

Grant, Sumner, and Stewart.

A. T. Stewart, the New York merchant prince, made large sales to the Government during the war for the suppression of the rebellion, and he displayed his gratitude by making Mrs. Lincoln handsome presents. He was also a large contributor to the fund of $100,000 raised by the merchants of New York for Gen. Grant as an acknowledgment of his war services; and when the General was elected President, Mr. Stewart was selected by him as the man to reorganize the Treasury Department, purge off its excrencences and reform its abuses. Mr. Stewart was delighted with the offer, and had a suite of rooms in the Ebbitt House, with a private entrance, fitted up for his occupation until he could go to housekeeping. A few days before the 4th of March he came to Washington and occupied these rooms, with Judge Hilton as his companion and adviser. After the inauguration he was nominated by Gen. Grant; but Senator Sumner, who had been consulted as to the formation of the Cabinet, interposed his objection to the immediate consideration of Mr. Stewart's nomination. Late in the afternoon of that day a rumor got abroad that there was a law, understood to have been really written by Alexander Hamilton while Secretary of the Treasury, prohibiting an importer in active business from holding the position of Secretary of the Treasury. A newspaper correspondent obtained a copy of the law bearing on the case and carried it to Gen. Butterfield, who conveyed it to Mr. Stewart and his legal adviser, Judge Hilton. They consulted Chief Justice Chase, and he confirmed the view which had been taken of the law by those who first brought it to Mr. Stewart's attention. Mr. Stewart then proposed to retire from business and devote the entire profits that might accrue during the time that he should hold the office of Secretary of the Treasury to charitable objects. But this was decided to be something which would not be proper, either for him to carry out or for the Government to accept. Immediately after seeing Chief Justice Chase Mr. Stewart and Judge Hilton drove to the White House and laid the facts and opinions before the President, who, on the next day, wrote a message to the Senate, asking that the law of 1788 be set aside so as to allow the candidate to hold the office. This the Senate declined to do. It was a very natural ambition for a man of Mr. Stewart's tastes and training to desire to be at the head of the Treasury, and it is not unlikely that the disappointment was a very severe one. This was the beginning of the "unpleasantness" between President Grant and Senator Sumner, which finally resulted in an open rupture. —Ben. Perley Poore, in Boston Budget.

Sponges.

We don't mean those sponges that grow "in the bottom of the sea," and which afford food for much scientific speculation, as to whether they are animal or vegetable. No, the sponges of which we mean to complain are distinctly animal, and are of both sexes. We all suffer from them. Bored and sponges are necessary evils, we suppose, but not any more to be admired for all that.

Editors could a tale unfold of the way some people get their advertising done for nothing, and lawyers could tell of tons of legal advice given by them without receiving the slightest acknowledgment, pecuniary or otherwise. Doctors, also, are the victims of these questioners. Generally it is only the younger members of these professions who suffer. Men old in the tricks of these friendly sponges manage to evade them, but the young editor, lawyer, or doctor, though he knows he is being defrauded, has not the courage to cut short the confidential chat, by saying that he hopes to make his living by receiving pay for that which his friend expects to get for the asking.

No one expects a carpenter, blacksmith, jeweler, or any one who plies a trade, to do the smallest job for nothing, and yet those who willingly pay for such labor seem to think they have done nothing of which to be ashamed if they "manage" to get legal or medical advice without having to pay for it.

And among women the fault is as great. We have heard women boast of knowing "all kinds of fancy work and never paid a cent for lessons." Their desire to learn fancy work was greater than their delicacy of feeling.

Women who make their living by dress-making, millinery, teaching fancy work, or painting, are daily imposed upon by friends and strangers who come to them for suggestions and advice about material, shades, designs, and patterns—defrauding the worker of hours of valuable time without a thought of paying for the advice given, and often do not even thank the person for the suggestion which she has spent time and money in acquiring.

Strange to say, these sponges are oftentimes found among those who could well afford to pay for what they want; and stranger still is the fact that they would resent, with the greatest indignation, a refusal to oblige them, or an intimation that they were taking advantage of another's politeness, and thus getting for nothing that which the giver has a right to expect something more substantial for than mere thanks. —Minnie W. Armstrong, in St. Louis Magazine.

A Letter of the Poet Keats.

In one of his letters to his sister he says, expressing a momentary high feeling: "Oh, there is nothing like fine weather, and health, and books, and a contented mind, and diligent habits of reading and thinking, and an amulet against the enemies, and please heaven, a little claret wine out of a cellar a mile deep—with a few, or a good many, ratafia cakes—a rocky basin to bathe in," and he enunciates much else, tapering off into a series of rollicking whims, and ending with about thirty-six lines of doggerel rhyme. But Keats always had a breezy way of rattling off his wishes and feelings in his correspondence, of which we will give but one more sample. It is from one of the letters to his sister written from Winchester. He says: "I should like now to promenade round your gardens (?)—apple-tasting, pear-tasting, plum-judging, apricot-nibbling, peach-scrunching, nectarine-sucking, and melon-carving. I have also a great feeling for antiquated cherries, full of sugar-cracks—and a white currant tree, kept for company. I admire lolling on a lawn by a water-lily pond, to eat white currants and see gold-fish, and go to the fair in the evening, if I'm good. There is not hope for that—one is sure to get in some mess before the evening." —Joel Benton, in the Manhattan.

Lives in a Tree.

Washington is the paradise of cranks, and all the curious characters in the country seem to have congregated here. My latest discovery is a man who lives in a tree. He is an $1,800 clerk in the Pension Office, and his name is A. B. Hayward. He is a black-whiskered, pleasant-looking, one-armed bachelor of about forty years. His aerial habitation is situated just outside of the boundary limits, between the Fourteenth and Sixteenth street roads, within a quarter of a mile of Joaquin Miller's cabin. It consists of a tent-like house built upon a pine platform fastened between two big oak trees. This platform is perhaps twenty-five feet square, and it is fastened to the trees as far up from the ground as the first story of a business building. It is certainly higher than any ceiling in America. Upon this platform a wall of pine boards about eight feet high is built in the form of a hollow square, and from the top of this a tent roof of two thicknesses of canvas rises in wedge shape. The canvas is of the best quality, and I notice the Government stamp is on one of the sides of the roof. The entrance is on the west, and before it is a wide platform where its owner can come out and sit in the warm summer evenings, and on which are now sitting a rocking-chair and a water-bucket. This platform is reached by a ladder twenty feet long, but very light. Mr. Hayward takes it off to a farm-house near by when he goes to work, and returning he brings it again to his tent, and in the tent he entertains his friends. Its interior is comfortably furnished, and it is heated with a little oil stove. There is a carpet on the floor, rocking-chairs are scattered about the room, and there is a book-shelf and a writing-table. Pictures are fastened upon the walls, and the whole makes very comfortable quarters. —Washington Cor. Cleveland Leader.

About Camels.

A writer says: "The camel is the most perfect machine on four legs that we have any knowledge of." A sacred treasure, indeed, to the Arab is this "pudding-footed pride of the desert." The expression on the face of a camel is rather pathetic. His eyes are large and liquid, and above them are deep cavities large enough to hold a hen's egg. The aquiline nose, with long, slanting nostrils that he can close tightly against the sand storms and hot, burning winds of the desert, give a very sorrowful expression to the face. The under lip is pointing and puckering, and you are not at all surprised when the poor beast bursts into tears and cries long and loud like a vexed child.

The feet of the camel are of very singular construction, with a tough, elastic sole, soft and spongy as they fall noiselessly on the earth and spread out under his tottering weight. This form of the foot prevents the animal from sinking in the sand, and he is very sure-footed on all sorts of ground.

The average rate of travel for a caravan is between two and three miles an hour; and the camel jogs on, hour after hour, at the same pace, and seems to be almost as fresh at night as in the morning when he started on his travels. The Arabians say of the camel: "Job's beast is a monument of God's mercy." The camel sheds his hair regularly once a year, and carpets and tent-cloths are made from it; it is also woven into cloth. Some of it is exceedingly fine and soft, though it is usually coarse and rough, and is used for making coats for the shepherds and camel-drivers; and huge water bottles, leather sacks, also sandals, ropes, and things are made of its skin.

Files.

In a file twelve inches long, the first six inches from the point does the most of the work. In a machine-cut file the teeth of this part are shorter, and in practice will not bite as well as they will further up. This is because of the shape of the files, in many instances making it impossible for the machine to work on all parts with the same effectiveness. Out of a dozen or more machine-cut files you will not find more than one that is perfect-looking, and very few machine-cut files will bite as well as the hand-cut article. For this reason their teeth break out less easily—because they won't bite.

The St. Louis (Mo.) Post-Dispatch says that Mrs. Phoebe Rice, 1208 Madison street, a sister of Hon. H. Clay Sexton, Chief, St. Louis Fire Department, had been a sufferer from inflammatory rheumatism for seven years; the muscles of her hands and limbs were contracted and she used crutches. By a single application of St. Jacobs Oil she was benefited instantaneously, and finally completely cured.

A Chicago Hotel Bill.

In a Chicago hotel—Guest: "How much is my bill?" Clerk: "How much money have you got with you?" Guest: "About $200." Clerk: "That's all, is it?" Guest: "Yes, that's all." Clerk: "Well, your bill is just $200." —Philadelphia Call.

A Source of Chronic Misery.

Weak nerves is a source of chronic misery. Slight noises jar them terribly, the most trivial causes produce acute mental discomfort, the slightest excitement prevents sleep, an unaccustomed favor destroys the appetite. That supererogatory nerve and tonic, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, changes all this. It promotes digestion and blood nutrition, and a proportionate share of the vigor imparted by it to the entire physical structure is appropriated by the nerves. Super-sensitiveness of the nerves diminishes as they gain in vigor, and as a consequence of this restored tranquility, sleep and appetite improve. Dyspepsia, particularly when united with constipation and biliousness, is a fruitful cause of nervousness, and the Bitters which removes the first, necessitates by its regulating and invigorating action, the disappearance of the latter. Rheumatism, fever and acute and urinary troubles are also obviated by this comprehensive medicine.

AN ARMY EXPERIENCE.

How an Old Veteran Escaped Annihilation and Lived to Impart a Warning to Others.

(National Tribune of Washington.) A pleasing occasion which has just come to our notice in connection with the New York State meeting of the Grand Army of the Republic is so unusual in many respects that we venture to reproduce it for the benefit of our readers.

Capt. Alfred Rensom, of New York, while pacing in the lobby of the armory, previous to the meeting, suddenly stopped and scanned the face of a gentleman who was in earnest conversation with one of the Grand Army officers. It seemed to him that he had seen that face before, partially obscured by the smoke of battle, and yet his bright and pleasant countenance could not be the same pale and death-like visage which he so dimly remembered. But the recollection of his Banquo's ghost would not "down" at command, and he waited until the entire day. On the day following he again saw the same countenance, and ventured to speak to its owner. The instant the two veterans looked at each other's faces, and instantly they recognized and called each other by name. Their faces and forms had changed, but their voices were the same. The man whom Capt. Rensom had recognized was W. K. Sage, of St. Johns, a veteran of the Twenty-third New York Light Artillery, and both members of Burnside's famous expedition to North Carolina. After the first greetings were over, Capt. Rensom said:

"It hardly seems to me, Sage, to see you in this condition, for I thought you must have been dead long ago."

"Yes, I do not doubt it, for I am not mistaken, when we last met I was occupying a couch in the hospital, a victim of 'Yellow Jack' in its worst form."

"I remember. The war seems to have caused more misery since its close than when it was in progress," replied the Captain. "I met old comrades who were suffering terribly, not so much from old wounds as from the malarial poisons which ruined their constitutions."

"I returned home, and at times I would feel well, but every few weeks that confounded 'all-gone' feeling would come upon me again. My nervous system, which was shattered by the service, failed me entirely, and produced one of the worst poisons I have known of."

"I returned home, and at times I would feel well, but every few weeks that confounded 'all-gone' feeling would come upon me again. My nervous system, which was shattered by the service, failed me entirely, and produced one of the worst poisons I have known of."

A Blood Purifier.

As a blood purifier the Compound Oxygen Treatment of Drs. Starkey & Felen, 1100 Grand St., Philadelphia, has no equal. It is taken by inhalation, and gives a larger supply of oxygen to the lungs than is contained in common air, and so rapidly purifies the blood and vitalizes the whole system. Its action is gentle and agreeable, and in perfect harmony with natural laws. Write for a Treatise on Compound Oxygen. It will be sent free.

Mr. D. G. STRATTON, of New London, Conn., who was laid up all winter with sciatic rheumatism, was so bad that he could not walk, and he suffered the most excruciating pain. He heard of Athiophoros and persuaded himself to try it. He took it according to directions, and in twenty-four hours was free from pain. Price, $1 per bottle. If your druggist hasn't it, send to Athiophoros Co., 113 Wall Street, N. Y.

I could scarcely speak; it was almost impossible to breathe through my nostrils. Using Ely's Cream Balm a short time I was entirely relieved. My head has not been so clear nor voice so strong in years. I recommend this admirable remedy to all afflicted with Catarrh or Colds in the head.—J. O. TICHENOR, Shoe Merchant, Elizabeth, N. J. (Price 50 cts.)

For DYSPETIC, INDIGESTION, depression of spirits, and general debility in their various forms; also, as a preventive against fever and ague, and other intermittent fevers, the "Ferro-Phosphated Elixir of Calaisya," made by Caswell, Hazard & Co., of New York, and sold by all druggists, is the best tonic; and for patients recovering from fever or other sickness it has no equal.

Why He Is Ill.

One night Lord Randolph Churchill and some fellow-statemens were standing on the Thames embankment, at a friend's garden gate, when Ben Sturton midnight. Some one remarked upon the deliberateness of the ringing, and wondered whether a man could run from there to the Tower steps before the last note was struck. "The young Tory leader thought he could; a wager was made, the following night was appointed for the enterprise, and Lord Randolph won; but he so over-exerted himself that the others had to carry him to bed, and next day his physician ordered him off to Gastein."

It makes every humanitarian sad to see invalids seek such relief as is given them by the use of blisters, kidney medicines, and other nostrums. The few doses may make them feel better for a moment, but the stupifying ingredients, combined with some strong cathartic and diuretic that are used in its composition, but they eventually grow worse. The only cure for weakness, nervousness, dizziness, aches, pains, rheumatism, sores, urinary and digestive troubles, is to make the blood rich, red, and pure, by using Dr. Guyot's Yellow Dock and Sarsaparilla, a remedy widely indorsed by physicians who have examined into its composition and effect.

A Remarkable Tribute.

Sidney Ourchundro, of Pittsburgh, Pa., writes: "I have used Dr. Wm. Hall's Balsam for the Lungs, many years, with the most gratifying results. The relieving influence of Hall's Balsam is wonderful. The pain and rack of the body, incidental to a tight cough, soon disappear by the use of a spoonful according to directions. My wife frequently sends for Hall's Balsam instead of a physician, and health is speedily restored by its use."

SOME PLAIN FACTS.

Statement of a Gentleman of Rochester, N. Y., Showing the Power of Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy (of Rondout, N. Y.) over Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder.

No pain which man has to endure surpasses that of gravel. "I would rather die," exclaims the patient, "than have such attacks very often." It caused the death of Napoleon III. Mr. E. Dewitt Parsons, of 271 Plymouth Avenue, Rochester, N. Y., recently had a remarkable experience with it. He is a well-knit, fine-looking, hearty-appearing gentleman. One day he was prostrated with pain from the small of his back to the abdomen. For some time previous his appetite had been tickle, his bowels inactive, and he had felt sore above his hips. After voiding water he had a severe pain and gnawing sensation. "For some time my disorder mystified me," he said, "but one day I read of a case very like my own in a paper. I wrote the person whose name appeared, and he confirmed it fully. From that little incident I discovered I had stone in the bladder and gravel in the kidneys. I was greatly alarmed then, but the disease has lost its terrors to me now, for I am fully recovered—cured by DR. DAVID KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY (of Rondout, N. Y.), which I most cordially commend to all persons suffering from kidney disorders, pain in back, stone or gravel. My wife also regards it as especially excellent for women. Dr. Kennedy has performed many surgical operations for stone, when size prevented removal through the natural channels, and he has never lost a case!"

SAMARITAN NEVER FAILS. Opioid Eating, Rheumatism, Nervous Weakness and fifty other complaints. We claim it is a specific, simply because the virus of all diseases arises from the blood. Its Nerve, Restorative, Alterative and Laxative properties meet all the conditions herein referred to. It is known to all who use it.

THE GREAT NERVE CONQUEROR. It quiets and composes the patient—not by the introduction of opiates and drastic cathartics, but by the restoration of activity to the stomach and nervous system, whereby the brain is relieved of morbid fancies, which are created by the causes above referred to.

To Clergymen, Lawyers, Literary men, Merchants, Bankers, Ladies and all those whose sedentary employment causes nervous prostration, irregularities of the blood, stomachic bowels or kidneys or who require a nerve tonic, appetizer or stimulant, SAMARITAN NERVE is invaluable. Thousands proclaim it the most wonderful invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system. $1.50. Sold by all Druggists.

THE OLDEST MEDICINE IN THE WORLD is probably Dr. Isaac Thompson's Celebrated Eye Water. This article is a carefully prepared prescription, and has been used for nearly a century, and notwithstanding the many other preparations that have been introduced into the market, the use of this article is constantly increasing. If the eye is afflicted with any of the following diseases, it will never fail. We particularly invite the attention of physicians to its merits. John L. Thompson, Boston & Co., Troy, N. Y.

I CURE FITS! When I say cure I do not mean merely to stop them for a time and then have them return again, I mean a radical cure. I have made the disease of FITS, EPILEPSY or FALLING SICKNESS a life
