

The Water Lily's Story.

When I first opened my eyes to the daylight I was in a lovely place. My home was a beautiful pond, whose waters were so clear they reflected the blue sky and fleecy clouds overhead, and where everything was still and calm and quiet; I was surrounded by fair companions each as lovely as myself. We grew fairer and sweeter every day, and we thought ourselves better than the common flowers that grew on the farther side of the pond, the Daisies, the Blue Violets, Adonis Tongues, that queer fellow, Jack in the Pulpit, and the Wild Rose, who was so rude if any one touched her. Were we not tall and slender, fair and sweet of face, and did not our green dresses become our fair complexions wonderfully? Were we not admired by every one who saw us; and more than all, did not our mirror, the pond, tell us we were beautiful every time we glanced in it? Yesterday there came to our pleasant home a gay pleasure-boat with a party of ladies and gentlemen; the ladies all exclaimed, as soon as they saw us, "Oh, how sweet, how lovely!" and one, whose face was like an angel's, reached over and took me and several of my companions into the boat with them. The other ladies gathered some of my fair sisters, and we were all carried away to our new and separate homes. The lady that I and my sisters were with took us to a grand house on a hill, where we were again admired and our fragrance inhaled, and at night I shone like star in the raven tresses of my new mistress's hair in a ball-room. Her lover's hand placed me there, and as he did so, he bent and whispered something in her ear, and then kissed the rosy lips that looked so tempting. The warm bloom rose to her cheek, and I thought I never had beheld anything so beautiful. I missed my old home and my pretty mates, but I felt sure I had fallen into good hands, and I felt proud in having so beautiful a mistress, and being so admired. When my mistress came home and looked in the mirror she saw my drooping head, for the heat in the ball-room had made me faint and languid. She took me from her hair, and said, tenderly, as she held me in her hand, "Poor little lily, I'm sorry you faded so soon." Then she put me in a vase of water, which refreshed and strengthened me, and this morning when she looked at me my white petals were open once more, which made her exclaim: "Ah, my pretty lily, you are alive yet, are you?" But I have lost some of my fragrance, and I know that before the sun sets I shall be dead, for the life of a lily is very frail. They say this is a cold world, but "my lines have fallen in pleasant places," and I am sure that when I am dead, and all my beauty and fragrance gone forever, my sweet mistress will not throw me into the street to be trampled in the mud, but will lay me carefully away in remembrance of the night when her lover whispered sweet, tender words as he placed me in her shining braids of hair.—Floral World.

A Very High Fever.

All physicians recognize the power of imagination in curing disease, and a new instance of it is given in the Medical Record by a doctor living in New Jersey.

Being called to prescribe for a patient living in the hills above Keyport, who had long been afflicted with epilepsy, and whose mind was now somewhat impaired, I noticed, he says, a remarkable pallor of countenance, and that the surface of the body was very cold to the touch. So I produced a clinical thermometer to ascertain the temperature.

The young man evidently looked upon it as a part of the treatment. So rapid was he that when I went to withdraw the thermometer he gave a start like one rudely assailed.

"How did it affect you?" queried I. "Very well indeed," he replied; "I think it has made me feel much better." And then, raising his hand with an air of benediction, he added: "It had such a quieting influence."

An hour afterward I visited a young domestic in another family, who was convalescing from a mild attack of typhoid fever, where the temperature had ranged from 100 to 102 degrees for several days. While here I related the above incident to her employers, who laughed heartily, but the girl, with a look of scornful superiority, cried out: "Pooh! he mustn't ever have seen one before! Why, I have had two at a time in my mouth, and thought nothing of it."

"Why was that?" asked I. "When I was on Randall's Island." "Yes, but why? what were two used for?"

"Because—because," blurted she in confusion, "my fever was so high they couldn't tell it all on one!"

This girl belonged probably to a large class of people in country towns who seem to regard diseases as accomplishments, and to think that person the most entitled to honor who has suffered most.—Youth's Companion.

Ancient English Laws.

The following are a few of the laws of England nearly twelve hundred years ago:

If any servant, by command of the master, shall do any servile work after the sun shall be set on Saturday, or on Sunday, the master shall pay 80 shillings for the task. If a servant shall travel on either of those days, he shall pay 6 shillings, or be whipped. If a freeman shall travel on a day forbidden, he shall stand in the pillory, and the informer shall have half, as well of the mulct as of the whirg.

If a husbandman, without the knowledge of his wife, shall offer anything to the devil, he shall forfeit his estate and stand in the pillory; but if both of them shall offend, she also shall lose all her goods, and stand in the pillory. If a servant shall offer anything to the devil, he shall lose 6 shillings, or be whipped.

If any person shall give flesh to his servant to be eaten on a fast day, his servant shall be free. If any servant shall voluntarily eat it, he shall either pay 6 shillings or be whipped.

If a secular man shall kill a thief, no composition shall be made by the kinsman of him that is slain. If any free-man carry away anything that is stolen, the King shall choose any one of these three punishments: Either that the thief shall be slain or banished beyond the seas, or rather his whirg (which was the value of his head or life), and he who apprehended him shall have half his goods; but if he shall kill him, he shall pay 70 shillings. If any servant shall be robbed, and shall suffer the thief to escape, he shall pay 70 shillings, or—, which the King pleases; but if any one shall slay him, his master shall have half his goods. If any stranger shall wander privily through the country, and shall neither cry aloud nor sound his horn, he shall be taken for a thief, and shall either be slain or banished.

Latter-Day Bohemians.

It was a great crowd that hung around Pfaff's, in the days when the famous humorist, Charley Browne, was delivering his 100 lectures at Dodworth Hall. Josh Billings used to go there then, when he was only a poor auctioneer. But Josh was not a Bohemian by sympathy—he was too saving for that. Bret Harte, Bailey, the Danbury News man, Griswold, and the celebrated humorist, Leonard, hung out there. Charley Brown was at one time a Cleveland journalist, but the proprietor of Vanity Fair took him to New York, paying him $1,800 a year. When Vanity Fair died at the end of eighteen months, "Artemus Ward" swore that he killed it with his ghastly humor, for Browne was a humorist of no mean merit, and was something of a Bohemian, and a remarkably brilliant one in conversation.

Of the Bohemians of to-day, volumes may be written. Some of the finest work on the metropolitan press comes from their caustic pens. New York has Bohemians who, when they have passed away, will leave a lustrous fame. Chicago has its Bohemia, and many of the cleverest productions that grace the pages of the great dailies there are the work of the guild. There are but one or two Bohemians in Detroit, but many in St. Louis and New Orleans, and more in Washington and Paris. London, however, is Bohemia par excellence of the world, for the best writers on the press there, and the most brilliant critics and poets, are all of Bohemia.—George M. Grummond, in St. Louis Magazine.

The Greatest Religious Edifice in America.

The great building at Salt Lake, which the Saints have been twenty-eight years in constructing, is approaching completion. The main walls are done. It is built of granite, which is hauled from the mountains back of Salt Lake on great wagons or trucks with wheels twelve feet high. The walls are ten feet in thickness, and eighty-five feet in height. It has cost up to this time $4,500,000, which has been collected by the tithing tax. It will require six years more to finish the work. Probably no other church building in the United States has been constructed in a way to secure such durability as is possible to this. Some of those who predict the early ruin of the Mormon hierarchy are wondering what use they can make of this temple. But such calculations are rather premature. The sect may endure longer than the temple.—Alta California.

The Baby Wouldn't Fit.

A young German woman, of ample proportions, and with flowing robes and a small baby, boarded a Third Avenue elevated train. She selected a place with two vacant seats on each side, and, in sitting, covered with her dress the low wooden partitions separating the seats. Then she tried to make the baby lie down by her side, with its head in her lap. Not succeeding on one side, she tried the other, but each time the small of the baby's back met the hidden partition, and it couldn't be made to fit. The baby resisted the endeavor, and raised a noisy lamentation. The mother, after many efforts, concluded that its perverseness was not to be subdued, and snatched it into her lap, with the remark: "Well, ven you can't keep dot back none straight, I think it's petter you sit up."

Then she looked around to see why all the passengers were laughing.—New York Sun.

Employment Essential to Happiness.

It may be laid down as an incontrovertible principle that no family can be happy without employment—regular, diversified, continually recurring employment. There may be the possession of wealth, there may be an ample and beautiful domain, there may be everything externally to enjoy, but unless there be an appropriate and varied employment to occupy the body, engross the mind, and awaken the energies, there cannot be happiness. It is the active, industrious, persevering family that is the truly happy family; not the idle, the slothful, the useless—not the family that has no definite plan, no fixed and important object, no personal and collective energy.

Arkansas Culture.

"Let me see," said a young lady graduate to a highly intellectual friend, "was it Pope who wrote the 'Iliad,' or was it the 'Iliad' who wrote Pope?" "Neither," replied the intellectual friend. "It was blind Homer who translated the 'Iliad.' " "Oh, yes, now I remember. I would give anything for 'Iliad' any way!" "Why, it is a poem telling all about an old fellow who lived in a tub of water." "I don't believe that a man could live in a tub of water." "Oh, no; but then we must not question ancient mythology."—Arkansas Traveler.

On Good Terms with the Dog.

"Do you know the Jacksons?" asked a lady of a young man who lived in their neighborhood. "No; I'm not personally acquainted with all the members of the family," he replied, "but I always speak to the dog at the front gate as I go past."—Merchant Traveler.

Weddings often leave old familiar hearts and places as haunted and empty as funerals. They are the funerals of old associations.

REMINISCENCES OF ROCHESTER.

The Falls of the Genesee and Sam Patch's Fatal Leap—One of Its Business Houses and Its Great Magnitude.

The present floods, which are either devastating or threatening the country in every direction, are justly cause for apprehension. No matter whether they come suddenly or by slow degrees, they are, in either case, a great evil and much to be dreaded, and yet America will always be troubled by these spring overflows. Probably one of the most disastrous that was ever known occurred in Rochester, N. Y., about twenty years ago. The Genesee River, just above the falls, where Sam Patch made his final and fatal leap, became completely blocked by ice, forming an impassable dam, and the water coming down the Genesee came over by the principal portion of the city of Rochester. This catastrophe would have been repeated the present year had not the energy of the city authorities prevented it. The writer happened to be in Rochester at that time and was greatly interested in the manner in which this great catastrophe was averted. Every few moments a roar like that of a cannon would be heard, and in order to see this ice blasting process the writer went to the top of the new Warner Building, which overlooks the Genesee River. From here he was only enabled to see the water rushing rapidly, but also the magnificent building which has just been completed. This is unquestionably the finest building devoted to business and manufacturing purposes in America, being a tremendous boom of stories high, and containing over four and a quarter acres of floor space. Mr. Warner treated your correspondent very courteously, and in the course of the conversation said:

"We are doing a tremendous business, and are far behind in our orders. This is the season of the year when people, no matter how strong their constitution may be, feel more or less the pain and indisposition, the headaches, colds, neuralgia, rheumatism, dull pains, sore throats, coughs—all the 1,001 ills that flesh is heir to, come this time of year, if at all. It is natural, therefore, that we should be very busy. This is especially true of our Safe Rheumatic Cure, and it is crowding us very sharply for a new remedy."

"Singular, but I had forgotten that you do not advertise to cure all diseases from one bottle, and to-day the Company are not in the medicine men, but I supposed Warner's Safe Cure was for the cure of rheumatism."

"And so it has been until our remedy, which was especially for rheumatism and neuralgia, was introduced. We have been three years perfecting this new remedy. Study first taught us there were certain powerful elements in Warner's Safe Cure, better known as Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure, that made wonderful cures in chronic and acute rheumatism, but during our investigation we learned of a remarkable cure at a celebrated springs, and put experts to investigate and to-day the Company are not in the medicine men, but I supposed Warner's Safe Cure was for the cure of rheumatism."

"You seem to talk freely in regard to your remedies, and appear to have no secrets, Mr. Warner." "None whatever. The physician, with his hands cold and cold hands, is necessarily compelled to guess at a great deal. We are enabled to follow up and perfect, while physicians can only experiment with their hundred patients and hundred diseases. With the medicine I have made a discovery, he is bound to give it to the other physicians, which, of course, discourages investigation, to a great extent. This is why the great discovery in medicine has been made in late years have been made by chemists and scientists and not by physicians, and it is a measure accounts for the great value of our remedies, also for the remarkable success of all those who make a specialty of one or two diseases."

"And you find that you are curing as great a number of people as ever before?" "Yes, a far greater number. I never sold so much of our medicine as now, and never knew of so many remarkable cures." The writer departed after the above interview, but was greatly impressed, not only by the sincerity of Mr. Warner, but by the vastness of the work he was doing. His medicine was used throughout the entire length and breadth of the land, and we doubt not the results they are effecting are really as wonderful as they are related to be.

THERE is a silence of grief, there's a silence of dread—of these men may speak, and these they can describe; but the silence of our happiness, who can describe that?—W. H. H. Murray.

The Key Note

Of half the infirmities which mar comfort and aggravate one another is a lack of physical energy, easily remedied at the outset with a reliable invigorant. As a means of checking premature decay, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is unrivaled. The functions of digestion and assimilation, always imperfectly performed where there is a loss of vigor and bodily substance, are aided; nervousness and falling of appetite are speedily remedied through its agency. Constipation and disorder of the liver are thoroughly relieved by the Bitters, and the kidneys act more effectively in straining impurities from the blood when it is resorted to as a diuretic. Rheumatic complaints are averted, fever is cured and prevented, and the ailments to which the aged are specially subject are mitigated by it. Persons who experience difficulty in sleeping soundly, will find that a wineglassful, swallowed before retiring will facilitate repose.

My Six-Year-Old Daughter. DR. C. D. WARNER: Dear Sir—I received the complimentary bottle of White Wine of Tar Syrup you so kindly sent me. Our little six-year-old daughter had a very sore throat, badly inflamed, and coughed almost incessantly. We gave the medicine according to directions, and she began to improve immediately and soon got well. Please accept thanks. Mrs. Groves and I have recommended it to other children, and I want to get a bottle of it at the beginning of winter, as I consider it a very superior medicine. Yours very respectfully, REV. H. D. GROVES, Carlsville, Mo. Pastor M. E. Church.

FOR DYSPEPSIA, INDIGESTION, depression of spirits, and general debility in their various forms; also, as a preventive against fever and ague, and other intermittent fevers, the "Perro-Phosphated Elixir of Calisaya," made by Caswell, Hazard & Co., of New York, and sold by all druggists, is the best tonic; and for patients recovering from fever or other sickness it has no equal.

Seven Wise Men Baffled.

The New York Morning Journal says that Mrs. F. S. Kellogg, 50 East Eighth Street, was partially paralyzed, and lay for seven days in convulsions. Physicians were engaged and discharged until seven had failed to help or cure her. She was unable to leave her bed, and was as helpless as a child. After using all sorts of salves, ointments, lotions and plasters, her case was given up as hopeless. She was induced to try St. Jacobs Oil as a last chance. She began to improve from the time the first application was made, and, by its continued use, she has completely recovered.

Typhoid in Cities.

The writer, from a long experience in hospital practice, can assert that true intermittent and remittent fevers proving fatal are not indigenous; they occur mostly in people coming from sub-tropical or tropical climates. For a long period he has given his attention to the place of the origin of well-developed intermittent fever, and he has been surprised to see how large a proportion has occurred in non-residents, or those having a temporary residence out of the city and in a malarious region.—Medical News.

No one can be ill if the blood is pure. Yellow Deck and Sarsaparilla root have long been recognized by physicians as blood purifiers. Don't be humbugged by the advertisements of the many cheap bitters, but occasionally use Dr. Guyott's Yellow Deck and Sarsaparilla, and you will live to a good old age free from all distress of mind and body. Many of our best citizens who long suffered from bad blood, indicated by weak kidneys, indigestion, sores, aches, etc., owe their recovery to the use of this remedy.

Dairymen Prefer It.

Messrs. WELLS, RICHARDSON & Co. Since the introduction of your Improved Butter Color among my customers, it has given universal satisfaction. The leading dairymen of this section who have used it are the preference over all other colors, of whatever name or nature. They are especially pleased with the fact that it does not become rancid, like other oil colors, and their product brings highest prices in the market. W. S. N. Y. ## Instantly Relieved.

Mrs. Ann LaCour, of New Orleans, La., writes: "I have a son who has been sick for two years; he has been attended by our leading physicians, but all to no purpose. This morning he had his usual spell of coughing, and was so greatly prostrated in consequence that death seemed imminent. We had in the house a bottle of Dr. Wm. Hall's Balsam for the Lungs, purchased by my husband, who noticed your advertisement yesterday. We administered it, and he was instantly relieved."

For twenty-five years I have been afflicted with catarrh so that I have been confined to my room for two months at a time. I have tried all the humbugs in hopes of relief, but to no success. I met with an old friend who had used Ely's Cream Balm and advised me to try it. I procured a bottle to please him, and from the first application I found relief. It is the best remedy I have ever tried.—W. M. MARY, Justice of the Peace, Shenandoah, Iowa.

THE LIFE LESSON

LEARNED BY A PROMINENT HUDSON ODD FELLOW.

From the Hudson (N. Y.) Register.

Mr. John Eling, a faithful Odd Fellow (Past Grand) "Lindenwald," No. 42, and a member of the Baptist Church, says: "I have been, as most of my acquaintances in Hudson know, a sufferer from dyspepsia for ten years. The symptoms of my malady were those which a million other sufferers in the land would recognize as their own. Beginning with indigestion, sour stomach and flatulence, I became so weak that my body became a burden too heavy to carry, and my mind was weighed down by a gloomy despondency. After eating I felt as if I had a ball of glowing iron in my stomach; my abdomen would bloat, and I was afflicted almost constantly with a sick headache. A lady learning of my condition advised me to use DR. DAVID KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY, telling me what an infinite deal of good it had done her and others who knew the law. I began taking it in the latter part of August, and used altogether only three bottles, when it achieved in me the most wonderful improvement. I have now gained flesh, and feel stronger, better and happier than I have in ten years. FAVORITE REMEDY cured my friend, R. F. Hermann, of Ghent, of the lingering remains of malarial fever, and of biliousness. Mr. Harvey Thomas, the grocer on Warren street, just below the Worth House, says that it has had wonderfully good effects upon him. Scores of my acquaintances say that having once tried it they would never again be without it. I have given it to my children, and found it the best medicine I have ever known for regulating their bowels and purifying their blood. The knowledge of this medicine I deem the greatest lesson of physical life."
