In answer to John Sherman's statement concerning Anderson's trial, Washington dispatch to the New York Sun says that the grand jury did not refuse to indict Wells and Anderson, but directed the district attorney to file an indictment. The grand jury would have indicted had there not been a question as to the legality of the jury itself. The jury in Anderson's case was not packed, but drawn from the regular panel of a thousand names. The information was not signed by a member of the white league. It was drawn by the district attorney.

Wiley Pierce was the first Remingtonian to try the narrow gauge. He says they made the last six miles in going from Remington to Bradford in eleven minutes.

Hon. Geo. Major has purchased Bro. Crowder's farm, one and a half miles south of Remington, and will take possession shortly. The farm contains 410 acres of very fine land, is one of the handsomest places in this vicinity. The buying of this farm was partly a necessity, but as it will be the means of preventing his departure for Texas for an indefinite period, we are glad that it so happened. We have not yet learned where Mr. Crowder is going, but hope he will not leave this neighborhood, where he is highly and justly respected, to wander among strangers in a strange land.

"Charley" invites Bro. James to engage in a thorough "self-examination" and ascertain, if possible, his political status.

They Kept Right On Laying.

When Blaine was in the midst of his colloquy with Dawes and Hoar over the signs of Massachusetts in the war of 1812, Judge Davis of Illinois began to laugh, first at the top of his head, and then all the way down his ponderous body to his feet. Seeing Davis in this melting mood, Howe and Hamilton commenced to chuckle, and soon Conkling, who sits close by, burst out. Hoar caught a glimpse of the top of a head, and reddening to the tips of his hair, exclaimed: "Only two classes of men laugh at Massachusetts: one class are those who hate her undying devotion to liberty; the other despise her for sustaining this great and Godlike administration."

Davis, Howe, Conkling and Hamilton kept right on with their ighing.

WHAT THEY SAY

(From the Lafayette Journal.)

Vice-President Reynolds, of the Louisville, New Albany & Chicago Railroad, having kindly put a special train on the road for the accommodation of our guests well satisfied with that very important part of the entertainment. The Monticello and Rensselaer bands and choir furnished excellent music. Speeches were made by President Lee, Governor Yeoman, Colonel Hurlbut, of Georgia; Mr. Holt, Dr. Richardson and Mr. Cox, of Delphi; Judge Hughes, Dr. Bushnell, and others, of Monticello; Hon. Mr. Carr and Hon. A. Wolcott, of White County; Mr. Viter, of Lafayette; H. E. James, Captain Edmonds, I. W. Yeoman, Dr. Washburn and Alfred Thompson, of the republic.

Those in authority spoke cheerfully of the prospect of an early completion of the road to Indianapolis, the great inland city of the republic.

The gentlemen present assured us that the construction of a narrow-gauge road cost much less than the standard gauge, and that the saving will pay the cost of the road in five years. The town and county are chiefly indebted to the enterprise of our own citizens, which is a fact that we have to-day.

This town is the paradise of the prairie, and this county is one of the best in the state for industrious young men to settle and make a home for themselves and their families. There is probably no county in this state that contains a greater number of wealthy farmers in proportion to its population. The professions and different branches of business are full, but there is plenty of room for farmers and stockraisers. There is a large number of stock raisers, and that can be bought for $8 to $10 per acre that would make the best pastures and farms.

This county is largely Republican in politics. There is not a licensed drinking house in it. We have no jail and scarcely ever need one. Our citizens are intelligent, and we are proud to have a man of this class come here to be cordially welcomed. None others need apply.

NEAR TOGETHER.

Which Refers to the Iron Rails of a Narrow Gauge Railway.

(Occasional Correspondence of the Sentinel.)

DELPHI, Feb. 15. A large delegation from this city attended the celebration of the completion of the narrow gauge road from Bradford to Remington, one section of the I. D. & C. railroad. A special train was provided on the L. N. A. & C. railroad, and along the line of way received large additions to the crowd already on hand. At Bradford a train on the narrow gauge was in waiting and everybody enjoyed the free ride. After a fairly sumptuous, yet richly varied dinner, people most liberal and accommodating, the crowd could get on to the court house where they were highly entertained by a series of lectures from various persons. The crowd was estimated at 3,000 persons. The Hon. John Lee, president of the Indiana, Delphi and Chicago railroad, a very fully presented the objective points of the enterprise, and earnestly appealed to the people along the line to the other divisions of the road to be completed, and the company, Yeoman, Hogler & Co., the contracting parties, have, in advance of the time, fixed for the commencement of the work, under the most adverse circumstances, on Monday, February 15, 1878. They are ready and anxious to commence the work on the division between Bradford and Monticello, and between Monticello and Delphi. They also required on the part of the people must be secured and the work will be commenced as soon as the directors are prepared to assure them that their part of the contract is completed.

We earnestly urge every person who feels the necessity of competing transportation lines to assist in the completion of this enterprise, and may we not expect to see the completion of the road to Indianapolis, a very fully presented the objective points of the enterprise, and earnestly appealed to the people along the line to the other divisions of the road to be completed, and the company, Yeoman, Hogler & Co., the contracting parties, have, in advance of the time, fixed for the commencement of the work, under the most adverse circumstances, on Monday, February 15, 1878.
