VOORHEES!

AT

MONTICELLO,

THURSDAY, OCT. 9, '84.

From Adams to Blaine.

Some time ago we directed attention to the honesty of John Quincy Adams, as shown by a little transaction in bank stock. When ex-President Adams was about to re-enter public life as a member of Congress he foresaw that he might be called upon to vote with reference to a renewal of the charter of the Bank of the United States, the only national bank of those days. He owned some of that bank's stock, and he sold it without delay. We compared that act and the reasons assigned for it by Mr. Adams with the course taken by James G. Blaine, Speaker of the House of Representatives, in the Little Rock and Fort Smith matter; and quoted the shameful 'deadhead' letter.

The publication of the additional letters written by Blaine to Warren Fisher, Jr., and Josiah Caldwell revealed the fact that Blaine, like ex-President Adams, had ideas about national banks and the duties of a Congressman with reference thereto. Blaine's ideas concerning these subjects were not, however, like those of Mr. Adams. The eminent statesman who served his country so faithfully wrote as follows three days before taking his seat in the House:

Philadelphia, 9th.

I called upon Nicholas Biddle at the United States Bank and received two dividends of my bank stock, by an order upon the branch bank at Washington. I left with Mr. Bridgeman's certificate of stock to be sold, and the proceeds to be remitted according to such directions as I may give. I told him that, as I might be called to take a part in public measures concerning the bank and was favorable to it, I wished to divest myself of all personal interest in it.

Thirty-eight years later James G. Blaine, Speaker of the House of Representatives, wrote the following letter to Warren Fisher, Jr.:

Augusta, Me., 18th Nov., 1869.

My Dear Mr. Fisher: It is quite evident to my mind that at the approaching session of Congress there will be an expansion of currency to the amount of fifty or seventy-five millions of dollars. The form it will take, I think, will be an addition to the National Bank circulation, West and South.

My object in writing is to ask in season if your friends would desire to establish a bank at Little Rock. It will be to some extent a matter of favoritism as to who gets the banks in the several localities, and it will be in my power to cast an anchor to the Windward in your behalf, if you desire it. Please think over the matter and confer with Mr. Caldwell, and let me know your desire as soon as you reach any conclusion. There is, of course, no special hurry, but I thought I would suggest the matter in order that you might mature your thoughts in good time.

It would be well to determine the amount to which you might wish to go. I suppose it might be practicable to secure a $500,000 bank; but in that locality you would hardly wish to go so deep. But they are very profitable institutions—say $250,000. Yours very truly, J. G. BLAINE.

Warren Fisher, Jr., Esq.

There they are—on the one hand the honest old statesman who died at his post, and on the other hand the jobber.

Now For Blaine and Butler Blowers.

If there are any enthusiastic men who entertain the idea that the Plumed Knight is going to be successful, says James Patterson, of the northeast corner of Seventh avenue and Twenty-seventh street, they can have an opportunity of endeavoring to well their bank account by accepting any of the following offers I am prepared to make:

"One thousand dollars against $700 that Cleveland carries the State of New York.

"One thousand dollars even that Cleveland will have 30,000 plurality.

"One thousand dollars against $1,700 that Cleveland carries Ohio.

"One thousand dollars even that Cleveland carries Indiana.

"One thousand dollars against $600 that Cleveland carries New Jersey.

"Twenty-five hundred dollars that Cleveland will be elected.

"One thousand dollars even that Butler will not poll 12,000 votes in the county of New York."

TO MUCH PROTECTION.

Combined With Over-Production Has Ruined the Business of Woolen Manufacturers.

[Phil's Special to the Commercial Gaz.]

The depression in the wool trade here is something remarkable. Business is practically at a standstill. The mills are running on half time, or about to close, or are closed. Williams Alen, at Amber and Huntingdon streets, manufacturer of carpet virus, who employs three hundred hands, has closed his mills.

James Lees & Sons, who employ say one thousand hands, have laid off six hundred of them, and are running only three days in the week. The prospects are that they will shut down altogether.

Among the wool-brokers on Front Street it was reported that Thomas Kenworth & Bro., whose mills at Shara Lane, Manayunk, employ three hundred men, were on the eve of closing down, but the rumor was denied at the office of the firm. While the situation was very bad, it was said their had been no conclusion reached to shut down. If affairs continued in the same way, however, it was a mere question of time. The same rumors prevailed with regard to H. C. & O. den, of Manayunk, but on investigation they were found to be running on half time.

There are six mills in Manayunk closed,' said Councilman Wild, of the twenty-first ward, 'and as matters are just now, there will be more before winter. Business is terribly dull. This is due, of course, to over-production, which in my opinion, is the result of two much protection. If the mills are shut down and the employees are all thrown on the streets at this time it will make hundreds of Cleveland votes. I hear that McCalum, Grease & Sloan and Schofield, Mason & Co. are running on half time, but there is no talk as yet of their closing.

The employees of the mills that are running on half time are in a state of unrest, anticipating the closing of the establishment, by which they will be turned loose to search for other employment.

The near approach of winter and the dullness of business are not encouraging to these men who are dependent on the labor of their hands for bread for their families.

At the factory of Jim's Lees & Son, worsted yarn manufacturers, in Norristown, only four hundred hands have been working on half time, whereas in the busy season a thousand have been employed. Manager Ackroyd said:

"We attribute the dullness of the trade to over-production: The demand for the grades of worsted yarn has decreased to a great extent, and those manufacturers are now making the cheaper grades.

They have, therefore, encroached upon our trade, and flooded the market."

"Another reason for our stoppage is that RAW MATERIAL COSTS US THIRTY-SIX CENTS PER POUND, AND AFTER WASHING, COMING, AND HANDLING IT WE GET BUT THIRTY-EIGHT. This does not pay, and the firm prefer to keep their money rather than run the mill and sink it. We produce in busy times about 8,000 pounds of yarn per day, but the strikes among the various industries upon which we depend for sales have so reduced the demands that we have calls for but one quarter of that amount. We have about one hundred and seventy looms in the factory, about ninety of which are running, and that is more than we actually require."

Thought it was the Cats.

"If I can find my gun I bet I'll settle them cats," said Mulberry the other night at a late hour, as he slid out of bed and went groping around the room in the dark.

"Come back to bed, you old fool," pleaded the gentle voice of Mrs. Mulberry. "That isn't cats; it's Emeline's new beau down in the parlor singing 'Sweet Violets.'

Emeline's new beau will not warble any more when he visits Emeline. Emeline has told him that 'Papa' is very easily disturbed after his retires.'

A chinaman came into the ladies' cabin in a Brooklyn ferry boat the other day and took a seat beside an Irish market woman. He seemed to want to make himself agreeable and remarked: "Bell y cold." The woman looked at him with an air of contempt, and replied, "If you'd put yur shirt in yur pants, your belly wouldn't be cold, ye haythen blackguard."—Exchange.

A new female costume has been adopted in England which is intended for active outdoor exercise. It consists of two garments, the petticoat and trousers and a neatly fitting bodice. It is a compromise between the Bloomer rig and the costume of a Highland dancer.

As Mr. Blaine is anxious to get the Mulligan letters before the country, it is a little singular that the Republican Committee is not printing them as a campaign document.—Chicago Times

Philadelphia conundrum: "Why are the latest style of shoe buttons called Old Maid's Wedding?" Because they never come off.

A Great Discovery.

Mr. William Thomas, of Newton, Ia., says: "My wife has been seriously affected with a cough for twenty-five years, and this spring more severely than ever before. She had used many remedies without relief, and being urged to try Dr. King's New Discovery, did so with most gratifying results. The first bottle relieved her very much, and the second bottle has absolutely cured her. She has not had so good health for thirty years." Trial Bottles Free at F. B. Meyer's Drug Store. Large size $1.00.

Keep it before the people that the Democratic House at its last session passed bills to forfeit some 90,000,000 acres of unearned land grants and reserve them for the use of actual settlers, but the bills were choked off by the Republican Senate.

These are Solid Facts.

What, Never?

(From the New York Herald, Sept. 11th.)

"I never had any transaction of any kind with Thomas A. Scott concerning bonds of the Little Rock and Fort Smith road or any business in any way connected with railroads, directly or indirectly, immediately or remote."—Baine in House of Representative, April 24, 1876.

"I can do something, I feel very sanguine, with Thomas A. Scott."—Blaine to Fisher, January 20, 1871.

"Taking into account the one hundred thousand dollar bonds you sold to Tom Scott & Co. our relative positions financially in the Little Rock and Fort Smith Railroad bear a wide contrast."—Fisher to Blaine November 10, 1871.

A Cleveland club with fifty members has been formed at Manley, Iowa where General Hancock received one vote.
