

SIAMESE BEAUTIES.

A Country Where Women Excel the Men in Shrewdness.

The Siamese consider themselves to be a handsome race, and in their opinion their women are more beautiful than those of any other country. La Loubere, a French writer, says that he once exhibited to the Siamese the portraits of some celebrated beauties of the court of Louis XIV., and was compelled to acknowledge that they excited no admiration whatever. A large French doll, however, which he presented to one of the princes, was pronounced a model of physical perfection, and he was assured that a woman of such a form and with such exquisite features would command a high price in the royal city.

The native women of Siam are certainly remarkably handsome, and, though somewhat diminutive, they are naturally graceful in their movements and excel the men in intelligence and shrewdness. They are cashiers in almost every native establishment, and are considered to be safer guardians of the money-box than the proprietors, or even their own husbands, to whom they dole out the copper or silver fluangs with frequent precautions and admonitions. Although, in accordance with Eastern ideas, they are regarded as inferior to men in every respect, there are few countries where they so thoroughly demonstrate and maintain their equality as they do in Siam. In every well-organized and properly conducted business-house they are acknowledged to be indispensable, and nearly all the multitudinous native hongs and retail establishments at Bangkok, as well as those in the remote provinces of the realm, are either owned or managed by them.

They seem to possess a genius for trade, and are "marvelously successful in all kinds of mercantile pursuits. As saleswomen in the native shops they are precise and persistent in making a bargain, and always win their customers by a genial craftiness that is too fascinating to resist and an unaffected plausibility that disarms suspicion. The Chinese merchants who settle in Siam and engage in trade have a keen appreciation of these qualities, and select Siamese women for their wives in preference to those of their own race, who are seldom capable of becoming anything but toys and menials. Thus, with the Eurasians on the one hand and the Siamo-Chinese on the other, that section of the far East is being gradually peopled by new-formed races in which only a few distinguishing traces of the ancestral types will ultimately be found.

Siamese women are an important factor in the body politic. In the state, as well as in the household, she performs a part which commands the respect of even those who pretend to despise her sex. In the palace her will is "the power behind the throne greater than the throne itself." Her Majesty, the Queen consort, though unproclaimed as the royal spouse, is, nevertheless, practically supreme in influence, if not in authority. She is less beautiful than some of the inmates of the royal mansion, but more noted for her ability and intelligence than any of the women that surround the court. The young King has been devotedly attached to her from his boyhood, and denies her nothing that his generous nature can bestow to complete her happiness.

It is even asserted that he would abolish the time-honored custom of the country by casting aside his other wives if she demanded it. She is his constant companion at home, and always accompanies him on every journey, and, I was informed by a missionary lady who has been a frequent visitor at the palace for many years, that in the affairs of state he relies more upon her judgment than upon the service of the members of the privy council, who are presumed to be skilled in the subtle art of diplomacy and statecraft. Besides being amiable, intelligent, frugal, and industrious, she is gifted with good sense and endowed with other admirable virtues. When Mrs. Grant was presented to her in the private audience chamber of the royal palace she conducted herself with a simplicity and dignity of manner that could not have been surpassed if she had been a well-trained scholar in the school of etiquette.—Foreign Letter.

Passing the Collection Plate.

A great deal depends on the man who carries the plate. He needs to have a sharp eye, of course, not to miss anybody, because there is not one chance in 1,000 of his being called back. What he needs more than anything else, though, is business tact. There's everything in knowing how to pass a plate to different people. Some of them are cranky. If you put the plate at them too persistently they feel offended, and take pride in not contributing a cent for six weeks. Then other people have their little weaknesses, and want their light to have a good chance to shine. I knew a man who, if a plate came to him empty, would put on a quarter or a half, and be satisfied with starting it that way; but, if there were a lot of quarters and things on already, he'd just as like as not to slap down a dollar bill. And he'd get at least a dollar's worth of satisfaction in watching the hesitation of the men next to him, who knew they were as good as he, and yet didn't like to give so much. Why, I've had a plate come sailing by me just loaded with bills, and you'd think the congregation was extravagantly liberal, when the fact was that two or three men started in that way, and the rest wouldn't take a bluff.—New York Sun.

SOME men are shining lights because they sparkle with gems of thought.

THE CASHIER'S DAUGHTER.

The Merchants National Bank, of Toledo, Ohio, is recognized as one of the prosperous financial concerns of that busy city; and M. C. Warn, Esq., is well known as its Assistant Cashier. Mr. Warn has a daughter who suffered severely from rheumatism. Although only thirteen years old, this obstinate disease took a firm hold of her, and for months tortured her. Hearing that Mr. Warn had used Athlophoros to restore the young lady to health, and anxious to know the effect of the medicine on one so young, a gentleman called upon Mr. Warn, to ask for information about it, which Mr. Warn very courteously gave in this wise:

"My daughter was indeed a sufferer. For several months she was laid up with rheumatism, and unable to go to school or to attend to her studies at home. We were quite perplexed to know what to do about it, for the disease did not yield to the ordinary remedies of the physicians. After she had endured much pain, I heard of Athlophoros, and tried a bottle. I was astonished, both at the completeness of the cure and the promptness with which it was brought about. I had supposed that a medicine so powerful as this might have left some unpleasant effects, but it is now many months since she was cured, and there has been nothing of the kind, nor has there been any return of the disease. My daughter is as well as ever, attends her school regularly, and is taking her usual interest in her studies. I have good reason to hold Athlophoros in very high esteem, and freely to recommend it to all who are afflicted with rheumatism."

From the bank the gentleman went to the drug store of Messrs. Van Stone & Crosby. On asking Mr. Crosby what he knew about Athlophoros, that gentleman replied: "We have sold a good deal of it, and I have heard of its doing much good in many cases."

"Their names? Well, there is one just around the corner from here. He is a barber, working at Flower's barber shop on Jefferson avenue."

On asking Mr. Flower about rheumatism, he replied: "No, I haven't the rheumatism, but my man, Thomas, had it, and that—that What-dye-call-it, with the long name—that knocked it out of him. Better wait and see him; he'll be here in a few minutes." Presently came Mr. G. W. Thomas, a bright and cheery-looking young man of about thirty, who looked as if he had never suffered an ache.

"Surely you are not the man who was laid up with rheumatism?"

"Yes, I am the man," was his reply, "and I was all crippled up with it, so that I couldn't work. Yes, that Athlophoros is the stuff. I would give twenty-five dollars for a bottle rather than go without it. The rheumatism came on me when I was at work in a factory. I was sick a long while. My first attack was in the fall of 1883. I tried liniments and everything else I could get. You know in a barber shop everybody who comes in recommends something or other. Well, I took them all. I had to quit work. One Saturday night I was helped home from the shop, for I could not walk. On the way I got a bottle of Athlophoros. I liked the idea of it, because it didn't offer to cure everything; only rheumatism and neuralgia. I was undressed and put to bed, for I could not help myself. I took two teaspoonfuls of the medicine in milk. When I had had it down about two hours I began to feel numb. Now, I was not in pain. In about an hour and a half after that I felt prickly all over, as if with a lot of needles. Then I sweated. Oh! what a sweat! By Wednesday morning I was able to be at work again. Since that I have never lost a day. I took in all about three bottles."

"Well, you ought to see my old landlady, old Mrs. Smith. She is 73 years old. She had taken pretty much everything for her rheumatism; but no good. I had about enough of this medicine left for two doses, and I gave it to her. She took it, and it relieved her at once. Then she got another bottle. That was two months ago. She has had no return of the rheumatism; nor have I either."

If you cannot get ATHLOPHOROS of your druggist, we will send it, express paid, on receipt of regular price—one dollar per bottle. We prefer that you buy it from your druggist, but if he hasn't it, don't be persuaded to try something else, but order at once from us, as directed. ATHLOPHOROS CO., 112 Wall Street, New York.

Curious Facts About Kelly's Island.

Adam Schardt lives on Kelly's Island. He is a rare old German with a sweet accent. He gives the following history of the early settlers of Kelly's Island: In the first place, the island was literally covered with snakes and reptiles, and no human being, not even the noble red man, had the courage to dispute their right and title to the island. During a heavy storm, many years ago, a schooner was wrecked off McGedagman's point. The boat carried a cargo of live hogs. All hands were lost, but the hogs swam ashore, and, as they found little else to feed upon, they made a diet of snakes. In the course of time they succeeded in devouring all the snakes on the island. Then the Kelly family put in an appearance and began devouring the hogs; a feat which was accomplished easily and quickly. Nothing has since succeeded in exterminating the Kelly family.—Cleveland letter.

HERETOFORE at their demise members of the British royal family have been buried in coffins covered with crimson velvet, with massive silver ornaments; but a few years ago, when the Queen paid her first visit to the sepulcher, she observed that the coverings had become ragged and faded, and orders were given that all the coffins should at once be placed in new oak cases, on the top of which are the plates and coronets on crimson cushions. The late Duke of Albany lies on a stone table in the center of St. George Chapel vault, with King George of Hanover, George III., and the Duke of Kent. The other coffins are on shelves on each side of the vault. The Prince Consort's coffin was never placed in the royal vault; the Queen objecting to her husband being buried, even temporarily, in the same place with George IV.

Nature Demands a Tonic.

When the nerves are unstrung, the head aches, the appetite is poor or variable, the sleep disturbed and a general depreciation of vital power is experienced. Such a state of things cannot long exist without a development of serious disease. The most active and renal invigorant known is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. The absolute purity of its spirituous basis and botanic ingredients gives it a permanent claim to public confidence, and its surpassing medicinal value is admitted by medical men of distinction, by whom it is widely used in private practice. For fever and ague—both as a preventive and remedy—dyspepsia, liver complaint, bilious remittent fever, constipation, choleraic complaints, flatulence, and all intestinal disorders it is a thoroughly reliable remedy. It is the anti-febrile specific of excellence of the malarial districts of this and other countries, where disease born of miasma prevails, and as a general household remedy it is also universally esteemed.

A Good Breakfast.

Mrs. E. W. Carpenter, Overlee, Baltimore County, Maryland, writes: "I was greatly benefited by the use of Red Star Cough Cure, when suffering from a severe cold. My cook was seriously ill from a deep-seated cough. She had consulted her doctor without relief. By my advice she used the Cough Cure in connection with an external application of St. Jacobs Oil to her side. In one night the change wrought was most gratifying and astonishing. In the morning she was like a new person."

The Origin of Billiards.

The game of billiards was invented about the middle of the sixteenth century by a London pawnbroker named William Kew. In wet weather this pawnbroker was in the habit of taking down the three balls, and with the yard measure pushing them, billiard fashion, from the counter into the stalls; in time the idea of a board with side pockets suggested itself. A black letter manuscript says: "Master William Kew did make one board whereby a game is played with three balls, and all the young men were greatly recreated thereat, chiefly the young clergymen from St. Paul's; hence one of ye strokes were named 'cannon,' having been by one of ye said clergymen invented. The game is now known by the name of 'bill-yard,' because William or Bill Kew did first play with a yard measure. The stick is now called a 'kew' or 'cue.' It is easy to comprehend how 'bill-yard' has been modernized into 'billiard,' and the transformation of 'kew' or 'cue' into 'cue' is equally apparent.—American Sports.

"Whose deal is it?"

"Did you say you saw Miss Wilson on the street yesterday?"

"Yes, and she was looking splendid."

"Why, I thought the doctors had given her up, and said there was no help for her."

"So they did. But somebody advised her to try HOPS AND MALT BITTERS, and she took three bottles, and is in better health than she has been for three years."

"I'm so surprised."

"Oh! Are you all waiting for me?"

"There! We have euchred them. Count two, quick."

DR. JOHN BULL'S

Smith's Tonic Syrup

FEVER and AGUE

Or CHILLS and FEVER, AND ALL MALARIAL DISEASES.

The proprietor of this celebrated medicine justly claims for it a superiority over all remedies ever offered to the public for the SAFE, CERTAIN, SPEEDY and PERMANENT cure of Ague and Fever, or Chills and Fever, whether of short or long standing. He refers to the entire Western and Southern country to bear his testimony to the truth of the assertion that in no case whatever will it fail to cure if the directions are strictly followed and carried out. In a great many cases a single dose has been sufficient for a cure, and whole families have been cured by a single bottle, with a perfect restoration of the general health. It is, however, prudent, and in every case more certain to cure, if its use is continued in smaller doses for a week or two after the disease has been checked, more especially in difficult and long-standing cases. Usually this medicine will not require any aid to keep the bowels in good order. Should the patient, however, require a cathartic medicine, after having taken three or four doses of the Tonic, a single dose of KENT'S VEGETABLE FAMILY PILLS will be sufficient.

For Weak Women.

Mrs. LYDIA E. PINKHAM: "About the first of September, 1881, my wife was taken with uterine hemorrhage. The best styptic the physician could prescribe did not check it, and she got more and more enfeebled. She was troubled with Protrusion Uteri, Leucorrhoea, numbness of the limbs, sickness of the stomach, and loss of appetite. I purchased a trial bottle of your Vegetable Compound. She said she could discover a salutary effect from the first dose. Now she is comparatively free from the Protrusion, stomach's sickness, &c. The hemorrhage is much better, and is less at the regular periods. Her appetite is restored, and her general health and strength are much improved. We feel that we have been wonderfully benefited, and our hearts are drawn out in gratitude for the same and in sympathy for other sufferers, for whose sakes we allow our names to be used."

What the People Say.

Mr. R. A. Everett, of Lexington, Ky., writes:

"Dr. Guyssott's Yellow Dock and Sarsaparilla cured me of the worst case of dyspepsia and blood poisoning a man ever had. My skin is now as fair as that of an infant, and my stomach seems so strong I believe I could digest clams shells."

Mrs. Annie Rathburne, of Erie, Pa., writes:

"The least exertion caused me painful fatigue. I was tormented with dyspepsia and irregularities. My blood seemed poisoned. Pimples and sores were all over my body. I doctored for years, but found myself growing worse until I tried DR. GUYSSOTT'S YELLOW DOCK AND SARSAPARILLA. From this I improved, and now I do not feel like the same woman. It has made me strong and well."

A physician writes:

"With suicidal indifference many disregard the laws of health. They eat indigestible food, they expose themselves to sudden climatic changes, they excessively strain the nerves, they give no heed to a daily evacuation of the bowels they repress a natural desire to urinate, they indulge in hurtful drinks, etc. Ere long their health completely falls. A state of impure blood, nervous depression, dyspepsia, urinary disorders, partial paralysis, etc., follows. As a cure I cordially recommend DR. GUYSSOTT'S YELLOW DOCK AND SARSAPARILLA, which in connection with careful dieting and due attention to correct bodily habits, with regular hours of sleep, etc., will surely restore health. I consider it the best tonic, blood purifier, and strengthener sold by druggists. It acts soothingly and mildly, and never leaves any unpleasant after effects. Many have been astonished at its marvelous cures, after all other remedies had failed."
