Bereavement and Consolation.

It is not in the parting hour when those we fondly love
Have breathed to us their last farewell and winged their way above;
Nor yet when in the darksome grave we lay them to their rest,
The sharpest pangs of sorrow rends the stricken mourner's breast.

'Tis when we seek our lonely home, and meet no more the smile
Which could the darkest cloud dispel and every care beguile;
And when we meet around the board, or at the hour of prayer,
'Tis then the heart most feels its loss—the loved ones are not there.

And thus as days and months steal on, as memory brings to view
The visions of departed joys, our grief was stirred anew
Though faith may own a Father's hand, yet nature will rebel,
And feel how hard it is to say, "He hath done all things well."

O, mournful memories of the past! ye wear our lives away;
Ye haunt us in our dreams by night and through each weary day.
The home which late like Eden's bower in blooming beauty smiled,
Go make a barren wilderness—a desert waste and wild.

But why thus yield to fruitless grief? Are they not happier far,
The sainted ones for whom we mourn, than we who linger here?
Our hearts should glow with grateful love to Him whose watchful eye
Saw dangers gathering in their path, and called them to the sky.

Not long shall we the loss deplore, for soon the hour will come
When we with those so fondly loved shall slumber in the tomb.
Then let the remnant of our days be to His service given,
Who hid our idols in the grave, lest we should fall of heaven.

Not willingly the Lord afflicts, nor grieves the sons of men;
'Tis but to wean our souls from earth and break the power of sin.
He saw us wandering from His path, and sent the chastening rod,
To turn our feet from error's way and bring us home to God.

Shall we defeat His wise design and waste our days in tears?
Ungrateful for the numerous gifts that Heaven in mercy spares?
Let faith and hope be cherished still, and brighter days shall dawn,
And plants of peace shall spring anew from seeds of sorrow sown.
—Louise Grant, in Good Housekeeping.

A Curious Savings Bank.

Some years ago, an old wooden bridge spanned the Schuylkill river at the foot of Penn street, Reading, Pa. In the course of time a more substantial structure was deemed necessary, and the timbers of the old bridge were carefully taken apart, and reserved for use in repairing and rebuilding the smaller county bridges. While preparing some of this old timber for its new use, a few days ago, it became necessary to saw off several feet from a heavy piece, which was to be used as a girder in a small bridge under contemplation. When the end portion dropped to the ground, the workman was astonished to hear a jingling sound as of gold and silver coin. A summons of such good omen insured a speedy investigation, which resulted in finding eagles, half eagles, silver dollars, halves, and quarters mixed together in careless confusion. The source of supply was found in a section about eighteen inches in length and five inches deep, which had been hollowed out of the log with auger and chisel. An inch thick cover had been fitted over the opening so cleverly and sealed with so much care that detection, other than accidental, was hardly possible. The treasure had been confined in a home-knit woolen stocking, and as the saw cut off the toe, a part of the contents was discharged.

The value of the deposit, though reported to be considerable, was not made public. The money was probably hidden away a number of years ago, as specimens of three, five, ten, twenty-five, and fifty cent scrip, nicely folded up in a piece of writing paper, were among the contents. Not a line indicated the ownership. The question of possession is consequently divided as to whether it should go to the workman who discovered it, the owner of the timber, or the county. The finder probably inclines to the first suggestion.

Democratic Administration.

Indianapolis Sentinel: When in power, the Republicans startled the country from time to time by great robberies of the Treasury and other bold corruptions. The offenders being pets of the party were usually allowed to escape with little punishment, or none at all. The effect of this corruption on society was highly demoralizing, and to the cause of liberty it was very prejudicial. Apprehensions were aroused in patriots throughout the country, and we were scandalized in the eye of other nations.

To stop this corruption was the imperative want of our country. To stop it was the great task undertaken by the Democracy. To stop it was the great pledge made by the Democracy to the people in the last national campaign. Upon this pledge above all others, the people wrested power from the incorrigible Republicans and confided it to the Democracy, by whom it has now been exercised one year and four months. In this time what a remarkable exemption from administrative robberies, frauds, grabs, has blessed the country. This exemption is a fact as conspicuous, as impressive, and is conclusive of the Democracy's fidelity to the people in the great pledge.

Democratic administration, as yet at least, shamed the country with no such indelible infamies as the Republican 'star route parade,' 'whisky ring,' 'naval ring,' 'safe burglary,' etc. As to grabs, not only have none been made in the time named, but the Democracy has wrested from Republican grabbers large bodies of land and restored it to the people; and resolutely continues in this good work, despite the protests and wails of Republican monopolists.

And, too, the Democracy executes its noble work in spite of the fact of being hampered all the time by hosts of inimical Republican officeholders, imbued with corruption.

There is, of course, no brilliancy in purging the Government of corruption, but the solid value of this purgative to the people and to the cause of liberty is incalculable.

The worthiness of Democratic administration is amply attested by the poor pretenses for denunciation of it to which in the absence of adequate cause, astute Republicans, like Senators Emonds, Ingalls and others, are driven by their exigency. Denunciation is the party's only resource now for warmth to maintain its vitality out in the cold.

People of any government naturally look up to it for their standard of conduct. There is nothing, therefore so demoralizing as profligacy in government. In ridding themselves of Republican profligacy the people of this country have revived confidence in all friends of liberty, have vindicated popular government, and have conferred a mighty blessing upon themselves. This they have done through the instrumentality of the Democracy.

PETERSON'S MAGAZINE for August opens with a beautiful steel engraving, "Morning Among the Mountains," followed by a double-size colored fashion plate, and thus by a colored pattern for embroidery. In addition there are some fifty wood-cuts of fashions, work-table patterns, etc. The contributors to the number are Mrs. Ann S. Stephens, Frank Lee Benedict, A. M. Ewell, Emily Lenox, and the author of "The Corsair's Captives"; besides others, in poetry and prose, equally eminent. We do not see how any lady can do without this magazine. Everything it gives, from its steel engravings and original stories down to its fashions and work-table patterns, is the best of its kind. Terms, only Two Dollars a year. Great deductions are made to clubs. Specimens sent gratis, if written for, to those wishing to get up clubs. Address CHARLES J. PETERSON, 306 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, Pa.

INDIANA.

The Republicans try to persuade themselves that there is a prospect of their winning in the next election in this State, and of their thus retaining one of her United States Senatorships.

This prospect is a dream of their desires rather than a thing of fact. Indiana is as essentially Democratic as Ohio is Republican. The tenor of her history is Democratic; the mass of her people have been born and bred Democrats; in their daily lives, in their plain ways and honest habits, they exemplify Democracy.

By the jar of war the Republicans did force her from her Democratic orbit and make her revolve for a time on an abnormal course; but the cause is removed and she has righted and is steady again in her true position, as next November will show, blighting the hopes, once for all, of the Republicans as to her political status.

She is not only Democratic, but is one of the brightest stars in the Democratic constellation of States. She alone, of the Northwest during the dark days of Republican domination shed any light for the Democracy. This light the Republicans, wielding the power of the Union, sought utterly to extinguish but could not, as it would and did show itself from time to time, to their alarm. How idle, then, for them to mature hope of of her now, when they no longer hold the Federal power for coercion nor the Federal Treasury for bribery, for corruption, for Dorsey campaigns. Indiana is the dread of the Republicans and the admiration of the Democracy. She is the Democratic star of the Northwest.

RICHMOND, IND., July 3.—While returning to this city from a lecture in Henry County, Wednesday evening, the Rev. J. S. Hughes, a well known prohibition speaker was attacked and badly beaten by a crowd of enraged Republicans. —Special to Cincinnati Telegram.

Evidently the Henry county Republicans have no more love for prohibitionists than have their partisan brethren in this locality. Two years ago Republicans here indulged very freely in threats to burn Hon. R. S. Dwiggins in effigy. Bro. James attributes his eye troubles to the pronelling power of whisky, impelled by his admiration of the prohibition—vote.

White County Democrat: Mrs. Ella Hinchman, of Princeton township, reports one of the most curious freaks of nature in the poultry line we have ever heard of so far. A turkey hen left the nest after hatching out all the eggs given her, but four. An examination of these eggs revealed the following: One shell revealed a well developed turkey with two heads. Another had a turkey with four legs, and a third had two turkeys in it. The fourth had—well, nothing in it. Had this egg not been rotten, there is no telling what it would have contained.

The Benton Review: Well, after much worry and great labor, Simon P. Thompson was brought forth as a candidate for Senator at the Good Land Convention. No one can greatly wonder at the result; Mr. Dague the Benton County candidate, is a straight-forward business man and would not stoop to the dishonorable deeds of the ordinary politician. Mr. Hartley, of Newton County, is a plain, honest man, strong with the people, but untutored in the wiles of the politician. Mr. Thompson, the nominee, is a shrewd politician who knows how to summon to his aid the tricksters of his party and to their machinations he is no doubt indebted for his nomination. It has been said that Harley Hartley is especially popular with the people, while Simon P. Thompson is a creation of politicians. He has been nominated; now can he be elected?
