

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 19, 1877.

Mr. Hendricks met with a handsome reception at Indianapolis, on his return from Europe.

Now we look to the Democracy of our old Keystone State to duplicate the result in Ohio.

The President, on Wednesday, sent to the Senate the nomination of Hon. John M. Harlan, of Kentucky, to be Associate Justice of the United States Supreme Court.

J. M. Binkley, assistant Attorney-General of the United States under President Johnson, and who resided in Milwaukee for a year and a half just, mysteriously disappeared a few days ago. His mental condition for several days had excited some apprehension.

Hon. D. F. Skinner, of Valparaiso, is being brought forward by a number of our Democratic exchanges as a candidate before our next State Convention for Treasurer of State. He is a gentleman of fine abilities and experience, and would fill the position creditably.

Congress met in extra session at Washington, on Monday last. Ex-Speaker Randall, of Pennsylvania, was re-elected Speaker. Mr. Clymer offered a resolution electing as clerk, George M. Adams, of Kentucky; sergeant-at-arms, John W. Thompson, of Ohio; door-keeper, John W. Polk, of Missouri; postmaster James M. Stewart, of Virginia, and as chaplain, Rev. Dr. John Poisel, of Maryland. On Tuesday the President's message was sent in, read, and referred.

"It does appear as if there was a very small amount of negro shooting in the South this season,"—Delphi News.

Yes, the carpet-baggers, ex-officials, "fit out" when they failed to retain the support of the federal bayonets, and the "outrage mills" suddenly ceased to grind. It is amusing to note with what earnestness these same "carpet-baggers" now declare they are not, and never were, residents of the respective localities they are, by requisitions, requested to visit.

The Democrats in Washington City held a jollification over the Ohio election, on last Saturday night, at which, according to a New York Tribune reporter, speeches were made which created a marked sensation at the Capital. Congressman Blackburn, of Kentucky, said that "the seal of condemnation had been set on Hayes," and that "he cannot even appeal to his own neighbors for a vindication of his conduct." Then, pointing to the white house, he said: "There is a man who has my profoundest sympathy; a man who has read his doom in the Ohio verdict, as Belshazzar read his doom in words of fire. Ohio has condemned the usurper in the white house. The republican party stands to-day pilloried in history as the friend of classes, the opponent of the many, the persecutor of the powerless, engaged in class legislation from its cradle to the grave to which the honest and patriotic people have consigned it."

Representative Rice said that the result in Ohio meant that "the seal of condemnation is placed on that greatest conspiracy and fraud which has made a man-president who was not elected by the people; the people have condemned this crime, which can not be atoned for."

Ex-Representative Frank Hurd declared that "the voice of Ohio condemns the title of Hayes; the Democrats have declared that Hayes is an usurper; by stealth, corruption and dishonesty the usurpation has been accomplished, and his title, condemned in Ohio, will be condemned all over the land where the honest and uncorrupt men vote."

The radical party do not care to hear the returning board racialities alluded to, nor the title of their bogus president questioned in any manner, and to do so seems sufficient to "create a marked sensation."

The Railroad—Its Present Status and Future Prospects.

The contract for the building of the I. D. & C. Railroad has been awarded to Mr. S. N. Yeoman and the Messrs. Heglers, of Washington, Ohio, gentlemen of unquestioned integrity and ability to build the road. They are now ready to commence the work and are only waiting the order from the President to commence operations. But Mr. Lee, being a careful and prudent railroad builder does not desire that work shall commence until everything is in readiness. He does not want to see another failure, and does not intend that it shall occur. He has therefore called a meeting of the Board of Directors at Monticello to-morrow to determine whether work shall commence at once, or whether it shall be deferred until Jasper county puts her subsidies in shape to meet the requirement of the contract, which is that $50,000 shall be secured to the Company to be paid when a train of cars runs into Rensselaer. This proposition, which is the most reasonable, and the best that our people have ever had from parties who are able and willing to build the road, ought to be complied with at once, and without delay. A large portion of this amount is secured—only a few thousands lacking. Every one who feels an interest in Rensselaer, or Jasper county, should come to the front at once, and do all he is able to do to secure us this long looked for and much needed road. It is to be hoped that the Board of Directors will fall on some plan to-morrow to start the work, and that our citizens will stand in with our Director, Mr. McCoy, and President Lee in their earnest efforts to secure at the earliest possible date this inestimable prize, which is destined to revolutionize the whole commercial relations of the people of Jasper county. Many of our citizens have done their full duty in this matter. Some, we are sorry to say, are still holding back. It is to be hoped that they will see the importance of prompt and efficient action in the premises. Now is the accepted time, and if the road is not secured at an early date the fault will rest with the people.

At a railroad meeting this evening about $4,000 was secured, leaving $6,000 to be provided to make up Jasper county's $50,000. President Lee assures us that if the balance is arranged for soon the cars shall be running into Rensselaer by the 1st of January, 1878. Up, then, and to work!

Niles G. Parker, carpet-bagger ex-State Treasurer of South Carolina, was arrested on the 12th in Jersey City and lodged in the county jail, on a requisition from Governor Hampton, of South Carolina, charging him with plundering the State. He expressed a desire to turn state's evidence. He has resided in Jersey City for two years past. These are the men who were kept in place by federal bayonets.

[For the Sentinel]

October 12th, 1877.

Mr. Editor: There was a meeting of citizens at Sage School House last evening to consider the financial condition of the county, and so far as they could, seek measures of relief. Mr. Geo. Majors, Mr. Put, and S. W. Ritchey addressed the meeting, which was attentive and earnest, seeming to be all of one mind on this question though composed of persons of all political parties in the last canvass. After the speaking a petition was presented calling for the immediate repeal of the "Resumption Act," the "Monetization of Silver," the winding up of the U. S. Banks, with a sufficient issue of greenbacks to transact the business of the country. Forty nine men—every voter, perhaps, in the house—walked forward and put their names to the petition. Other meetings were appointed in different school-houses for the same purpose. All the names that can be got in the Township (Jordan) will be attached to the same paper, and sent up to Congress at an early day of the approaching session. We hope other townships will do likewise all over the county, and in all the States of the Union. This done, and we think Congress may yield to this weight of prayer, and grant the required relief—otherwise, and one-half of the people in this section are bankrupted.

Cure for the Diphtheria.

Cleveland Herald.

A correspondent of a Victoria paper writes:

Should any of your family be attacked with the diphtheria do not be alarmed, as it is usually and speedily cured without a doctor. When it was raging in England a few years ago I accompanied Dr. Fields on his rounds to witness the so-called wonderful cures he performed while the patients of others were dropping on all sides. The remedy to be so rapid, must be simple. All he took with him was powdered sulphur and a quill, and with these he cured every patient without exception. He put a teaspoonful of water of brimstone into a wineglass of water and stirred it with his finger instead of a spoon, as the sulphur does not readily amalgamate with water. When the sulphur was well mixed he gave it as a gargle, and in ten minutes the patient was out of danger. Brimstone cures every species of fungus in man, beast and plant in a few minutes. Instead of spitting out the gargle, he recommended the swallowing of it. In extreme cases he had been called just in the nick of time, when the fungus was too nearly closing to allow the gargling, he blew the sulphate through a quill into the throat, and after the fungus had shrunk to allow of it, then the gargling. He never lost a patient from diphtheria.

"If a patient cannot gargle, take a live coal, put it on a shovel, and sprinkle a spoonful or two of flour of brimstone at a time upon it, holding the head over it, and the fungus will die. If plentifully used the whole room may be filled with it, so suffocation, and if the patient can walk about in it, inhaling the fumes with doors and windows closed. The mode of fumigating a room with sulphur has often cured most violent attacks of cold in the head, chest, etc., at any time it is recommended in cases of consumption and asthma."

Rochester Sentinel: A young man named Scott, living in Union township, became suddenly insane on last Saturday. He went to the barn lot and kindled a fire after which he divested himself of all his clothing and began yelling and dancing around the fire like an Indian with his war paint on. He then broke from his mother, bounded the fence like a deer and took to the timber. Pursuit was made but after two days chase he had not been found. He was last seen about 14 years of age and always regarded as a bright and intelligent youth.

New York Graphic (Independent): We ventured to say after the Conkling revolt at Rochester, that the republican party was fast passing out of politics and into history. It has no organization in one-half of the State. It is practically defunct in New York State, and now if it is destroyed in Ohio—as it will be substantially if Bismarck's overthrow is not followed by its disappearance in other States.

The Rochester Union, in a few well chosen words, sets at rest all the silly talk about "Tilden" and "anti-Tilden," should come to the front at once, and do all he is able to do to secure us this long looked for and much needed road. It is to be hoped that the Board of Directors will fall on some plan to-morrow to start the

LOVE AND LECTONERING.
Edward Eggleston's new story, "Rocky," which will be in the next issue of the Sentinel, contains the following glimpse of Indiana life during the Whig campaign of 1840. Mark, a young fellow from Jasper county, runs for representative, and Mark Lathers, a clerk in the county jail, travels together into the country to make a canvass. Mark is a free, open, and straightforward fellow, and Lathers is a crafty, sneaking, and dishonest fellow. Lathers is a great talker, and Mark is a great doer. Lathers is a great talker, and Mark is a great doer. Lathers is a great talker, and Mark is a great doer.

While Mark stood looking at Nancy, Major Lathers came and touched him on the shoulder.
"Mark," he whispered, "if you don't take your eyes off that air, you are a gone goner, there's no shooting! Don't see that Jim McGowan's scowling at you now, and if you cut him out he'll be dead against you. Come, old fellow, you'll get used up as fast as Julius Caesar did when he went down into Egypt and fell in love with Pharaoh's daughter and the like, and get licked by it. Let an old friend pull you out of the burlesques and do it. Don't you see, you are more to do with that girl, do you hear?"

"But I've promised to dance the next reel with her," pleaded Mark, feeling the force of Lathers' remark and feeling his own powerlessness to resist the current upon which he was drifting.
"The devil you have!" cried the major. "You're a goner, sure enough. Salt-peter won't save you. All the young men'll be against you, because you've cut 'em out and sick like, and all the girls'll be down on you, because you run after the purtioneers. Don't be a fool, Mark—of my interest as well as yourn."

"Wait till I've had one reel," said Mark. "I'm only in for a little fun, you know. Isn't she a splendid creature, Major?"
"Splendid! the devil!" muttered Lathers, turning away and sniggering meditatively how to cut loose from Mark.

Mark danced his reel with Nancy, and then devoted himself to her. Having no further use for Lathers, he snubbed him, and Jim swore that Bonamy shouldn't cut a vote on the Fork. Nothing but Bonamy's excellent musk prevented McGowan's taking a more animated revenge.

When at midnight the company marched out of doors and stationed themselves around a table made of rough boards supported by stakes driven in the ground, they found a rude but substantial supper of bacon and hominy, corn-bread, sweet-cake and apples. For luxury, there was coffee in place of the assafras.

With which Rocky Fork was accustomed to regale itself, and for a wonder, the sweet'nin' was "store sugar"—of the brown New Orleans variety—instead of "country," or maple molasses, such as was used on ordinary occasions.

The cake, however, was made with the country molasses. Mark, whose infatuation seemed to increase, devoted himself at supper to his love, whom he would have liked better had she been entirely silent. He talked and talked, and talked at her awkward and bearish pleasantries.

"I say, Bonamy," whispered Lathers, "if you don't flop round into the channel mighty quick, I shan't let flat-boats with you no longer. I'll cut mine loose and swing around and leave you high and dry onto the sand-bar."

"I'll be a good boy after supper, Major," said Mark. Lathers saw that he was hopelessly enchanted by the siren of Rocky Fork, and he proceeded straightway to execute his threat. He sought out Jim McGowan, and told the irate fellow how he had done his best to keep Mark from makin' a fool of himself.

"I'll pay him back," said Jim. "I know'd you would," answered Lathers.
"He won't get no votes on Rocky Fork," said Jim.
"I told him so," said the major. "He might have said, 'I shan't let you game an' the like. I'll git him away first thing in the mornin'.' Then the girl'll find she's throw'd away her bean and get nuthin' but a fool for her one dance. She'll come back to you meek'n' Moses when the Philistines was after him. He'd order you you could keep anybody from votin' for him here, and git Whigs to trade off somewhere else. Now, for instance, if you should git a lot of Rocky Forkers and the like to trade with Whigs—to say to some of my friends, 'Spend all your money on me, and I'll vote for you for me or the like, you might hit a enemy and do a good turn for a friend. Besides you know I'm dead agin' the doglaw, and dog law is what Rocky Fork don't want."

From Jim the major proceeded to talk with "old man Kirtley," to whom he said that he didn't blame Mark for git'in' in love with such a girl. He might do worse; he might marry such a splendid creature and the like. For his part he'd tell Mark so in the mornin'. He also assured Mr. Kirtley that for his part he was dead agin' the dog law. The things a man had a right to in a free country. Poor men hadn't got no comforts, and dogs was one of 'em. (The chief product of the Rocky Fork region, as the major knew, was dogs.)

Lathers then talked to the "women folks." He said he didn't think o' much of a party face and sick like as he used to. What you wanted in a woman was to be of some account; and girls too good-looking got to be fools, and stuck-up like, and got into trouble, like Cleopatra, and the like, you know. He also took occasion to tell the ladies that Rocky Fork had been dead agin' the dog law. Poor folks had as much right to dogs and sick like as rich folks to sheep and sick like.

To the young men Tom Lathers said he didn't believe in a man dancin' with one girl all the time, petticular when he didn't mean to marry her and sick like. It was scandalous. When he come to Rocky Fork agin' he didn't bring no town feller and the like along. He believed in country folks himself, and besides he was dead agin' all your dog laws and the like. If he got to be sheriff he'd show 'em in his own way. He was crammed down people's throats in this country. Didn't the declaration, which our fathers signed on Bunker Hill, declare that all men was born free and equal? Wasn't a dog just as good as a sheep and sick like, he'd like to know; and if taxin' dogs wasn't taxation without representation, he'd just like to know what was now you know, hey?

While the party broke up with a final jig, when at length he succeeded in getting Mark away, but not until after nearly all the guests had departed.

It is said that while the president was on his southern tour some one called out for three cheers for Hayes and Wheeler. The president and his traveling companions were so astonished that they looked at each other in amazement, and burst into laughter as another fellow inquired, "Who the h—l is Wheeler?"

The leading feature of St. Nicholas for November, the first number of the Fifth Volume, is to be a long and fully illustrated article upon "Home-made Christmas gifts." More than seventy presents will be described, and the way of making them explained. This is supplementary to "One Hundred Christmas Presents, and How to Make Them," published in the same magazine two years ago.
