turning out incompetent officers? By making two Prisons a model? By making Tewksbury Alms House a model? Yes, why? Why, I have exposed corruption. Now, which is the man to blame, the man who does corruption, or the man who exposes the corruption? The Republican party have been murdering infants at Tewksbury for twenty yrs. They have been starving paupers for twenty years. They have been selling their bodies for twenty years. That they don't deny. They say that they have quit now. (Great laughter and applause.) They have been letting the rats eat up the dead. They have had offices of your holy religion profaned. The reverend priest has said a mummery over blocks of wood in a coffin from which the body had gone to Harvard. It is not denied. Look into the report. None of these things were denied in the report of the Legislative Committee. They were so busy abusing me for bringing out these things that they forgot to deny them. They say it has been altered since. Well, I agree I have shown a noxious sore on the body politic. I have shown what has made it. I applied the caustic and the iron and burned it out, and they say I have disgraced the State by so doing. (Tremendous applause.) I have helped her to be a State fit to live in and fit to die in by poor men without being either cut up or skinned. (Great enthusiasm.) I have made it in that regard what every man has a right to be proud of, and if I have done no more good in the world than that, I have done all that I may hope to do, and than which I can do no greater act. But I have done more than that, and I claim credit for it. I have waked up the whole country in this matter. Investigation is going on everywhere. (Tremendous applause.) But they say, "You have not used dignified language, Gen. Butler," (laughter) and then they go on to say, "Well, he don't know any better; he don't know what good language is; he was not educated at Harvard." (Laughter and applause.) After passing in review other kindred topics of his Administration, Governor Butler continued: "Now, gentlemen, I have said all and more than you have cared to hear, and much more than I had intended to say. The issue is with you. My time will not permit me to see you again. My record is before you. You have known me, man and boy. You have known me under all circumstances. I can not be advertised to you. I can not be injured by any lie or slander that may be published. Do not believe anything that you read in the newspapers about me in this campaign, because they will be lies. Newspapers are not liable now for I am up for public office, but when the campaign is over if they publish any lie about me I will try and see if there is any justice for such things. (Great applause and cheers.) Now, I say look out. I should not be surprised if the morning before the election you should hear that I had died suddenly the night before. (Laughter and applause.) Do not mind that. If you see it published on every bulletin board, keep on voting for me all the same. [Laughter and applause.] I shall turn up all in good time. [Applause.] Don't have any fear of that. And if in the providence of God I should not, it is better to vote for a dead Governor than a living nonentity.
