MEMORABLE WORDS.

Lincoln's Opinion of Hancock. "Some of the other generals have said to me that he is rash, and I have said to them that I have watched General Hancock's conduct very carefully, and I have found that when he goes into action he achieves his purpose and comes out with a smaller list of casualties than any of them. If General Hancock is defeated, I believe it will be one of the most distinguished men of the age."

And to show how much he thought of him Mr. Lincoln declared that he always opened his morning's mail and despatches in fear and trembling lest they would contain information that Gen Hancock had been killed or wounded.

The Hancock and English club will meet at the Court House next Monday evening. Let all attend.

Hon. D. W. Voorhees, of Indiana, and Hon. B. Gratz Brown, of Missouri, are announced to address the people at Monticello, September 10th.

A writer in the New York Sun says: "I have 150 men employed in my shop, and at the last Presidential election 125 of them voted for Hayes and were Republicans. Saturday they took a vote which showed 120 Hancock men among them."

Hon. Frank Landers, next Governor of the State of Indiana, is announced to address the people of Jasper and adjoining counties at Rensselaer, September 28th, and the radical candidate for governor is challenged to joint discussion.

"Consider what Lee and Jackson would do were they alive. These are the principles for which they fought four years. Remember the men who poured forth their blood on Virginia's soil, and do not abandon them now."—Wade Hampton.

The above has appeared in about all the radical papers, and Hanna and Dice sought to impose it upon their audience at this place. Wade Hampton now comes to the front and pronounces it a forgery; that he neither used the words attributed to him, nor anything approaching them in meaning.

General W. S. Rosecrans who is in San Francisco, writes to the Democratic National Committee, giving a cheering account of the outlook, and says: "We organized a Hancock legion some two weeks ago. I think we shall organize at least 5,000 strong in the city, and probably 10,000 in the State. The nomination places the workingmen, who are uniting with the Democrats, and in fact it appears more like a popular uprising than anything ever known on this coast. We are desirous of perpetuating its effects by getting the best brain and energies of the country so enlisted that we shall create a new Democracy."

William E., better known as "Billie" Chandler, Blaine's manager at Chicago, is also upon record against Garfield—when the "last dream of mankind" had not contemplated Garfield as a candidate for President. In the Concord (N. H.) Monitor, February 20, 1873, Mr. Chandler said:

"The republican party cannot and will not take upon itself the sins of Colfax, or Patterson, or Ames, or Kelley, or Garfield. Rather, it will be true to its mission, and place the seal of condemnation upon them all."

Well, "Billie" Chandler is now in company with Poland and Banks, the New York Tribune and Times, and the rest of the corruptionists in demanding that the "republican party" shall take upon itself the sins of the whole crowd, Garfield included, as he was in his condemnation.

What atonement has Garfield made for these "sins"? How has he shriveled himself? Has he braved and perjured become a virtue since then, and ceased to be "sins"?

The Chicago convention, in its haste to get shut of Grant, adopted Garfield, took upon the republican party these "sins" and "Billie," and the "rest of us" haven't virtue enough to stand by themselves, let alone by the country, which would be shamed by the election of Garfield. That's the whole story. The "republican party" does not seem to be "placing the seal of condemnation upon them all" very much, does it, Mr. Chandler?

"THE SUPERB."

Hancock from Contreras to Gettysburg.

Terre Haute Gazette, August 16.—Judge A. B. Carlton spoke to a large audience in Greencastle on last Saturday. He spoke about an hour and a half, and was listened to with the closest attention. After discussing the political questions of the day, he paid a high compliment to Wm. H. English, whom he had known personally for more than a quarter of a century. Referring to General Hancock, and the manner in which some of the Republican newspapers have attempted to depreciate him by insinuations that he was "ill-Gen. Scott—all fuss and feathers—and chiefly remarkable on dress parade," the speaker pronounced a eulogy upon Gen. Hancock as a military man. He said, substantially: Talk about "Sunday soldiers" and "carpet knights," and fuss-and-feathers! Talk about Hancock being only remarkable on "dress parade"! It is not so recorded on the pages of his country's history, from Contreras, Churubusco and Molino del Rey, on the plains of Mexico, to Gettysburg, the Wilderness, Cold Harbor, and those other world-renowned battles of the Rebellion. True, that on dress parade he was a magnificent-looking man—as magnificent was Marshal Ney or the white-plumed Henry of Navarre. But, in the shock of battle, he was always at the post of duty and of danger. He was not "on dress parade" in those great battles of the war, that are familiar as household words, where blood flowed free as a gushing torrent. He was not a "carpet knight" at Yorktown, Malvern Hill, Antietam, Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville, Gettysburg, the Wilderness, Spottsylvania, North Anna, and those other great battles of the war in which he won, by hard fighting, the name of "Hancock, the Superb." Gettysburg! Hancock! So long as courage, manhood and patriotism are honored and revered among men, will Gettysburg and Hancock, linked together in immortal fame, go sounding down the corridors of time!

The third of July, 1863! The arena was Gettysburg. The amphitheater was the whole Union of 40,000,000 of people watching with bated breath the greatest battle that had ever met on the continent. For two days the Union army had been driven back, and its line doubled up like an ex-bow. Gen. Reynolds had fallen, and "Hancock, the Superb," was ordered to take the chief command on the field. How nobly and well he did his duty, all the world knows and all the world wonders. In that awful crisis—in those dreadful hours of doubt and anxiety, when the hopes of the Rebellion and the fate of the Union hung in a doubtful balance, Hancock and his brave men snatched victory from the jaws of defeat, and the country was saved. But let us look at this "Dress Parade Hancock" just before that renowned charge and repulse. On the night before the 3d of July he had reconstructed the line of the Union army which had been broken in many places. On the third day the battle was reopened by the Confederates with an artillery attack of two hours—and a-half with 100 cannon. Hancock knew what that meant. He knew that it was the prelude to a charge all along the line from the Confederates. Then it was that the Superb Hancock went on "dress parade"! Amid this storm of balls and shells and death-shots falling thick and fast as lightnings from the mountain cloud, Hancock rode up and down in front of his lines, for two miles, inspiring confidence in his troops and preparing them for the charge that he knew was coming. Finally the dreadful shock came. Eighteen thousand Confederates under Longstreet, the flower of Lee's army, were hurled against Hancock's line. But the gallant charge was gallantly repulsed, and the red field was won, by the "dress parade" Hancock, who fell in the forefront of the battle desperately wounded, reddening the green sward of his native State with the rich and noble blood as was ever shed on battle-field.

This just compliment was received by the audience with great satisfaction and applause.

LOOK FOR IT.

The Great Van Amburgh Show.

This monster institution, the most extensive combined circus and menagerie now traveling in this country, will exhibit in Rensselaer on Tuesday next, August 31st. Two performances will be given, the first at 2 p. m., and the second at 8 p. m., of each day. The doors will open one hour before the performance commences. As a menagerie, it contains more and rarer animals than any like institution. Large and attractive as it always has been, the show now is more extensive than ever heretofore.

The Great Behemoth of Holy Writ, the wonderful living nondescript, from the Nile, and the largest elephant ever imported into America, are among the curiosities of the menagerie; in addition to which will be found over five hundred other wild beasts, birds, and reptiles, which have been captured in the jungles of the Eastern world, many of which will be exhibited for the first time this season by the Great Van Amburgh Golden Menagerie and Frost's Roman Circus. In the circus department of this gigantic institution will be seen the most extensive troupe of equestrians, gymnasts, acrobats and athletes that has ever entered the magic ring of a circus at one time. The manager of this great consolidated show has declared in all of his advertisements that this show is the "showing glory of his 35 years of menagerial experience." That the great show will be liberally patronized, is placed beyond a doubt. It is immense in all its departments. Remember the show will exhibit here next Tuesday.

THE GREAT VAN AMBURGH.

Who has not heard of the Great Van Amburgh Company's Monster Menagerie and Circus? No one, we venture to say. Well, the stupendous show will visit us next Tuesday. Read the advertisement.

CERTIFICATES OF HONOR.

The certificates of honor to which those pupils who have lost no time at school for the last year are entitled are ready. They will be distributed on Friday the 3d day of September. The Jasper County Teacher's Association will then be in session and all teachers should if possible be present.

B. B. NOWELS, Co. Supt.

At the meeting of the Blue Ribbon Club of this county, held on last Friday evening, the following preamble and resolution were passed without a dissenting voice.

WHEREAS, the Board of Directors of the Tippecanoe County Agricultural Association have for the consideration of $1,000 granted a permit for the sale of malt liquors on the Fair Grounds during the forthcoming Fair, against which act the friends of Temperance entered their urgent protest, without avail.

Therefore Resolved, That we the members of the Blue Ribbon Club of Jasper County, Indiana, will not, by our presence or otherwise, contribute to the success of the Tippecanoe County Agricultural Fair, so long as the sale of intoxicating drinks is licensed on the Fair Grounds during the time of Fair.

This is as it should be. By their fruits shall ye know them.

THE MODERN MASTODON COMING.

A Monster Show.

The Great Van Amburgh's Golden Menagerie and Frost's Roman Circus and Colosseum will exhibit in Rensselaer next Tuesday, August 31st. Without a doubt this is the largest consolidated show now traveling. It has been before the people of this country for over fifty years, and for thirty-five consecutive years under the management of Mr. Hyatt Frost. In this stupendous aggregation will be found 22 cages of wild animals, birds and reptiles—comprising a rare collection of over 500 living curiosities. Besides these cages, the show has the largest elephant in this country; the only two-horned Rhinoceros in America, a herd of camels. A circus company composed of over 40 of the principal equestrians, acrobats and athletes in the profession. The number of horses employed in transporting this huge institution is 180, and the number of men, women and children (including performers) is 165. The great Van Amburgh show has always been one of the leading institutions of this country, and we are assured that the combined menagerie and circus this season is far superior to all former ones. That the great show will meet with liberal patronage in Rensselaer, will not admit of a doubt. It is meritorious as an exhibition, and its reputation for uprightness and honest dealings with citizens, has gained for it a name most enviable. Remember, the show will be here next Tuesday, August 31st.
