

FRIDAY FEBRUARY 28, 1879.

Theatre Saturday night.

Dios Thompson is convalescent.

The Chinese bill has passed the Senate.

Did you see the "sun dogs" Wednesday evening?

Everybody turn out to the temperance meeting.

Contentment adds more to the pleasure of life than riches.

The Rensselaer Cornet Band is one of the best in Northern Indiana.

Go and hear "Nick of the Woods" played at Starr's hall to-morrow night.

Mr. Verley Kirk, of Remington, spent last Saturday and Sunday in the city.

Couldn't the "Immortal J. N." be persuaded to "lift the veil" in Rensselaer.

This note is intended for parties who "cabbage" our exchanges and carry them off.

Hon. E. P. Hammond returned last Thursday from Kentland where he has been holding court.

A case of assault and battery between Godfrey Shultz and Gotthold Hannebaugh, of Union township, is on trial to-day before Justice E. T. Harding.

The Newton bar docket is unusually large, compared with Jasper docket. We have reason to congratulate the Jasper County Bar for their disposition to compromise cases.

If our friends will take pains to hand us any items of interest to the general public we will gladly publish them. It is our aim to make this the best local paper in Jasper in Jasper county.

A fight occurred last Thursday evening between two of our town boys which resulted in one of the combatants carrying a trophy in the shape of a black eye. "A soft answer turneth away wrath." If a man says you are a liar, answer him kindly: "Be you are," and see his wrath will disappear.

"Artful Dodger," your little local concerning somebody making love to the School Girls, coming from any other source would have been appreciated by all, but first "pick the beam out of your own eye." Again, the teachers are competent to manage their school affairs. Were it not that we know that you take a little interest in all the females we would feel that you were stepping aside from the established manner of reporting for a county paper. School Girl.

She was one of Rensselaer's fairest daughters. Did you not notice her at the Masquerade? Did you not notice that nervous distrustful look, as she danced with quick unsteady step, the black dot left her cheek. The once sparkling eyes were dull and spiritless. The once steady dimpled hand had a nervous twitch which bespoke something wrong. What had wrought this wondrous change? Had she been crossed in love, or had she heard the cry of fire? Can this be it? Ah, no! She was sensible of a garment slowly but surely coming off and she was watching for an open doorway.

The following is the programme for the monthly meeting of the Jasper County Temperance Union which meets at the Christian Church on the evening of March 3d.

Lost.—A small boy about the size of a man, bare-footed with his father's shoes on, had an empty bag on his back containing two railroad trunks and a bundle of bangles. He wore a mutton-chop coat with a bean soup lining. Was crossed-eyed at the back of his neck and had his hair cut curly. He was born before his elder brother. When last seen he was shoeing wind off the Court House in order to raise money enough to visit the play entitled "Nick of the Woods" to be given at Starr's Hall on Saturday March 1st, 79. His Aunt Peter would deem it a favor to hear of his whereabouts, knowing that if he misses this rare treat that he may never have an opportunity to see the police portrayed by-home talent again. Having heard from dead and dumb persons that this is the finest play upon the American "boards." Anyone who will furnish information concerning this child (he has black whiskers) will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law. Admission 25 cents. Reserved seats 50 cents.

Job work neatly done at this office.

Our merchants report business fair.

Rev. Gilbert Small will preach in the Presbyterian church on the 9th of March. Subject: Morning, "What is man." Evening, "The foolish son."

Our young friend Clark Price is confined to his bed by sickness. At this writing he is better and will probably be on his "legs" in a few days.

A Petition to the Commissioners is being circulated for the temporary relief of a worthy family in this burg. It is well. Let us look, there may be others needy.

Hayes has nominated Judge Butler of Chester county for U. S. district judge, successor to Judge Caldwell, deceased. Also Pinchback as revenue agent in Louisiana.

Persons contemplating a trip to Leadville will do well to lay in a good supply of the needful in the shape of specie, quinine, etc. When are you going? But oh how sad you will be when the gentle zephyrs waft over snow-capped mountains the gentle strain of "Home, sweet home."

An Exchange says the origin of newspapers is ascribed to the Italians. In 1563, during the war between the Venetians and the Turks, military and commercial news was written on sheets of paper, which were then publicly read in a certain place. To hear this reading a coin called a Gazzetta was paid by each person, and soon the name was by degrees transferred to the paper itself.

In Memoriam.

Mrs. Ann Spitzer died of acute bronchitis at her residence near Montrose, at 9:30 o'clock a. m., January 29th, 1879, aged 67 years 10 months and four days. Mrs. Spitzer was sick only one week, and although dangerous from the beginning, she retained her consciousness up to within an hour of her death. She was born in Luray, Page county, Virginia, (the city containing the newly discovered cave), being the oldest daughter of D. and B. Varner. She united with the Baptist church early in her life, of which denomination she proved to be a life-long member, and was baptized by Elder N. C. Borton on the 13th of July, 1832. On the 16th of September, 1833, she was married to Wesley Spitzer, by whom she had ten children, of whom five died in infancy, and five are yet living. She was for many years a resident of Indiana, where her exemplary habits and amiable nature drew to her a host of friends; and in 1865, together with her husband and family removed to Effingham, and after a few years' residence here, to Montrose. Here, as in Indiana, her many admirable and winning qualities of head and heart attracted to her another large circle of friends, who attended her funeral to pay her memory their last tribute of respect. She was a kind and loving mother, a faithful and devoted wife, who possessed great generosity of heart, no one ever going away from her door empty-handed. Mrs. Spitzer adhered conscientiously to her religious belief, and always practiced the religious precepts that she professed. She always leaned on the merits of Christ, whom she claimed as her savior and redeemer—of whom she would often beg for grace to sustain her in her trials. She was beloved by all who knew her, and by her death our village and community lose an estimable woman, whose place will not be easily filled.

A FRIEND.

—Effingham Democrat

The readers of the SENTINEL will recognize the name of Mrs. Spitzer and remember her as being one of the early settlers of Jasper county.

The above is a true representation of the character of Mrs. Spitzer and it is with regret that we chronicle the fact of the death of one of honor and esteem. All must die, but the noble spirit that lived such a life as hers cannot die.

"These shall resist the empire of decay."

When time is over and worlds have passed away.

Cold in the dust the perished heart may lie.

But that which warmed it once can never die."

It is a fact well established by unquestionable testimony that Hall's hair renewer renews, cleanses, brightens, invigorates and restores to its original color and lustre, faded gray or discolored hair, cheaply, quickly and surely. The poorest people prefer to try it and use it, rather than to proclaim in a manner more forcible than words can declare, through blanching locks or grizzled beard, that they are aged and passing to decay. A very short trial will convince the most skeptical that it does eradicate the scalp disease which robs the hair of its color and life.—Fort Scott daily monitor.

Our market report is carefully revised each week and can be relied upon as being correct.

A number of Remington parties were in attendance at the masquerade ball last Friday evening.

There is no controversy in the minds of honorable men with regard to the complete vindication of Gov. Allen before the Potter committee. It was clear, emphatic and triumphant. So far as adding votes or designing with returning voters is concerned, the pressure was pure and absolutely no connection whatever. Such is the verdict, and it is as invariable as the everlasting hills. But does all this settle Mr. Tilden to be re-nominated as the presidential candidate of the Democratic party in the year 1880? It is said that there is "a divinity which shapes our ends, rough-hew them how we will." And accepting this maxim of life as correct, it is not difficult to see that Mr. Tilden, for considerations that ought not to meet with approval, placed himself in conflict with the divinity that was shaping events, and triumphed. The American people, by a popular majority of more than a quarter of a million of votes, crowned him with more than royal prerogatives. Selecting him from a population of more than forty millions of people, they placed upon his brow a crown of glory and hailed him as the rightful ruler. Caesar nor Napoleon were ever the recipients of such an honor. No triumph upon battle fields was ever so grand. It was achieved by the ballot which "Comes down as still."

As snowflakes fall upon the sod, Yet execute the freeman's will.

As lightning do the will of God, And smite the tyrant's head.

As the sun melts the snow, and the president elect with perils, involving imprisonment, exile or death, these dangers only made the obligations to obey the supreme will of freeman more imperative. Providence has thus provided a good place for the brave to die; and life prolonged by the sacrifice of principle or duty becomes a loathsome thing. Had Samuel J. Tilden, in the majority of the rights conferred upon him by the American people, told U. S. Grant, the drunken despot, the bribe-taking and thief-patronizing president, that he would be president or a traitor's despotism would have been the result upon the ruins of the Republic he would, whatever else might have happened, have earned for himself a fame as bright and as undying as the stars, and Heaven, in token of its appreciation, would have placed him in the front ranks of the brave. But Mr. Tilden failed to take the tide at its flood, which would have borne him on to immortality as one of the grandest figures ever moulded by God's hand, and as a consequence the will of the American people was dishonored, liberty imperiled, the most sacred rights of the people abrogated, and fraud enthroned. It is not likely to be forgotten in next coming years that the president to be with some enemy to the institutions of the country, that made it possible in 1876 to beat down truth with perjury, and self and power committed crimes which defy imagination. Under such circumstances, the supreme demand will be for a presidential standard-bearer whose courage will be equal to the royal commission which the people will confer.—Indianapolis Sentinel.

The Indianapolis Sentinel in memory to George Washington says: "We do not care to refer particularly to his childhood, early education and manhood, though these are subjects well worthy of the people as indicating the proper foundation for American character. It is sufficient to say that he was trained by a noble mother to habits of industry, frugality and truthfulness, from which in after life he never departed. Viewed from any and from every way possible, he was as near perfect as is vouchsafed to mortals; and in the midst of all the great men of earth that time and circumstances have contributed to make immortal, George Washington stands, and will forever remain, in the foreground of them all. On this national holiday, when in all lands the name of Washington will be spoken with profound reverence, it is well that we can introduce the testimony of one of the world's most brilliant orators, Charles Phillips, who, many years ago, at a public dinner given on Dutch island, in the lake of Killarney, in honor of Mr. Payne, a young American, proposed as a toast, 'The Immortal Memory of George Washington,' and said: 'No people can claim, no country appropriate him. The boon of providence, to the human race, his fame is eternity, and his residence creation. Though it was the defeat of our arms and the disgrace of our policy, almost bless the convulsion in which he had his origin. If the heavens descended, and the earth rocked, yet, when the storm passed, how pure was the climate that it cleared; how bright in the brow of the firmament was the planets which it revealed to us.' In the production of Washington it does really appear as if nature was endeavoring to improve upon herself, and that all the virtues of the ancient world were but so many studies preparatory to the parrot of the new individual instance no doubt there were, splendid exemplifications of some single qualification. Caesar was merciful, Scipio was content, Hannibal was patient, but it was reserved for Washington to blend them all in one, and like the lovely child of the Grecian artist, to exhibit in one glow of association, the pride of every model and the perfection of every master. As a general, he marshaled into a veteran, and supplied by discipline the absence of experience; as a statesman, he enlarged the policy of the cabinet into the most comprehensive system of general advantage and such was the wisdom of his views, and the philosophy of his councils, that to the soldier and the statesman he almost added the character of the sage. A conqueror, he was untaught by the crime of blood; a revolutionist, he was free from any stain of treason; and his country called him to the command. Liberty unsheathed his sword; necessity stained, victory returned it. If he had stopped here, history might have doctored with rights and credits of James Tanner, and whose the nation has been returned to find. Now we are to notice said defendant James Tanner, that on Tuesday, the 4th day of March, A. D. 1879, at 2 o'clock, he was taken into custody and detained in the jail of Jasper county, Indiana, according to law. JAMES W. McCLARY, Attorney at Law, Jasper, Ind.
