Gen. Howe once started to lead 3,000 British soldiers up a hill called Bunker's. They got about half-way up, when they all stopped, and the General turned to reprove them by saying: "Gentlemen, England expects every man to come up to the rack!" He would have said this had he not found an impediment in his stomach in the shape of a two-ounce ball of lead. On further examination he discovered that each one of the 3,000 was similarly affected. It appeared to be epidemic and chronic. They were not wasted by disease, but seemed to have lost interest in the proceedings. No one even made a motion to adjourn. It subsequently got out that they were all dead.

Capt. James Wadsworth once sat down in Hartford, Connecticut, to confer with Sir Edmund Andros, an ambassador from King James. Shortly after he discovered that Sir Edmund was not only an ambassador from a king, but that he also held four of them, while he had no less than two himself, which produced a feeling of misplaced confidence in that particular diplomatic circle; whereupon the Captain turned down the gas and made way with the cold deck and hid it in a tree, which was ever after known as Charter Oak, and furnished wood for all snuff-boxes and gold-headed canes presented to Governors from 1686 to 1876, when the racket was called in by the Government and laid on the shelf with the wooden spoons carved out of the Mayflower.

A pleasing little incident is related of Horace Greeley which not only shows his love for his fellow men but his great brilliancy at reply and self-possession during a trying ordeal in which scores of editors fail every day.

His shoemaker once came to him as he sat in the Tribune office and said: "Mr. Greeley, I have been your shoemaker for forty years."

"Well, yes, that's about the size of it."

"Now, I want your advice. I have presented my bill over six hundred times. I have given up getting anything out of it. I fear that I cannot live to take it all on subscription, even if you continue to follow your present course of sending me the daily, tri-weekly, weekly, and almanac. My family needs money and something must be done; therefore I ask your advice."

Horace slowly reached for a copy of "What I Know of Farming," bound in paper, while a light as of inspiration lit up his eye, softened by a faint touch of sadness and compassion in his chin whiskers, and said, his voice trembling with emotion: "Go West, young man, go West and grow up with the country!"

—Estelline Bell.

"HELLO!" we heard one man say to another the other day. "I didn't know you at first; why you look ten years younger than you did when I saw you last." "I feel ten years younger," was the reply. "You know I used to be under the weather all the time and gave up expecting to be any better. The doctor said I had consumption. I was terribly weak, had night-sweats, cough, no appetite, and lost flesh. I saw Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery advertised, and thought it would do no harm if it did no good. It has cured me. I am a new man because I am a well one."

Origin of the World Texas.

In a recent article published in the North American Review, Gov. Ireland, of Texas, asserts that the word Texas means "welcome," and that on the landing of the first white man on the coast of Texas the Indians greeted them with the exclamation of "Texas," or "welcome." This theory, according to a correspondent in the Texas Vorwaerts, is not correct. In the ancient Spanish archives, stored away in the Land Office at Austin, it appears that certain lands were situated en el pais de los Tejas, or in the country of Texas or Tejas Indians, x and j being pronounced alike. It is well known that the Texas or Tejas Indians were a tribe of Indians living in the valley of the Rio Grande, who were exterminated or driven off by a more savage tribe. The word Texas or Tejas is the root of the names of all the Indian tribes in Texas and Mexico. The prefix indicated the locality of the tribe. The As-Tejas, or Astecs, dwelt on the high lands of the Anahuac. The Tol-Tejas, or Toltecs, lived as far south as Yucatan. The Huas-Tejas lived on the Gulf coast, between Matamoros and Vera Cruz, and the Teal-Tejas were situated in the State of Coahuila.

We All Know Jenks.

First Banker—"Do you know Jenks?"

Second Banker—"I met him the other day for the first time."

First Banker—"What sort of a fellow is he? How did he strike you?"

Second Banker—"He struck me for $5." —Cambridge Chronicle.

THE editor of the Corsicana, Texas, Observer, Mr. G. P. Miller, had a severe attack of rheumatism in his left knee, which became so swollen and painful that he could not walk up the stairs. He writes that after a few applications of St. Jacobs Oil, the pain entirely disappeared, and the knee assumed its normal proportions.

ABERNETHY, the celebrated surgeon, finding a large pile of stones opposite to his door, on his returning home one afternoon in his carriage, swore hastily at the pavior and desired him to remove them. "Where will I take them to?" asked the Hibernian. "To hades!" cried the choleric surgeon. Paddy looked up in his face, saying, with an arch smile, "Haden't I better take them to heaven? Shure they'd be more out of your honor's way."

When you visit or leave New York City, save baggage, expressage, and $3 carriage hire, and stop at the Grand Union Hotel, opposite Grand Central Depot.

Families can live better for less money at the Grand Union Hotel than at any other first-class hotel in the city.

They Spoke to the Khedive.

The Khedive of Egypt has a country palace at Helwan, fifteen miles from Cairo. There are celebrated sulphur springs at Helwan, and all the tourists who flock to the land of the Pharaohs during the winter months spend a short while at these springs. His Highness was taking a walk alone near the palace, and was closely followed by two very determined-looking ladies. The royal personage seemed annoyed at the intrusion, and suddenly turned, seemingly to escape them, in an opposite direction. The ladies, however, were not to be thwarted, and striding up to the Khedive with a Fifth Avenue swing, one of them said:

"Aren't you the Khedive?"

His Highness politely replied, "I am."

The ladies said, "We thought so." And then, with a smile, "We are from New York."

The very innocent sovereign said, "I thought so," and, bowing, walked away.

Over Many a League

Spreads the miasma, or poisonous vapor, that begets malarial and typhus fever. Wherever there is stagnant water in which vegetation, or refuse of any kind decays, there, as surely as the sun rises, are generated the seeds of fever and ague, dumb ague, and other endemic maladies of the malarial type. For the effects of this envenomed air, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters furnishes an antidote, and prevents both the contraction and recurrence of such maladies. Even along the line of excavation for the Lesseps Panama Canal, where malarial diseases are not only virulent but deadly, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters has demonstrated its incomparable protective qualities. Not only for febrile complaints, but also for disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels, for rheumatism and inactivity of the kidneys and bladder, it is very effective. It counteracts the effects of fatigue, damp, and exposure.

In Early Life.

"Yours has been a very busy life, Mr. Bullion?" inquired the lady reporter.

"H'm, yes," said Mr. Bullion, "I began to rustle around middlin' airly." "Will you please tell me of your earliest struggles?" asked she, posing a pencil.

The millionaire looked uncertain. "I can't remember much about it myself," he said, "but I reckon my early struggles began when they was puttin' my first shirt on me. I've noticed since that babies—" But she was a real, nice, brand-new reporter, and was down stairs two flights ahead of the elevator.

He Wanted Generous Measure.

A parsimonious individual went into a drug store the other day to have a prescription put up. "Be sure you give me generous measure," said he to the druggist, fearful lest he might not get his money's worth. Said the druggist: "If I should give you one-sixteenth of a grain more than this prescription calls for you would be dead in five minutes after taking a dose." The mean man turned pale, and said no more about generous measure. —Boston Post.

"No Physic, Sir, in Mine!"

A good story comes from a boys' boarding-school in "Jersey." The diet was monotonous and constipating, and the learned Principal decided to introduce some old-style physic in the apple-sauce, and await the happy results. One bright lad, the smartest in school, discovered the secret mine in his sauce, and pushing back his plate, shouted to the pedagogue, "No physic, sir, in mine. My dad told me to use nuthin' but Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets, and they are doing their duty like a charm!" They are anti-bilious, and purely vegetable.

MRS. SUDDEN RICH says that she writes a diphthong between "Sudden" and "Rich" now. —Boston Journal.

An Undoubted Blessing.

About thirty years ago, a prominent physician by the name of Dr. William Hall discovered, or produced after long experimental research, a remedy for diseases of the throat, chest, and lungs, which was of such wonderful efficacy that it soon gained a wide reputation in this country. The name of the medicine is DR. WM. HALL'S BALM FOR THE LUNGS, and may be safely relied on as a speedy and positive cure for coughs, colds, sore throat, etc.

BOMB THROWERS OF CHICAGO.

A Brief History of the Man Who Received Eleven Terrible Wounds at the Haymarket Massacre, and Still Lives.

JAMES P. STANTON, ex-Detective and Lieutenant of the Municipal Police Force of Chicago, and the hero of the great Haymarket massacre, in which he sustained eleven terrible wounds while leading his platoon to action, has been prominently known in official circles for many years, and is one of the most energetic and intelligent members of the department. Lieutenant Stanton is a native of England, and was born in Birmingham, the son of John and Winifred Stanton, March 25, 1844, where his father was a well-known book-binder. In 1842 the latter visited Chicago, and, February 25, 1850, removed his family to this city, where for eight years the son worked at the trade of glazier and painter. At the breaking out of the war of the rebellion he pursued that line of industry under the employ of the Government, being stationed at Vicksburg and along the Mississippi River. July 28, 1864, he enlisted in the United States navy at Philadelphia, and remained in the service for over three years, being mustered out Aug. 26, 1867. He was on the new Ironsides at both attacks on Fort Fisher, was wounded at Norfolk, and served also on the Chittopsea and Marlborough.

On leaving the service Lieutenant Stanton remained in Philadelphia for a short time, but later returned to Chicago and joined his father in business. In 1869 he became a member of the police force, and was stationed at the armory for two years, resigning in 1871, engaging in business until 1873, and then being elected, for a term of four years, as West Town Constable. In 1878 he again joined the police force, served sixty days' probation at the Hinman Street Station, was transferred to the Madison Street Precinct, and then, after a most brilliant series of detective exploits, was made Sergeant, and later promoted to a lieutenantcy at his present important post of duty. Lieut. Stanton was married at the early age of sixteen years, Oct. 28, 1860, to Miss Mary Murphy, the daughter of an old and esteemed resident of Chicago. They have seven interesting children, named Mary, John, Winifred, Ellen, George, Agnes, and Frank Stanton. The Lieutenant is a member of the Ancient Order of United Workmen, and of the Police and State Benevolent Societies, and was President of the Painters' Union. To him THE CHICAGO LEDGER is under obligations for the facts of the great Haymarket massacre, which form the basis of a wonderful story entitled THE ANARCHIST'S DAUGHTER; or, THE BOMB THROWERS OF CHICAGO! the opening chapters of which will appear in No. 43 of the above named paper. Every lover of law and order will read it with intense interest. Sample copies of this splendid family story paper will be mailed to any address free. What George W. Childs Is Said to Spend.

Take our good friend George W. Childs, of the Philadelphia Ledger, for instance. He not only lives in gorgeous style in Philadelphia and has a magnificent estate at Wootton, but maintains a charming residence at Long Branch, and now contemplates, I see, the erection of a monumentally superb mansion in Newport. There are very few noblemen who spend the money annually that Mr. Childs spends. They can't afford it. Already a very, very rich man, with an income from his paper of over $1,000 a day, Mr. Childs finds it a very easy matter to spend in the course of the summer $250,000, and yet he keeps no yacht. —Howard, in Boston Globe.
