Arheatfield	73
Arperter	517
Arroy	55
Arnon	123

 Making the aggregate number 2469 in the entire County according to said enumeration and return.

Witness my hand and the seal of the Board of Commissioners of Jasper County, Indiana, this 16th day of July, 1883.

EZRA C. NOWELS, Auditor
Jasper County, Indiana.
July 20, 1883.—2t.

DELINQUENT TAX-PAYERS

All find it to their interest to pay their Tax before the Collector starts for that will add cost that will have to be paid by the parties owing. "A hint to the wise is sufficient."
M. B. ALTER, Treasurer.

Mr. W. H. HOFFMAN, of Winamac, agent for the White Bronze Monuments and Statuary, manufactured by the Detroit Bronze Company, of Detroit Michigan, was in Rensselaer during the week exhibiting specimens. This work will not crack,umble, or become moss grown, but guaranteed to retain its original color, and is cheaper than any other monumental material.

Mr. W. A. Wilson, Richmond, Wayne Co. was troubled with Dyspepsia, heartburn, &c. Broyn's Iron Bitters gave a permanent cure.

Hon. R. S. Dwiggins has returned much improved by his trip.

A boy at Ed. Parcells'. Weight 10.

A new gentleman boarder in the family of Frank B. Meyer. Weight 9 pounds.

Miss Amanda W. Osborne returned last Wednesday evening from Whitehall, Michigan, where she has been spending vacation.

There is to be a "wedding in high life" in Rensselaer, certain and sure, within a very short time. We refrain from mentioning names.

Miss Adda D. Hopkins returned from Hammond where she has been visiting the family of Mr. Thomas Boroughs.

George Edgar Marshall, editor of the Rensselaer Republican, and standing candidate for matrimony, is taking in the Louisville Exposition.

Oliver Daugherty has entered the Valparaiso Normal.

Secretary Nowels one day last week thoroughly posted the Town of Remington by distributing Premium Lists in all the business houses and posting bills wherever any one would be likely to see them, and we understand it is the intention of the Society to advertise in like manner in the Towns of Goodland, Wolcott, Reynolds, Monticello, Monon, Francesville, Medaryville, San Pierre, Kouts, Hebron, Crown Point, Lowell, Rose Lawn, Mommene, Mount Airy and Morocco. That is the way to advertise, and it will surely bring out immense throngs of people to the Fair.

WHEATFIELD ITEMS.

Rev. Stridger preached at the VanPatten School House last Sunday.

Benjamin VanWicklin and wife were out at Wheatfield prospecting for a suitable site for a restaurant and hotel.

John Grube's barn was burned last week. It is supposed to have been accidentally set on fire by some children. Fortunately no horses were lost. Estimated loss $175.

Rev. Miller will preach at Wheatfield School House August 19, 1883, at 10 o'clock a. m.

E. W. Phelps, of Lake county, is putting up hay in this township.

We are happy to announce the arrival of Professors S. D. Clark and J. F. Brown from the Valparaiso Normal.

The location of the depot at Wheatfield has been changed. It will be erected at a point one hundred and fifty feet from the crossing, instead of six hundred and sixty feet.

The Wheatfield mansion has not yet been stocked up. The carpenters are not yet done work.

"YOUNG AMERICA."

They will save hundreds of dollars in doctor's bills every year.—Sold at fifty cents a bottle by F. B. Leaming.

The Pewter Age in New England.

In the early New England days wooden ware was in far more common use than would be supposed, and a handsome set of pewter was an enviable possession. As for china, any amount of that beloved unsual prosperity. There was very little money in the farming districts of New England for many years and numerous persons live in vastly more comfortable fashion now on the same land which gave their ancestors a bare living fifty years ago. We can have no idea what a serious thing it was in the last century, or early in this present one, to undertake any new expense; for instance, sending a boy to college. To raise an extra two or three hundred a year meant that the men and women both should drudge early and late and deny themselves most cruelly. Any one who looks closely at the signs that are left us of the pewter-plate age in Massachusetts will find much that is interesting, and he may discover in the fields the nameless graves of many a hero and heroine, unmarked except by a rough lichened stone gathered from the abundant harvest of the soil. The building of so many mills and the rapid growth of the manufacturing villages have afforded better markets; and beside the money that the young people have earned and brought home, the income of the farms has been made larger year by year, and the farm houses and the way of living in them have steadily grown more comfortable. The pewter was not all melted into bullets wherewith to fight our foes, but it is fast disappearing in other ways; the great platters were one by one gathered to their rest by the tin peddlers when pewter was high in the war-time and the little plates have been melted on the stoves by careless cooks.—Atlantic Monthly.

Mrs. Barbauld's Childhood.

One can fancy the little audacious girl, industrious, impulsive, interested in everything—in all life and all nature—drinking in, on every side, learning, eagerly wondering, listening to all around with bright and ready wit. There is a pretty little story told by Mrs. Ellis in her book about Mrs. Barbauld, how one day, when Dr. Aiken and a friend "were conversing on the passions," the doctor observes that joy cannot have place in a state of perfect felicity, since it supposes an accession of happiness. "I think you are mistaken, papa," says a little voice from the opposite side of the table. "Why so, my child?" says the doctor. "Because in the chapter I read to you this morning, in the Testament, it is said that 'there is more joy in heaven over one sinner that repenteth than over ninety and nine just persons that need no repentance.'" Besides her English Testament and her early reading, the little girl was taught by her mother to do as little daughters did in those days—to obey a somewhat austere rule, to drop curtsies in the right place, to make beds, to preserve fruits. The father, after demur, but surely not without some paternal pride in her proficiency, taught the child Latin and French and Italian, and something of Greek, and gave her an acquaintance with English literature. One can imagine little Nancy, with her fair head bending over her lessons, or, when playing-time had come, perhaps a little lonely and listening to the distant voices of the schoolboys at their games. The mother, fearing she might acquire rough and boisterous manners, strictly forbade any communication with the schoolboys. Sometimes in after days, speaking of these early times and of the constraint of many by-gone rules and regulations, Mrs. Barbauld used to attribute to this early, formal training something of the hesitation and shyness which troubled her and never entirely wore off. She does not seem to have been in any great harmony with her mother. One could imagine a fanciful and high-spirited child, timid and distrustful, and yet strong-willed, secretly rebelling against the rigid order of her house, and feeling keenly her want of liberty and companionship. It was true she had birds and beasts and plants for her playfellows, but she was of a gregarious and sociable nature, and perhaps she was unconsciously longing for something more, and feeling a want in her early life which no silent company can supply.—The Cornhill Magazine.

The Eagles of New England.

There are but two varieties of eagles found in New England—the bald eagle (Haliaeetus leucocephalus) and the golden eagle (Aquila canadensis).

Both of these birds vary much in color and markings at different ages. The bald eagle is quite dark for the first year, and is called by those not familiar with the bird, the black eagle; and later, when grayish, the gray eagle; and when in adult plumage, the white-headed eagle. The young of the golden eagle has rings about the tail, and is called by hunters the ring-tailed eagle, and later, when the golden feathers appear about the neck, the golden eagle.

There is one never-failing mark by which the bald and golden eagle can be distinguished, no matter what the color or markings. The golden eagle is always feathered to the toes. The bald eagle is feathered only down to his thighs.

The rough-legged falcon is feathered to the toes, with markings somewhat similar to the golden eagle, but the size of the two birds is so unlike that any novice need not blunder. The golden eagle is from thirty to forty inches from its beak to the tip of its tail, and from six to seven feet in alar extent. The rough-legged falcon is from nineteen to twenty-four inches in length, and from four to four and a half feet in alar extent.

It is not uncommon to read of eagles captured measuring from four to four and a half feet from tip to tip. There are no such eagles. They are simply hawks or falcons.

I once received a letter from a professional gentleman informing me that one of his neighbors had captured a fine specimen of an eagle, which I could have by calling for it. I drove sixteen miles in the worst of traveling in March to get it, and found it nothing but a rough-legged falcon.

In 1861, when writing a series of articles on our rapacious, I described a bird captured in our meadows as the Washington eagle—the bird was first described by Audubon and named by him after the immortal Washington. It is now very generally believed by ornithologists that the bird described by Audubon is not a new species, but a young, overgrown female of the bald eagle.

The young of our rapacious birds are larger than the adult birds, and the female is larger than the male. These facts were unknown to ornithologists at that time, and many new species were described which since have proved to be immature birds. No bird has been captured in the last forty years that has fully answered the description given by Audubon, and if there was such a bird, with a host of ornithologists on the alert, some one must have found it.

A Queer Invention.

A detective machine has been invented in France, but it is hardly likely to take the place of the human kind in general use. It is simply a camera, so arranged that when a suspicious person enters a bank or other room, a clerk touches a little button. Presently, a concealed camera is brought into play, the sensitive plate is exposed, and in an instant the man's photograph is taken. Or, again, the head of the house leaves his business and confides it to his clerk. Some of the clerks go to sleep, or smoke cigars, or skulk, or do other things not exactly in keeping with their calling, when there comes in a series of plates, worked by clock-work, and every action of the clerks during a series of hours is recorded. There might be even a pleasing, though compromising use of this mechanical camera. With such an instrument all the handsome women at a soiree might be photographed without their knowledge, and galleries of beauties be put up at any one's command.

All the precious stones, except opal, can be quite successfully imitated.

Uroa reptiles the fluid secreted in the head of the toad acts as a powerful irritant. On man it produces no effect beyond a slight local irritation.

"I go AGAINST my Will" murmured she sweetly, as she fondly leaned on William's arm, as they meandered to the theatre.

A CINCINNATI paper intimates that it is a bigger thing in that city to have a hotel named after you than it is to be written about in a book.

THE BEST REMEDY

FOR
Diseases of the Throat and Lungs.

In diseases of the pulmonary organs a safe and reliable remedy is invaluable. AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL is such a remedy, and so thoroughly commends itself to the confidence of the public. It is an entire combination of the most potent and efficient ingredients of the finest drugs, chemically united, of such power as to insure the greatest possible efficiency and uniformity of results. It strikes at the foundation of all pulmonary diseases, affording prompt relief and rapid cures, and is adapted to patients of any age or either sex. Being very palatable, the youngest children take it readily. It cures Croup, Whooping Cough, Sore Throat, Bronchitis, Influenza, Clergymen's Sore Throat, Asthma, Croup, and Croup, the effects of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL are magical, and multitudes are annually preserved from serious illness by its timely and faithful use. It should be kept at hand in every household for the protection it affords in sudden attacks. It Whooping-cough and Consumption there is no other remedy so efficacious, soothing, and helpful.

Low prices are inducements to try some of the many mixtures, or syrups, made of cheap and ineffective ingredients, now offered, which, as they contain no curative qualities, can afford only temporary relief, and are sure to deceive and disappoint the patient. Diseases of the throat and lungs demand active and effective treatment, and it is dangerous experimenting with unknown and cheap medicines, from the great liability that these diseases may, while so trifled with, become deeply seated or incurable. Use AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, and you may confidently expect the best results. It is a standard medical preparation, of known and acknowledged curative power, and is as cheap as its careful preparation and fine ingredients will allow. Eminent physicians, knowing its composition, prescribe it in their practice. The test of half a century has proven its absolute certainty to cure all pulmonary complaints not already beyond the reach of human aid.
