveling over the country (at public expense) trying to make the people believe that the latest tariff grab is a good thing for them. The Democratic party has stood firm from the beginning, as Governor Harmon also said, against granting by law any special favors and advantages whatever. And when the people wake up to that fact the Republican party will go out of business.

WE HAVE

A GREAT OPPORTUNITY

There is no doubt that the Democrats have the best opportunity in many years to secure control of the next national house and to enlarge their representation in the senate. At the last session of congress the fact was demonstrated that no tariff reform of any sort can come from the Republican party. Mr. Taft's open alliance with the Aldrich-Cannon combination of special-favor seekers, and his attack upon the few Republican senators who refused to follow Aldrich and Cannon, is further evidence that the game of graft and grab is still the favorite industry of the Republican party under its present leadership. Practically all of the independent papers of the country, whether they have Democratic or Republican leanings, have denounced the Payne-Aldrich-Cannon tariff law and are now engaged in condemning President Taft for praising that measure and for defending the men who made the Republicans in congress swallow it. The country can see more clearly now than ever before that the only hope of tariff reform lies in the Democratic party. If the people vote as they think there will be no doubt about the Democrats controlling the next house.

The office expenses of the governor's office for nine months under Mr. Marshall were only $31 more than Mr. Hanly spent during his last three months. Governor Marshall is practicing what he preached.

Why any Republican tariff reformer should hang onto the Republican party until he is kicked out by President Taft or anybody else, passes understanding. Most of them, it can be said to their credit, are going out without waiting to be kicked.

My, what a lot of good city administrations there are going to be in Indiana after the first of January, 1910! Every mayor-elect is promising to give his people an administration the like of which they never experienced. A year later the sound of the chains of hammers will be heard in many cities.—Columbia City Post.

Decatur Democrats got in a wrangle among themselves and elected a republican mayor. Those cases generally turn out that neither side of the controversy is satisfied in the end and wish they had pulled together for the election of the ticket. If a Democratic newspaper should stop around, bolting the ticket so promiscuously as some of these alleged party leaders, the editor would be driven out of the county.—Bluffton Banner.

The steel trust and the so-called independent steel men have entered into a "gentlemen's agreement" to pick the pockets of the American people. The Aldrich-Cannon-Taft tariff law prevents outside interference and this "gentlemen's agreement" heads off home competition. And the same thing is true in all other lines controlled by the big trusts and big interests. Is it any wonder that the cost of living is mounting higher all the time and that the common people are being reduced to a condition of serfdom?

The New York Tribune, the leading thick-and-thin Republican paper of the country, places Governor Marshall in the eligible list for the next Democratic presidential nomination, but it says that "so far he has shown little control of the national organization." There is no reason why Governor Marshall should "make a contest" for the control of the national organization. The Democratic party does not allow its national organization to nominate its candidates. The business of the organization is to help elect them after they have been chosen. If the Democrats of the country want Governor Marshall—and it seems reasonably certain that they will—they will just reach out and take him. And if they nominate him he will be elected. The Democratic party and the country sustained a great loss in the death of Governor Johnson of Minnesota but the party and the country are not hopeless so long as men like Thomas R. Marshall of Indiana are in view.

President Taft has announced that he will ask congress at its next session to permit the secretary of the Interior to issue $10,000,000 of bonds to complete the irrigation projects now under way. It is said that it will take $100,000,000 to complete the work now started, but doubtless Mr. Taft thinks it will not do, at this time, in view of his statement about cutting down expenses, to tell the public about it. But according to a Washington dispatch there is going to be a big demand for other bond issues. The dispatch says: "The request for an irrigation bond issue of $10,000,000 or more is not the only request of this sort that will be made of congress at the coming session. The rivers and harbors congress is coming along with more than a request—a demand—for a bond issue of $50,000,000 a year for river and harbor improvements. Another organization which is putting out a propaganda in favor of the reclamation of the swamp lands of the country also intends to ask for a bond issue. If the government proposes to raise money in that way for the reclamation of swamps or for the improvement of rivers and harbors, these new demands on the treasury lead observers here to wonder what has become of that much talked of movement to reduce government expenses."

POLITICS

IN INDIANA

The results of the city elections held in the state last week show that the general trend of public confidence is toward the Democratic party. With two or three exceptions—due to strictly local causes—the Democrats carried every city that they had any reason to expect they could carry. In addition they elected their tickets in many important cities where the Republicans usually have overwhelming majorities, besides sweeping the platter clean in many others where the Republicans have been in power for years. The proportion of victories for the two parties is about two for the Democrats to one for the Republicans.

The Republican politicians are claiming that the result of the city election in Indianapolis is a great victory for their party and that its effects will be helpful to them in the next state campaign. In view of the facts this claim is nonsense. On the day before the voting the chairman of the Republican city committee made this statement over his own signature as to what the Republican poll showed: "The city is Republican by more than five thousand, and the only possible danger of defeat is by Republicans who stay at home." The Republican ticket had the support of all the daily newspapers (all of them being Republican or near-Republican) yet Shank, the Republican candidate for mayor, pulled through by a plurality of only sixteen hundred. It doesn't take much to tickle the Republican politicians' ha' to death these days.

According to an Indianapolis letter in the Cincinnati Enquirer, Fyed A. Sims, acting chairman of the Republican state committee, "insists that the only municipal contest of state-wide significance was in Indianapolis, and that the victory of Shank has clarified the atmosphere for the Republicans from one end of Indiana to the other." That Shank "victory" was truly a wonderful thing. The Republicans admit that they have more than 5,000 majority in Indianapolis, and yet Shank squeaked through by only 1,600, with the support of the Star, News and Sun, all Republican or near-Republican papers, to say nothing of the "help" given by the Anti-Saloon League and the political preachers.

The Republican papers of the state are trying to make themselves believe that National Committeeman Taggart has been "eliminated" from politics by the election at Indianapolis. Nothing would tickle the Republican papers and politicians as much as to see Mr. Taggart "eliminated" from politics. But nothing of the sort has happened. Mr. Taggart will be found working shoulder to shoulder with all the other Democrats in the next campaign as usual. As the Republicans admit a loss of at least 3,500 in Indianapolis it looks like the elimination is a thing they should worry about.
