

FRIDAY AUGUST 7, 1885.

An imaginary 'leaving Democrat' gives our neighbor taff, this week.

Al. J. Kitt, of the Goodland Herald, has been appointed post-master at Goodland. Correct.—Kitt, accept congratulations.

An exchange well says that "the 'conspiracy' of the United States Government against old John Roach is something like the conspiracies which Grand Juries enter into against estimable citizens whom there is some occasion to believe ought to be in State Prison."

Monticello Herald: Senator Fred Hoover has received the appointment of Indian Agent for the Osage tribe in Indian Territory. The agency is the most important in the service and Senator Hoover will doubtless perform the duties assigned him intelligently and honestly.

Roach underbid other ship builders hundreds of thousands of dollars and received the contracts for the United States vessels. The question is presented: Was the estimate made by Roach—so far below the estimates of others—an honest one, or did he propose to construct the vessels in accordance with the amount he was to receive for them? If the latter,—which is most likely—and the Government demands a fulfillment of the contract, what right has Roach and his sympathisers to complain? In view of the fact that Roach, through the mode of ex-secretary of the navy "Billee" Chandler of doing business, or in accordance with republican methods, has been paid more than the agreements called for, we think that the sham sympathy and the assignment should be exposed and set aside. Mr. R. and his friends should be taught that the Government has rights which a Democratic administration will require him to respect.

Republican organs have declared that the cattle kings' case would furnish a test of the President's firmness. Well, how did he stand the test? He said to the cattle-men: "This application for an extension of time or modification of this order is inadmissible. The question resolves itself into a contest between private interests, involving pecuniary loss and inconvenience, and all important public interests of peace, safety and good government. There is one point that seems to escape your attention. That point is before my eye, and it is the public interest."

Two interests are in conflict.—Which shall give way? On the one side we have public peace, public security and the safety of public lives. On the other side are your interests. The former, gentlemen, must be considered, though private interests suffer.

An effort was made after the order was issued to secure an extension of time. A dispatch was sent saying in positive terms the order could not be modified. Here you are after twelve days have past. If your interests led you out of the Territory, I can but think you could find some way out in the specified time. I wish you would co-operate and take hold, and try to get the cattle off. No argument will induce me to change what has been done. Some loss and inconvenience will, no doubt, follow, but there is an interest greater than yours which must receive attention."

Will the Republican organs which have made this a test case of the President's firmness be honest and consistent enough to concede that the President has shown the firmness and frankness that his high duties call for?
