

THE EAGLE
SPENCER & SCHMIDT, PROPRIETORS
DECATUR, INDIANA.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 14, 1863.

Lieut. Henderson is meeting with very good success in raising volunteers for his company. At last accounts he had recruited about forty, and it is quite probable that by this time he has fifty or sixty.

Give the cause encouragement and assistance. The company, if filled, will about clear this county of any draft under the last call. Mr. Henderson is very active and energetic, and we feel certain that he will succeed. At a meeting at Monmouth he recruited ten men. If all places do as well his company will soon be full.

STATE INSURANCE COMPANY.—This is a good Company and a home institution, being located at Fort Wayne. It insures Dwellings, Household Furniture, Barns Hay and Grain and Live Stock therein against loss or damage by fire, for the term of five years. The officers and Directors are well known to many of our citizens to be good reliable men. This, of all other companies, is the one the farmers should insure with. Mr. Godfrey is now canvassing this county for the above company; and, although the county has been pretty generally canvassed for other companies, he is doing a good business. We have been acquainted with Mr. Godfrey for several years and take pleasure in recommending him to the citizens of Adams county.

Lieut. John Blood of the 89th Indiana Volunteers is now at home on recruiting service. He gives a good report of the condition of the Regiment.—He offers an excellent opportunity to any one who wishes to enter the service in one of the old regiments.

DIED.—At Memphis, Tennessee, Lieut. William McDermott, of Company H 89th Regiment Indiana Volunteers. His body has been embalmed and forwarded will take place, from the residence of Mr. I. J. Meisse, on Sabbath, 14th inst., at 10 o'clock A. M. The funeral ceremonies will be conducted in accordance with the customs of the Odd Fellows and Masonic orders.

TRUTH STRANGER THAN FICTION

A Startling Work—Female Life among the Mormons—a narrative of many years personal experience by Maria Ward, the wife of a Mormon Elder.

"That one half of the world cannot imagine how the other half live," is no less true than trite; and the lesson our age affords, our experience and observation daily tend to verify. Then, too, when we consider the ever varying phases of human passion, and the discordant elements from which all novel and fantastical acts are moulded, it can scarcely seem surprising that a faithful record of actual events should exceed in singularity the wildest stream of romance; or that crimes, both strange and unnatural, should be perpetrated in a far off country on the outskirts of civilization, which people in another state of society would never imagine possible. Knowing as I do the character and habits of the Mormon people, and the degradation of the Mormon system, the degradation of the Mormon mind, and the consequent vices which extend through all the manifestations of the society, a sense of duty to the world, has induced me to prepare the following narrative for the public eye. The romantic incidents connected with my experience, many may think bordering on the marvelous. To them I would say, that this narrative of my life only proves, what has so often been proved before, that truth is stranger than fiction. The book contains 487 pages, with copious vignettes, is bound in cloth, and will be sent to any address, post paid on receipt of price one dollar and twenty five cents.

New York Mercury

FOR THE NEW YEAR.

It is with no fear of war's effect upon their literary fortunes, that the publishers of the New York Mercury acknowledge the unvarying popularity of their two hundred thousand subscribers, and announce to them, and to all, that the New York Mercury for the new year will be richer in every luxury of polite literature than ever before. It is no ungrateful speculation, no temporary gratification, but a first class literary work, which has been familiar to the United States as a quarter of a century; and while the weekly magazine prints of yesterday are putting down their talent even while they raise their subscription price, the Mercury maintains all its great staff of Romanesque poets, humorists, expositors, story tellers, and editors, and promises to make it still greater for 1864.

It is the one paper for every home. Its forty columns of reading matter are week constitute an unparalleled Conservatory of the Everlasting, and its novels, miscellaneous tales, biographies, and verse, Gossin, Poulitons broad ideas of humor, and polished editorials, combine to epitomize all the charms of wit and sentiment. The husband reads it to his wife, the mother to her children, the lover to his sweetheart, the soldier to his comrades, and the well aged school master to the circle around the stove. It is a familiar to every man woman and child in this country, and has regular subscribers in every country in the world.

The Mercury is also identified with the highest nationalities of the age, for several members of its brilliant staff hold high rank in our noble army, and have made themselves as famous with the sword as with the pen. The great illustrated article of the Mercury the intangible Dooly, gives the paper the highest attributes of age and art; and yet this largest literary wealth of the day continues to surpass itself in all their respects during the new year.

The first New York Mercury novella for the new year, is commenced in the issue of January 3, 1864, is called VICTORY, or THE HEROES OF CASTLE CITY. By Captain May C. LEXON, author of Gineprover, Sybil Campbell, Ermie La Macquarte, etc.

The novella of this distinguished author, need no eulogy. Public opinion has long since pronounced them superior to any other novellas published in this side of the Atlantic; and the true test of their merit is found in the fact that they are eagerly reprinted after their publication in the Mercury by the English press. We may add that the new tale Victoria, is fully equal in interest and depth of plot to either of those which have secured us a large share of public approval, and we can earnestly recommend it to all story readers.

The Mercury is sold by all newsmen and periodical dealers in America. To subscribers it is regularly mailed every Saturday morning, for $2 a year, three copies for $5; six copies for $8; eight copies for $12 with an extra copy free to the getter up of the club. Six months subscriptions received. Always write plainly the name of your post office, county and State.—We take notices of all solvent banks at par.—Payment must invariably be made in advance.—Express on copies sent free to all applicants.

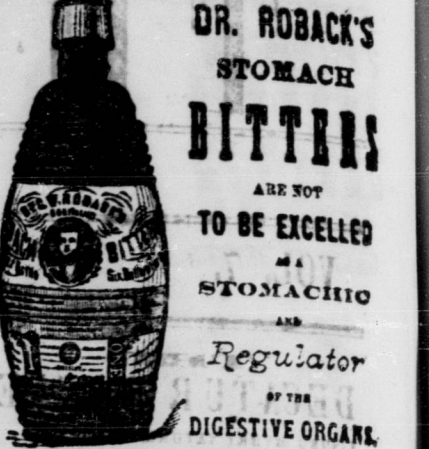

Address all letters and communications, post paid to C. D. WELLS & WHITNEY, Proprietors of the New York Mercury, 113 Fulton Street, New York.
