The Radical love feast held at the Court House last Saturday evening was well attended by all classes of partisans. The most prominent of the speakers announced, Messrs. Zea and Green, startled the audience by the peculiar line of oratory they pursued on the occasion. Mr. Zea's allusion to the number of shirts he had a store, and Green's reference to Mr. Cleveland's son, and the love for intoxicants by the Democrats generally, produced a lively sensation. All in all, our radical friends rather think they do not want a repetition.

Ezra C. Nowels has proved one of the most earnest and laborious of Chairmen of County Committees. He deserves great credit for his devotion, energy and effort.

The majority for Blaine in Jasper County has been reduced more than one hundred compared with that of Garfield. The parties are yearly becoming more equalized in numbers. Continued effort and work on the part of the Democracy will bring about that result.

"We have met the enemy and they are ours."

The election has passed and business in the Circuit Court has been resumed.

The Democratic Glee Club attended the meeting at Surrey, Monday evening, and had a pleasant time. Ezra C. Nowels was the speaker.

Schaefer can do anything with billiard balls. At the exhibition at the Grand Union billiard hall he knocked his ball off the table and it went spinning along the floor. "Let it be," yelled uncle Bill Travers to a spectator who stooped to pick it up, "it will come back upon the table and count."

The late Dr. Macadam used to tell of a tipsy scotchman making his way home on a bright Sunday morning when the good folk were wending their way to the kirk. A little dog pulled a ribbon from the hand of a lady who was leading it, and as it ran from her she was startled to find the ribbon was a piece of the kirk's carpet. "Woman! he roared, with that solemnity of visage which only a Scotchman can assume, 'woman, this is no day for whistling!'"—Philadelphia Record.

"Brandy," said a man during a conversation on intemperance, "why, it's the worst drink in the world. That's what killed Bill Fellers." "Bill Fellers is not dead," replied some one. "I saw him out in the mountains the other day." "Well, no difference," said the first speaker, "brandy is what will kill him." "I don't see how it can, for he never drinks a drop of it." "Ah well, it's what would kill him if he were to drink it. You are so confounded particular that a man can't talk to you!"—Arkansas Traveler.

The Lawrence (Mass.) American relates that a lady from that city while in Ireland last summer was asked by an elderly reverend gentleman whom she met in Dublin why it was that she was not married. "You wouldn't ask that question," said the lady, "if you knew the state of affairs in the city where I live. Why, there are seven ladies to one gentleman in that place." "And why didn't you get the one gentleman?" slyly asked the questioner.

Campaign Reminiscences of 1852.

"I remember a scrape in which Murat Halstead was involved. From 1848 to 1852 the boys at Farmer's College (now Belmont College) six miles from Cincinnati, were divided into Free Soilers, Democrats, Barn Burners and Whigs, and contention ran high. Among the Democrats were Murat Halstead of the Commercial Gazette, and A. B. Husted now Judge Husted. These two boys were constantly plotting against old Captain Strong, a fierce Whig, who kept a notion and grocery store near the school.

"The old Captain was the most obliging man in the world, as he would get up at midnight to sell the boys five cents worth of pea-nuts, but he was a Whig from the ground up, and in 1852 his enthusiasm ran to poles. The Whig boys would help the old Captain to raise a pole one day and the next week the Democratic boys would cut it down. Strong would put up another pole a little higher than the other, and in a week down it would go. The old gentleman had lost six or eight poles when his indignation took a dangerous turn.

"He put up a pole higher than any that gone before, and publicly announced that he would load up his old musket with slugs and would sit up at night and watch his pole, and if any one attempted to cut it down he would shoot. The boys knew the old man was in earnest, and for several weeks the pole was not molested. But one stormy night Halstead and Husted set out from Cincinnati armed with augers and saws, determined to cut down Captain Strong's White pole. When they reached the ground they saw the old Captain seated in his chair at a window commanding a view of the field of his operations.

"They waited until 1 o'clock, and still the captain remained at his post. At last Halstead crept up, and hugging the ground, tried a saw on the pole very close to the ground. This made too much noise and Husted slipped up with the auger. By lying flat on the ground and keeping the pole between him and the captain he avoided observation. But it was slow work, and Husted gave way to Halstead, who having got his spunk up, persisted despite the occasional movements of the man on guard. About daylight the pole went down with a crash, and Halstead and Husted made a wild break for the city. They got in for a late breakfast, mud from head to foot, but up to the time of Captain Strong's death they never told the story of cutting down a Whig pole."—Inter-Ocean.

Peterson's Magazine for November is on our table—ahead, as usual, of all others. How the publisher can afford to keep improving it, as he does in a standing wonder. With this number appears the Prospectus for next year. It promises even better things, and "Peterson" always keeps his promises. There will be over 1,200 printed pages, 14 steel engravings, 12 doubled-sized colored steel fashion-plates, from 800 to 900 wood-cuts, six copyright novelties, one hundred smaller stories, etc. In short, the magazine will continue to be, as heretofore, the cheapest and best for ladies. The terms are only Two Dollars a year. To clubs, it is cheaper still, viz: four copies for six dollars and a half, with an extra copy to the person getting up the club. Or five copies for eight dollars, with both an extra copy and the "Pearl of Price," a beautifully illustrated volume, or a large steel engraving, "The Lion in Love." Everybody should take it is magazine. Now is the time to subscribe. Address Charles J. Peterson, 306 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa. Specimens are sent, gratis, if written for, to get up clubs with.
