

FRIDAY, AUGUST 31, 1877.

The People's Bank, of Logansport, has suspended.

Brigham Young died on Wednesday last of inflammation of the bowels.

John Sherman, speaking of the re-sumption act, says "It can be, ought to be, and will be executed."

Anything, aside from the address, written on the face of a postal card, subjects it to letter postage.

Internal Revenue Collector White, of Terre Haute, is a subject of investigation.

The State Savings Bank of Illinois has closed doors with two or three millions of dollars belonging to depositors unaccounted for.

Mr. G. Lowe, who lives near Bradford, White county, is the owner of a steer which weighs three thousand six hundred pounds. Who can beat it?

In White county, a few days ago, a gun in the hands of Philip Mikesell accidentally discharged, the contents entering his wife causing, it is feared, a fatal wound.

An ingenious swindle is being practiced in some parts of the country, by which one dollar bills are made to return a large interest to the manufacturers. A one dollar and a five dollar bill, greenback or of some national bank currency, are carelessly torn in two, the middle, and half of the one and half of the five are pasted together. Unless closely scrutinized, they will be apt to be taken for fives. Thus, with six dollars, the swindler will make a profit of four out of the two fives which he manufactures.

Gov. Hendricks is enjoying himself in his own quiet and unostentatious way in Europe, as the following extract from a private letter to a gentleman at Indianapolis shows: "This is not so great a city as London, but it is more beautiful than you can conceive of. The objects of interest are so numerous that it is a great undertaking to visit them. I think we will go to Germany next week, probably reaching the Rhine at Cologne. Senator Bell and his law partner, Judge Morris, of Fort Wayne, are here, and we find their society very agreeable. I am glad that the railroad strike (which was a startling movement) has subsided, and that the injury is no greater than it is. I was greatly concerned about it for several days. I am sure that it must have given Gov. Williams great anxiety."

In his Oregon speech Senator Morton said:

In the south they are to-day teaching in every school, academy and college the doctrine of state sovereignty and state rights—the same doctrine that they taught before the war. It is taught in every democratic newspaper. In the south, in every book that they publish, of a political character, more industriously than ever before.

It is a part of every young man's education. When the rebellion came on, the people of the section were visited they had the right to withdraw at pleasure; that they came in voluntarily and could go out voluntarily. South Carolina could go out by the same process that she came in. Virginia could do the same thing. That doctrine is being taught in the south to-day.

While he was making this speech, Wade Hampton was addressing a crowd of "ex-rebels" in Virginia, and he said:

"Let the people of the North remember this: We recognize that the Union is restored; we recognize the Constitution of the United States. And when I say that I mean the Constitution which is amendmentless. We have surrendered our good faith."

The Southern States must pass equal laws. Let Maine be put on a par with South Carolina. Regard Louisiana as you do Massachusetts and you will find no men in the Union who will stand by the Constitution of the United States more loyally than the men of the South."

Mr. Morton did not expect his utterances to be branded with the lie so soon, and from such a source. Mr. Morton, the demagogue, aiming to strengthen his party by stirring up sectional hate, is confronted on the moment he appeals to the passion of his section, and by an honorable, truthful and intelligent representative of the South, his statements are clearly and beyond cavil proven to be untrue and entitled to no consideration whatever. Morton has had his day—but the days of such base calumniators and partisan mischief-makers are fast drawing to a close. They have sown the wind and the people have reaped the whirlwind. They have grown boastful and rich with power and by plunder, but the people have been oppressed and impoverished. "Let us have peace."

Indiana State Fair.

The lithograph posters for the coming State Fair are neat and attractive. The Fair is announced for one week, commencing September 24th. There will be the usual display in the way of an exposition during the fair week. Many exhibitors have expressed their willingness to exhibit for that length of time that could not continue for a longer period. From present indications, the immense exposition building will be well filled, and make a fine display, especially so as the destruction by fire last winter, of some of the buildings adjoining the main hall, will necessitate the crowding other departments into the main building. Every department will be represented as heretofore. Special inducements are offered to exhibitors in the mechanical and art departments, as will be noticed by referring to rules 2nd and 11th of the rules and regulations to be found in the premium list.

The Horticultural department will be exhibited on the second floor of the main hall. The State Horticultural Society will make an exhibition of fruits and flowers, not as a competitor but to show what can be done in that line. They will also hold a meeting for discussion one evening during the fair. There will also be meetings held each evening during the fair week, by one of the State industrial associations; i. e. Short Horn breeders, swine breeders, woolgrowers and poultry breeders, the programmes of which will be announced hereafter. The live stock interests continue to increase; the number of stalls and pens already secured by exhibitors insures success in that line, and judging from the office business as connected with the fair, the prospects are of the most encouraging nature.

Considering that we are favored the present season with the most bountiful crops for many years past, with peace and plenty, and no political excitement, or "centennial attraction," we have reason to expect an Old Fashioned State Fair.

The Board of Agriculture will leave nothing undone to secure success, and merit the approval of exhibitors and visitors. Premium lists can be procured of members of the board, the secretaries of agricultural societies in the State, or by sending the address to the Secretary of the Board of Agriculture.

SECOND REGIMENTAL REUNION.

The Ninth Regiment Indiana Infantry

LA FOLLE IND.—August 17, 1877.—The second Reunion of the surviving members of the Ninth Regiment Indiana Volunteers will be held in the city of Valparaiso, Indiana, Wednesday, September 19th, 1877. All the surviving members of the organization are respectfully asked to be present.

Newspapers throughout the State are respectfully asked to give notice of this meeting.

L. A. COLE, Chairman Committee Arrangements.

It is said that Governor Williams plays a good game of euchre. His first lone hand was played last fall, when he beat the great War Governor the "grandson of his grandfather" and the whole Republican party.

How to Kill a Town.

If you wish to kill a town, don't put up more houses than you are obliged to occupy yourself. If you should have an empty building, and any one wishes to rent it, ask about three times its value. Go abroad for your houses rather than purchase them of your own merchants. Take several New York and Chicago papers, but don't take hour home paper, if you do, always manage to be about three years behind with your subscription, and when you go to settle with the publisher swear that you paid him for the first year in advance but neglected to bring the receipt with you. Look on every new comer with a scowl of suspicion particularly if he does not attend your church, or is not of your political faith. A prompt and close observation of these rules will ruin any town in two years.—Exchange.

What do you know about the prisoner?" asked the judge. "I don't know nothin' 'bout him, judge, only he's bigoted." "Bigoted?" said his honor. "Yes, sah." "What do you mean by 'bigoted'?" "Well, judge," explained the witness, "he knows no more 'fuh one niggah, an' not 'nuh two."

Pierrepont—"Haw, Adam, I see that the new rebellion is quite crushed—the wits, you know." Badeau—"Yes, so I see, I see." Pierrepont—"Well, now, what puzzles me is how the devils they did it without Gwang. Do you know, Adam, I think Gwang must have twelvewinged them what to do?"—Courier-Journal.

ADDITIONAL LOCALS.

GOING AWAY.—This week loses to us one of our best business houses, that of S. & M. Solomon having removed to Remington, Indiana. We are very sorry that it must be so, for the boys have been here now long enough to become well acquainted and have gained the confidence of the whole community. Sam and Moses have sold a great many goods here, and have always given entire satisfaction. They kept a good stock and never misrepresented it. We can heartily and conscientiously congratulate the citizens of Remington and vicinity on this valuable acquisition to their town and trade. Our loss is their gain in this instance. Good-by boys, we wish you God speed and all success in your new home, but don't forget Paxton and your old friends.—Paxton (Illinoian) Record.
