

The democrats of Adams county should arrange for the congressional convention at Muncie on next Thursday. A large delegation should attend and give Congressman Adair that reception to which he is entitled. Arrangements will be perfected for a good time. The first session of the convention will be at half past ten o'clock, at which time the temporary organization will be made, the convention proper occurring at 1 o'clock. Those going from this county can return by way of Portland, getting home at 5 in the evening, or by Bluffton, getting home at 7. County Chairman Erwin desires us to say that all delegates are expected to attend or send a proxy, so that all townships in the county will be represented. In addition the people generally are invited and as a matter of fact Adams county should be well represented. Congressman Adair will be present and make his first speech of the campaign. This is the third time he will have been nominated as the democracy's candidate for congress in this district and it is a fact, too, that his worth and popularity was never at a higher tide. He intends to make a vigorous campaign and will speak in all parts of the district at some time prior to the election.

DR. VIZZARD SAW THE FIGHT.

Dr. J. W. Vizzard, who left here Friday of last week for a trip through the west, writes us under date of July 5th, from Reno, Nevada, as follows: "Saw fight; Jeff clearly outclassed. If I had the power there would not be any more prize fighting. That man Johnson is a wonder. Am going to night to Lakewood, Oregon. So long. J. W. Vizzard."

Geneva, Ind., July 9—(Special to Daily Democrat)—Eugene Kneuss, oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Kneuss, living four and one-half miles east and north of this place, was instantly killed at about 11 o'clock Friday morning. He was aiding his father in the hay field, driving a tedder, when the team of horses became frightened and ran away, the lad being too light to hold them. They dashed through a fence and the boy was thrown headlong against a tree, fracturing his skull and causing instant death. The tedder also ran over him. The parents, one brother and three sisters survive. The funeral services will be held Sunday morning at 9 o'clock from the Mennonite church at Berne.

Leon Runyon and Herman Pyle, two lads aged about eighteen, while having a friendly scuffle on the sidewalk on Line street last evening, fell, with Pyle underneath. He struck the back of his head with such force that he was unconscious for half an hour and Drs. Price and Maddox, who worked with him constantly, had grave fears of his recovery. He is able to be about this morning, however, with nothing worse than a sore head.

Should some great angel say to me tomorrow:

"Thou must tread thy pathway from the start."

But God will give, in pity for thy sorrow,

Some one dear wish, the nearest to thy heart!"

This were my wish: From my life's dim beginning

Let be what has been; wisdom planned the whole

My want, my woe, my sorrow and my sinning—

All, all were needed lessons for my soul.

The picnic and Children's Day exercises of the Zion's Lutheran church of this city, held Sunday afternoon at the Wissmeyer grove near St. John's, was one of the most delightful of several years, the cooling showers of the previous day having contributed to making the day ideal in regard to weather. The children's part in the program, under the direction of the Rev. Wehmeyer, was carried out well and proved a delightful feature of the day. Amusements of all kinds contributed to the good time, and after the picnic the attendants were taken to the homes of the members of the St. John's congregation, where they were royally entertained.

A RARE COIN.

It is Called a "Misstrike" and is Very Seldom Seen.

"See this penny I got today at the post office," said the cashier. "There aren't five other pennies like it in the United States."

He handed out a cent piece with the die impression half off the face of the coin and with a big half moon of blank metal showing on one side.

"They call it a misstrike," he continued. "Perhaps once in 10,000,000 times the two little notched dingers on the minting machines that grip the blank disk and draw it forward to the die fall to spring away. In this case the left hand finger stuck and pushed the coin halfway over the die. That is how the impression is only half on the disk."

"You can see the raised edge on the blank portion of the metal," the cashier went on as he took up his pen. "It isn't everybody knows that each coin goes under the dies twice. The first time it is struck with a blank, dome shaped set of dies to put an edge on the disk. Then it gets the regular die with the familiar head on it."

"What's it worth? Oh, I'll say probably $25 or so. I see it's been in circulation for nine years. It's a wonder some coin collector hasn't nabbed it. I'm going to keep it as a rarity."—New York Times.

SENSE OF HEARING.

Sound Waves and the Way They Act Upon the Ears.

The detection of the direction of a sound by the sense of hearing is like the rapid focusing of the eye on objects at different distances, one of those instinctive operations which are continually done without any conscious method.

Sound waves traverse the air as ripples stir the water, and the ear by experience acquires some slight power of detecting the direction in one case, as the eye does with far greater accuracy in the other. Usually we unconsciously receive assistance from other senses as well. Often we fail to locate at once some hidden source of sound, such as a singing bird, and then our instinctive ingenuity displays itself.

The intensity of sound is, of course, by no means so great behind a screen as in front of it, and every one carries with him the screen of his own head, which may prevent a particular sound from being heard so well by one ear as by the other. If, then, the head is turned until this inequality disappears and both ears hear equally well we know that we must be directly facing or turned from the source of sound, and our previous rough idea of its whereabouts generally prompts us to face it.

Wind and Temper.

There is a closer connection between wind and temper than at first sight appears. A coldish wind has a bracing effect and, on the whole, is beneficial. In countries where hot winds occur periodically, on the other hand, these are regarded as a nuisance, if not a curse. Every one almost gets cross, weary and done up and has a headache daily. In Egypt the season when crimes are commonest is when the hot khamsin blows. Nearly always during a severe sirocco the Arabs in Algeria were restless, if they did not attempt an actual rising. The soiho, which now and then rushes across the Mediterranean in fiery blasts from Africa, upsets every one in Spain and is the worst wind in that country.

And even in the Pearl of the Antilles the fierce hot wind is such a pest that it is recorded of a family living in Havana that they made it a rule in the household to preserve absolute silence until the wind disappeared. It was the only plan they could think of to avoid family quarrels.

Profane History.

"Pop!"

"Well, what is it now? If it's foolish question No. 9,697 I'll spank you and put you to bed."

"No, pop; I just want to know what is profane history."

"Profane history, eh? Well—it's just a term to distinguish it from sacred history."

"But why is it called profane, pop?"

"How the—that is, how do I know? I suppose it—say, you know when little George Washington cut down his father's pet cherry tree?"

"Yes, pop."

"Well, what little George's father said to little George is profane history. I should think you could get your lessons without bothering me with your fool questions."—New York Times.

Encouraging.

A Philadelphia clergyman tells of an incident in connection with his first visit to a town in Pennsylvania, where he expected to be called as pastor.

While tramping along a dusty road he was so fortunate as to encounter a man in a wagon who gave him a lift. During the conversation that ensued between the two the divine chanced to ask:

"Do the folks hereabout enjoy religion?"

"I don't know exactly," replied his companion, "but I suppose that then that has it enjoys it."

QUEER INDIAN BELIEFS.

The Five Worlds of the Bella Coola Sun Worshippers.

There is an odd feature in the theology of the small Indian tribe of the Bella Coola which inhabit British Columbia in about latitude 52. They believe that there are five worlds, one above the other, and the middle one is our own world, the earth. Above it are two heavens, and under it are two underworlds. In the upper heaven is the supreme deity, who is a woman, and she doesn't meddle much with the affairs in the second world below her. The seventh is the center of the lower heaven, and here is the house of the gods, in which live the sun and the rest of the deities.

Our own earth is believed to be an island swimming in the ocean. The first underworld from the earth is inhabited by ghosts, who can return, when they wish, to heaven, from which place they may be sent down to our earth. If then they misbehave again they are cast into the lower of the underworlds and from this bourn no ghostly traveler head on it.

The Bella Coola are sun worshippers, for Sun, the sun, the master of the house of gods, who is called the father and the sacred one, is the only deity to whom the tribe pray. Each family of the Bella Coola has its own traditions and its own form of the current traditions, so that in the mythology of the tribe there are countless contradictions. When any one not a member of a clan tries to tell a tradition which does not belong to his clan it is like a white man trying to tell another's joke—he is considered as appropriating the property right which does not belong to him.

SMOKELESS POWDER.

It Came Through Experimenting For High Explosives.

The idea is very general that smokeless powder in being practically smokeless achieves its greatest end, but as a matter of fact its smokeless feature is incidental and was an accident.

When the idea of modern long range guns was conceived it was at once apparent that the old black powder lacked explosive force, and thousands of experiments were made with various chemicals to procure a powder of high explosive properties, and this was at last accomplished.

When the new powder was tried, much to the surprise of every one it was found that practically no smoke followed the explosion, though this could of course have been predicted had the question ever arisen. The volume of smoke from black powder is due mainly to the quantity of charcoal in the powder, an ingredient not found in the smokeless explosive.

Smokeless powder, though a great boon to the sportsman, is of questionable value on the battlefield, so far as its smokelessness is concerned. The smoke clouds of old days were frequently most advantageously used to cloak movements of troops and batteries and really interfered with the enemy much more than with the troops creating the smoke.—Exchange.

Saved by Fireflies.

The gigantic tropical fireflies which swarm in the forests and canebrakes of most of the low lying West Indian islands once proved the salvation of the city of Santo Domingo. A body of buccaneers, headed by the notorious Thomas Cavendish, had laid all their plans for a
