In the joint discussion, the following rules shall be observed:

First.—No offensive personalities shall be indulged in.

Second.—Neither party shall interrupt the other while he is speaking.

Third.—No direct question shall be answered by way of interruption, and each party reserves the right to answer such interrogatory at the next place of meeting, but no more than two shall be put at any one meeting.

Fourth.—No new point shall be introduced during the fifteen minutes, but it shall be exclusively used by way of reply.

Fifth.—The party opening the debate shall have one hour, and shall then be followed by his opponent, who shall have one hour and fifteen minutes. The party opening shall then have fifteen minutes, which shall close the debate, and no other speakers shall take place at such meeting.

Sixth.—The opening of each debate shall alternate, except as may otherwise be agreed upon.

Seventh.—After the first of September, the canvass shall be confined to the joint debates provided for, as far as either of the parties to this agreement are concerned.

Eighth.—In case of sickness of either, his place may be filled by any person not personally objectionable to the other.

M. H. WEIR,
W. H. CALKINS,
LaPorte, Aug. 12, 1878

Go to Catt & Smoot for the solid smoking tobacco.

The consul says that "In the sweet bye-and-bye, when Price is elected county clerk, the blank blank foot is auditor, the plebian is treasurer, the confederate is recorder, etc., etc., etc." Then the consul will reluctantly let go a public teat he has had so long, and that's what hurts. "Is it the plebian gawus?"

Horace should not be too fast after Mr. Zimmerman. That gentleman may possibly be preparing to meet him with all he called for.

The Democratic newspapers, alluded to by the Union as "told the unfortunate, melancholy truth," to defeat General Manson, have said that was their object, and they know no more about the General's personal habits than does the consul to Turk Island. It was just such an advantage as the Union would attempt to take.

Rensselaer Union: The edition (of the Union) now published is so large that we are compelled to go to press early Wednesday evening."

Now if the consul could only impress his nonsense upon the minds of the people it might cause an increase to his circulation. Then the object for publication of the above would be accomplished.

The circulation of the Union is more than double that of any other newspaper published in Jasper county.

And yet the Union cannot be induced to establish the fact by affidavit, in compliance with request not even to secure certain printing according to law. Statements like the above are cheap and easily made.

The low pot-house attacks of the consul upon Sheriff Robinson two years ago, which we reproduced in the Democratic SENTINEL last week, and resulted in a heavy majority for that gentleman, should teach him that such scurrilous mode of canvass is not calculated to insure him success.—The consul's filthy attacks upon this District at the expense of Maj. Calkins.—LaPorte Argus.

The cheapest place in town to get groceries is at Catt & Smoot's. Try them and see for yourselves.

The consul should devote the limited space in his little paper to articles of importance to his readers. Columns of stuff gotten up for the purpose of creating distrust, dissension, and suspicion among the Democratic and National candidates, will avail him nothing. All the benefit he will derive from them he can stick in his eye. The candidates and the people understand the motives which actuates and the objects desired to be accomplished, and will not be misled by such trickery.

Democratic Judicial Convention.

At the Democratic Judicial Convention held at Goodland, Ind., on the 14th day of August, 1878, Wm. B. Maddock, of Fowler, was made chairman, and W. A. Redding, secretary. The convention adopted the Democratic state platform as its platform of principles, passed a resolution endorsing Hon. Edwin P. Hammond as Judge of the 30th Judicial Circuit, and recommending his re-election.

Proceeded to the nomination of candidates for Prosecuting Attorney for 30th Judicial Circuit. The names of Messrs. Mahlon D. Smith, of Fowler, John Ash, of Kentland, and Col. Headley, of Goodland, were announced. Before proceeding to ballot Mr. Ash with drew his name. The ballot was then opened to be examined and four professed to be experts in the calliope business, and informed the producers of agricultural stock that republican legislation had brought the production of manufacture down so low that $1 would now purchase as much as $2 would formerly buy, supposing their hearers would not reflect that their own productions were reduced as much or more, while their rivals, which are their capital and the second best, had not also depreciated more than one-half.

Lawyer No. 3 was selected as chief clapper, and it was agreed that when a platitude was made by any of the speakers the chief clapper should commence clapping and stamping, the rest of the speakers to join and thus to make the audience to think an important point had been made.—Taken altogether, the people here are of the opinion that if the republican party would brace up the faithful, or capture greenbacks it will be necessary to send among the toil-worn masses another clever speaker than scheming, litigating, and up-to-nothing, the chief clapper should commence clapping and stamping, the rest of the speakers to join and thus to make the audience to think an important point had been made.—Taken altogether, the people here are of the opinion that if the republican party would brace up the faithful, or capture greenbacks it will be necessary to send among the toil-worn masses another clever speaker than scheming, litigating, and up-to-nothing, the chief clapper should commence clapping and stamping, the rest of the speakers to join and thus to make the audience to think an important point had been made.—Taken altogether, the people here are of the opinion that if the republican party would brace up the faithful, or capture greenbacks it will be necessary to send among the toil-worn masses another clever speaker than scheming, litigating, and up-to-nothing, the chief clapper should commence clapping and stamping, the rest of the speakers to join and thus to make the audience to think an important point had been made.—Taken altogether, the people here are of the opinion that if the republican party would brace up the faithful, or capture greenbacks it will be necessary to send among the toil-worn masses another clever speaker than scheming, litigating, and up-to-nothing, the chief clapper should commence clapping and stamping, the rest of the speakers to join and thus to make the audience to think an important point had been made.—

We are opposed to class legislation, and protest against the grant of subsidies by the federal government, either in lands, bonds, money or by the pledge of the public credit.

That we abhor and hold up to public detestation the leaders in the republican party, who are composed of and have been working for the destruction of the national banks, the bond syndicates, or other methods, and we believe the true policy of the government and the best interest of the people would be subserved by legislation so as to distribute said debt among our people at home—affording them the most favorable and practical opportunities for the investment of their savings in the funded debt of the United States.

That we are in favor of such legislation as shall fix the legal rate of interest at not exceeding six per cent per annum.

We demand the restoration of the silver dollar of 412 grains, giving to the coinage of the United States the same quality as the gold dollar, both public and private; and that the coinage thereof shall be unlimited, and upon the same terms and conditions as may be provided for the coining of gold.
