Barre and Lohes, the murderers of Madame Gillet, were publicly guillotined, in the presence of an immense crowd, at Paris, on the 7th of September.

Nobeling, the Socialist, who attempted to assassinate the Emperor William of Germany, has died of his wounds.

A London dispatch says that "over 600 bodies have been recovered of the persons drowned by the disaster to the excursion steamer Princess Alice. A large majority of the bodies have been recognized."

The assassin of the Emperor of Mexico, at Alhambra, has been reported that his suit was not assassinated in the fight in which his master met his death. The engagement resulted in the killing of 400 persons, Met being surrounded and unable to escape.

In the late fight at Bihac, a small fortified town near the Dalmatian frontier, the Bosnian rebels inflicted a loss of 600 or 700 men on the Austrian forces. The resistance of the rebels was so obstinate that the Austrians were compelled to retire and leave the place for the present in possession of the enemy.

Roma dispatch says the Bourne is much disturbed by the retrograde movement of the Austrian army in Bosnia.

Count Wilhelm von Bismarck, second son of Prince Bismarck, has been elected Deputy to the German Parliament from Langenscheidt, the Catholics turning the balance in his favor, in consequence of his promise to be guided by his father's constitution toward the Church of Rome.

A dispatch from Rome says in the negotiations between Bismarck and the Vatican it has been agreed that the church shall be ruled in accordance with the Prussian constitution, and that the Falk laws shall remain in force, but subject to a declaration as to the manner of their execution.

The German Emperor has completely recovered from the wounds inflicted by the assassin Nobeling.

A Paris dispatch says a diploma has been awarded the State Departments of Public Instruction of Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Wisconsin, Pennsylvania and Kansas, the Milwaukee public schools, and the St. Louis public schools.

Reports from Serbian sources estimate the losses of Austrians in engagements with the Bosnians, between the 4th and 6th of this month, at about a hundred officers and three thousand men. It is stated that the Austrians have been reinforced by a large number of offensive operations against the insurgent detachments on the banks of the Save, but without achieving decisive results.

A dynamite machine exploded near Bradford, Pa., the other day, killing four persons. Their bodies were blown into a million fragments.

SOUTH.

Memphis dispatches of Sept. 9 represent the condition of affairs in that city as truly appalling. The new cases of yellow fever for the preceding twenty-four hours reached the fearful figure of 411, and the deaths about 120. Over 2,000 people were taken to the city hospital, and the work was working hard, but hundreds of persons were dying without being able to get a physician. "A walk or a ride through any street of the city," telegraphs a correspondent, "reveals the scene of death at almost every step, while the streets from the city to the suburbs are strewn with the bodies of the dead, and most loathsome, the number of unattended cases being so numerous that many are found daily only by tracing up the scent till its source is reached, and then it is often the case that three or four dead bodies are found in one place." At New Orleans, the number of new cases for the twenty-four hours was 144, and the deaths 87. At Hickman, Ky., 60 cases of fever were under treatment, in a population of 200. A dispatch of the 9th from Jackson, Miss., says: "The fever has broken out at New Orleans, and is now spreading rapidly. Lawrence station on the Vicksburg and Memphis railway, and Gilman station on the New Orleans road, Dry Grove, in Hinds county, not absent at Vicksburg, Holy Springs, Port Gibson, or Greenville. At Grenada only three or four remain to be attacked."

The deaths from yellow fever in New Orleans, on the 11th of September, numbered 90, new cases 232. There was a most untimely suspension, and it was estimated that there were over 50,000 unemployed people in the city. At Memphis there was no abatement of the plague. A dispatch from that city says: "We have at this time 3,500 sick to provide for, and 10,000 well people to feed. The average increase of cases is 100, and the average deaths 100 per day. There are no signs of abatement of the fever, though the weather has turned cool, and we have hopes that the back of the epidemic has been broken." At Vicksburg the disease had assumed a slight decrease. There was also a slight decrease in the number of new cases. In the other towns of the South where the pestilence had found a lodgment there was no abatement.

The number of deaths from yellow fever in New Orleans on the 13th was 58; new cases 120. At Memphis there were 293 new cases and 63 deaths. The disease had assumed a mild form, and yielded more readily to treatment. Vicksburg reported 31 deaths; the weather was growing cool, and there was hope of an early abatement of the plague. At Holy Springs, Hickman, Brownsville, and other towns in the interior, there was little or no abatement of the epidemic.

A man named Vallour St. Martin, confined in the jail of St. Charles parish, La., for the murder of a colored man, was taken out at night by a mob of negroes and sumpted to death. He received the contents of a lead pipe in the stomach, and was literally riddled with bullets before all recognition.

WEST.

A small steamer was sunk, the other day, in the Missouri river, near St. Charles, and three of the crew were drowned.

Two deadwood coaches, one bound up and the other down, were recently robbed by three bandits not far from Hot Creek, Wyoming. The treasure boxes were broken open and robbed of their contents, which amounted to little, by the way—the mail cases were gutted of all registered letters, and the passengers relieved of their money, watches and jewelry.

President Hayes and party, after taking a trip up the Northern Pacific railroad as far as Fargo, Dakota, and inspecting the great wheat-fields of that region, returned to Minneapolis and looked in upon the Exposition. He then journeyed to Madison, and was present at the opening of the Wisconsin State Fair. His Excellency next visited Milwaukee, where he was the guest of Hon. Alexander Mitchell.

There was a heavy frost in many parts of the Northwest on the night of Sept. 11.

A painful report has reached Fort Keogh, to the effect that Gen. Miles and an excursion party had been surrounded in Yellowstone Park by hostile Bannocks, and twenty-seven of the escort killed. Mr. Miles and several other ladies were with the party.

Two Bannocks from yellow fever occurred last week at Gallup, Ohio, a point on the Ohio river 200 miles above Cincinnati. They are attributed to the tow-boat John Porter, which passed up the river three weeks ago, with several cases of fever on board, and was finally abandoned near Gallipolis, where it had been stranded, anchored in the river. Much indignation was felt along the river that the authorities of Gallipolis should allow such a breeder of pestilence to remain afloat, and to appease their wrath, the Gallipolis marched down to the river and scuttled the John Porter.

A report, which reached St. Paul that Sitting Bull and his entire force of warriors have returned to this side of the line, splendidly armed and equipped.

A Memphis refugee died in Chicago of yellow fever last week. No alarm was manifested over the fact, as it is impossible that any new cases should be developed on Lake Michigan, owing to the coolness of the atmosphere.

The editor of the Cairo Bulletin—Thomas Hall—died last week of yellow fever. The proprietor and business manager have fled the city, along with many others, and the paper has suspended publication.

Gen. Miles, with a force of about seven hundred soldiers, and friendly Crow Indians, encountered a band of Bannocks, a few days ago, in the National park, and gave the enemy a severe whipping. Thirteen were killed and thirty-four captured. It is probable that this fight furnished the ground for the report that Gen. Miles and a party of excursionists had been surrounded in danger of massacre by Indians in the Yellowstone National Park.

The September returns to the National Department of Agriculture give the average condition of the corn crop at 92, against 92 in August, and of the wheat crop at 87, against 92 in September of last year. It is believed by the Department that the total wheat yield will reach the popular estimate of 400,000,000 bushels.

Official tables of the census of the District of Columbia are just published. The population of Washington is 131,349; of Georgetown, 11,571, and of the county, 16,833; total in the District, 160,651. The proportions of the population are as follows: Whites, 96,427; colored, 53,624; showing the extraordinary proportion of one colored man to every two whites.

Advices from the West report that hostilities may probably be the result of the tour of the Cheyennes to the North. They left their reservation in the Indian Territory several days ago, and are daily expected to reach and attempt to cross the Union Pacific railroad. To prevent the latter intention from being carried out, a considerable military force has been concentrated at Sidney, Neb., which will move at a moment's notice by rail to any point where they are expected to appear. The savages will attempt to pass the road, and the regular weekly robbery of "the coach from Deadwood" occurred the other night near Hat creek, Wyoming. The usual monthly was varied, however, by a fight between the messengers and bandits. "While the regular coaches are daily expected to pass, the fire was returned, and one of the robbers fell dead. The others retreated to a gulch, keeping up a steady fire on the messengers, who returned it, but dared not leave their position. The coach machine had driven on, and after waiting some time, and seeing that they were not strong enough to dislodge the robbers, the messengers mounted their horses and rejoined the coach, leaving the mail sacks lying in the road near the body of the dead robber. The messengers are confident that two of the robbers who got away are badly wounded."
