

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 7, 1879.

Out with your handkerchiefs! The Frau will not consent to a second term.

Count Schouloff is reported ill and it is feared he will Schouloff this mortal coil.

A Temperance meeting will be held at the Court House to-morrow (Saturday) evening, November 8th.

The official vote in California on Chinese immigration is 883 in favor, and 154,638 against allowing them to settle in that State.

The Cincinnati Commercial says Morton and Chandler "were such allies." Why didn't it include Pharaoh, too?

There is no end to the opposition of the rebels to ex-rebel Brigadiers, and in Ohio, at the recent election they expressed equal hostility to Federal Brigadiers.

The election in New York proves that State to be Democratic by a handsome majority, when no dissensions exist in the ranks of the grand old party. A Democratic President next year with no interference from an electoral commission. Mark that!

Prof. Tice says that on the night of November 13th, 1879, we are to have the most brilliant meteoric display had since 1833, when to all intents and purposes the sky literally rained fire. The display will not commence until 10 o'clock in the morning, but the Professor says the magnitude of the display will more than compensate for the loss of sleep.

The radicals of Indiana intend to colonize negroes in the State, to put the balance of power in the hands, and by that means seek to carry the next elections. Wherever this element is brought in competition with white labor it should have the effect of making two votes against every one so imported. And it will if the white laboring men of the country will watch and defend their interests.

On Sunday, October 26, 1879, Hon. James Burns, well known to many citizens of this and adjoining counties, died at his home, in Lewistown, Pennsylvania, in the 78th year of his age. He was for many years a leading, active and influential Democrat. He began life as a laborer, but acquired considerable wealth, and not forgetting the cares of his early struggles, he was liberal to a fault and ever ready to extend a helping hand to those he thought deserving.

The radical press make no reference to the murder of Judge Hayden at Grand Rapids, Michigan. Hayden was a prominent, active, influential Democrat, therefore decidedly obnoxious to the radical ring. Cochran, a member of the ring, discharged a load of buckshot into the body of Hayden, killing him instantly. Had the Judge been a radical capitalist, he would have been killed by a southerner under the most justifiable circumstances, the radical supplement would flood the country with distorted statements of the outrage.

History repeats itself. Forty-three years before the Christian era, in the Roman empire, there was the Caesar "boom," which reminds one of the "booms" of to-day, started by the ring thieves and pets of Grant, who would make him the Caesar of the nineteenth century. Statesmen and patriots like Washington and Jackson would not lend themselves to the schemes of partisan capitalists as does Grant to-day. Only our Caesars submit to being deified, declared a demi god, and yield to the enslavement of the people.

On the night he died, Zach. Chandler delivered one of his "blood letting" sectional partisan speeches in Chicago. In strong contrast was his remarks compared with those of the representative men of the South, who were the subjects of his bitter denunciations. In that speech, he declared, at the close of his remarks, "We ain't a-going to die yet; we have made other arrangements." What those arrangements were he failed to state, but in the sequel one thing is evident and revealed, and that is—Man proposes, but God disposes."

An old soldier of Meagher's Irish brigade writes to the Chicago Times to say: "In your editorial of yesterday you seemed to doubt the fact of Gen. Hancock having been wounded. Permit me to say Gen. Hancock received a severe wound in the groin at the battle of Ream's Station, August, 1864—one of Grant's movements to capture and break up the Weldon railroad." The Washington Herald adds: "This old soldier seems to forget that Gen. Hancock was also severely wounded at Gettysburg on the 3d of July, 1863, when his corps sustained the brunt of the Confederate attack. He refused to leave the field, however, although earnestly urged to do so, but remained reclining under a tree coolly giving orders to his troops until the final assault of the enemy had been repulsed. That's what kind of a soldier Gen. Winfield S. Hancock is."

Aside from being frequently shot in the neck by a bullet, and the friends of the "traveling boom" name the battle in which he received a wound? Grant certainly took precious good care of his carcass. And to day in his exhibitions he presents an unscarred skin. We suggest that when his present managers have made the tour of the principal cities with him, Baraun engage him to travel with his "greatest show on earth."

Doc. Wirt is having a good rush of work.

A man was boasting that he had an elevator in his house. "So he has," chimed in his wife, "and he keeps it in the cupboard in a bottle."

The "Rowland Hughes" was dithered at the gravel pit, Pittsburg, yesterday, delaying arrival of train at this point to about 12 o'clock last night.

THAT WOOD.—Quite a number of our friends have promised us wood on account of subscription. Please bring it right along. We need it now.

Miss Fannie B. Walton, a former Rensselaer belle, was recently married to Billy Teagarden, at Minneola, Texas. She has the kind wishes of many friends.

Ira W. Yeoman, Esq., of Goodland, and Wiley H. Pierce, Esq., of Remington, are attending to interests of clients this week. Both gentlemen made us a call.

T. M. Jones will go to Chicago next week and purchase his supply of fall and winter goods, comprising an extensive and varied assortment of overcoats and suitings, etc. Don't purchase suits until he returns and you have had an opportunity to examine his stock.

Ezra C. Novels was duly installed in the Auditor's office on Monday last. He is a gentleman of fine abilities, an accommodating, efficient, faithful and acceptable Auditor. H. A. Barkley, having discharged his duties of the office during the past four years with efficiency and fidelity retires with the commendation and good wishes of all.

The Messrs Dwiggins of this place have made the necessary arrangements to establish a branch bank at Oxford, Benton county. "Zim" went to Chicago last Monday to purchase a safe for the new institution. They are accommodating, clever gentlemen, and the house at Oxford, under their management will prove a valuable acquisition to that town.

Many persons are puzzled to understand what the terms "fourpenny," "sixpenny" and "tenpenny" mean as applied to nails. "Fourpenny" means four pounds to the thousand nails; "sixpenny" means six pounds to the thousand, and so on. It is an old English term, and meant at first "ten pound" nails (the thousand being understood) but the old English clipped it to "tenpenny" and from that it degenerated into "penny" was substituted for "pound." When a thousand nails weigh less than a pound they are called tacks, brads, etc., and are reckoned by ounces.

WHAT AN OLD MAN HAS NOTICED.

I have noticed that all men are honest when well watched.

I have noticed that purses will hold pennies as well as pounds.

I have noticed that in order to be a reasonable creature it is necessary at times to be downright mad.

I have noticed when the purse is empty and the kitchen cold, then is the voice of flattery no longer heard.

I have noticed that silks, broad-cloths and jewels are often bought with other people's money.

I have noticed that whatever is right, with a few exceptions—the left eye, the left leg and the left side of a plum pudding. I have noticed that the prayer of the selfish man is, "Forgive us our debts," while he makes everybody that owes him pay to the utmost farthing.

I have noticed that he who thinks every man a rogue, is certain to see one when he slanders himself, and he ought, in mercy to see his neighbors, to surrender the recent to justice.

I have noticed that money is the fool's wisdom, the knave's reputation, the poor man's desire, the covetous man's ambition, and the flint of them all.

"The Night." Two lovers lean upon the gate.

A pleading scream from her the wailing rent.

It was, as you infer, her life-blood.

The lover sought to soothe—

Alas! too late.

He is hoisted with a boot beyond the gate.

"Mamma, can't we have anything we want?" "Yes, my dear, if you be careful and don't want anything you can't have."

"Do you drink?" asked a lady of a peddler. He dropped his pack, and remarked: "Yell, I shust as lieve drink mit you as any odder mans."

When Caleb Cushing was Minister to China he had his visiting cards printed in the Chinese style, on long strips of red paper, with his name, "Ku-Shung."

It was an unfortunate mistake of the compositor to put under the head line, "Reduction in the Price of Gas," the statement that "Mr. —" receives only $50 for a lecture now, instead of $100, as formerly.

Soft-Soap.—Twenty pounds of pure grease to 14 pounds of potash will make a clean fish-barrel full; dissolve it in water in a brass kettle over the fire; put the grease in the barrel; first pour the solution of potash over the grease, and stir it with a stick; let it stand 24 hours, then pour a pail of cold water in the barrel, and stir it thoroughly; let it stand 12 hours, and as it thickens add a pail of cold water and stir again, and add water every 12 hours and stir until the barrel is full. In cold weather use warm water. Be particular to have the barrel tight, as ice will leak through where water will not. A barrel will not answer more than twice, as the ice destroys it.

Fever and Ague. It will be useful for poor people, and those in the country, away from the drug stores and doctors, to know, on the authority of Dr. Beach, the noted botanic doctor, that a strong infusion of yarrow (white tansy) and boneset is a good substitute for quinine in fever and ague, or other malarious complaints. The plants should be gathered when in flower, and a double handful of each steeped in one quart of boiling water and drank freely three or four times a day. The prescription was given by Dominick Van Saxon, a well-known missionary in China for thirty years, who studied medicine and the properties of herbs before going out, as most valuable for usefulness among the poor.

AN INVITATION TO INDIANA SOLDIERS.

Those desiring to be present will please call a meeting of ex-soldiers and appoint a committee of three or more to ascertain how many will attend, and the chairman of this committee will please report to the secretary of the committee at Indianapolis, so that arrangements may be made for their reception.

Celery a Cure for Rheumatism.

He who has suffered from this terrible disease will feel somewhat doubtful if there can be any sure cure for it. But physicians are speaking very strongly of the use of celery as beneficial; and some of the English purveyors assure us that they have good medical authority for affirming that it is a certain cure if used properly. To be efficacious it must be cooked, not eaten raw, as is the usual custom. If taken uncooked, although a delightful addition to any meal, its curative qualities are never developed, and it is because it is so seldom cooked that its remarkable effect on such complaints has not been perceived. The celery should be cut into small pieces and boiled in a little water until soft, and the water should be used as a drink. Add sweet milk (new milk if it is to be had) to the cooked celery. After the water has been drained off, thicken it with a little flour and nutmeg, or add some tomatoes; let it boil up till all are incorporated, and serve hot on toast. A physician (in England, we think) says that he has many times put his rheumatic patients upon such a diet and with unfailing success. Within the year we have often been treated with cooked celery, and find it excellent, and if found to be a cure for one of life's greatest enemies, it will stand out prominently above all other roots.

When a finger pricks as though there was a thorn in it, and throbs intolerably when held downward, and yet there is no external sign of mischief, the probabilities are that a felon is in prospect, says an exchange. Go at once to the butcher's and procure some of the spinal marrow of a beef creature. Take a piece, say about two inches in length, and having cut it open lengthwise, wrap it around the afflicted finger, covering, of course, with cloth. In a few hours change the piece for a new one, and continue to keep the finger so encased until all pain has ceased and there is no discomfort when the marrow is removed. The finger will look strangely swollen and porous, but the cure is complete. It is vastly better than the surgeon's knife and more effectual.

The Constitutional Amendments.

Seven important amendments to the Constitution of Indiana have been agreed to by a majority of the members elected to each of the two Houses of the General Assembly of 1877 and 1879, and by an act of the last General Assembly, approved March 10, 1877, these said amendments are to be submitted to the electors of the State of Indiana for ratification or rejection, at an election to be held on the first Monday in April, 1880. The law providing for the submission of these amendments to the electors of the State enacts that "the secretary of State shall procure ballots of blue paper, on each of which shall be printed the proposed amendments, and below each amendment shall be printed the word 'Yes' in one line, and in another line the word 'No'; that any qualified elector may vote for or against any amendment by depositing one of said ballots in the ballot box. If he intends to vote for any amendment he shall leave thereunder the word 'Yes,' and erase the word 'No' by drawing a line across it, or otherwise. If he intends to vote against any amendment, the word 'Yes' shall in like manner be stricken out and the word 'No' left; and if both words are allowed to remain without either of them being so erased, the vote shall not be counted either way. These amendments are designated by numbers, and are numbered 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6 and 7, numbers 7 and 8 having failed to receive a majority of votes of both branches of the last General Assembly.
