THE IRISH.

The Irish Convention, to merge the Land into the National League, opened in Philadelphia, Pa., on Wednesday, April 23. It was largely attended, and the personal of the convention favorably impressed the on-lookers. An organization was formed by an election of the following officers: President, James A. Mooney, of Buffalo, President of the Irish Land League of the United States; Secretary, J. J. Ryan, of Buffalo, Secretary of the Irish Land League of the United States; Assistant Secretaries, William F. Chesley, of Buffalo, and J. D. O'Connell, of Washington. President Mooney delivered a lengthy address, and was received with a warm applause. There were twenty-five female delegates in the meeting, and Mrs. Farnell occupied a position of honor on the stage. Secretary Ryan reported that the Irish Land League had been re-elected in the United States and Canada. After a somewhat lengthy debate, during which there was considerable confusion, a resolution for the appointment of a member from each delegation to the meeting of the Land League into the National League was adopted. The United States National League was then elected, and the Irish Land League of the United States was re-elected. The Irish Land League of the United States was then elected, and the Irish Land League of the United States was re-elected.

The question of issuing 4-cent postage stamps is being considered at Washington. President Arthur arrived in Washington on Sunday, April 22, from his Southern excursion, showing little trace of the fatigue which he had experienced on board the Pullman, at Savannah. The Trustees of the Garfield Memorial Hospital fund have at last purchased a site. It is a tract consisting of several acres of the ridge north of the city. It is very near to that portion of the ridge which the committee had selected for a plan for the memorial. The trustees of the hospital fund have at last purchased a site. Hotel Life in Japan.

How Travelers are Accommodated in the Flowery Kingdom.

Life in a Japanese hotel is a revelation of carelessness one would have to travel far to duplicate. The construction of the house is responsible for much of this, for every room is entered from a corridor open to the sunlight and general use of the sliding paper screen when in position admitting all the light that ground glass would give.

The occupants are served with their meals in their rooms, each person of the house being given a separate room during the day or evening. An order given for a meal to be served, is filled immediately. A clasp of the hands summons a maid to attend to you, and that without delay. The maid's floor is the sofa to lounge upon, there being provided a cotton or silk-quilted cushion for the use of each person.

During the day it is very rare to find the guests closed at the front of the room, occupied by visitors. The interior of every department is as open as it is to the uses of the occupant.
