It is a notorious fact that Leopold gives greater bargains than any other house in town. Call and examine for yourself.

Alexander G. Drake, a colored carpenter of Louisville, is coming into prominence as a temperance revivalist.
 He is fifty-nine years old, an ex-slave, and is said to be doing good. His plan of work is to secure signers to a pledge which binds them for three months, a year, or for life, as they may elect. The pledge is unique, and reads: "I do sincerely hope that if I drink beer or whisky (date named here), without being considered sick, that bad luck may be mine the remainder of my life, so help me God."

Gen. Billot, the new French embassador to St. Petersburg, has never before served in a diplomatic capacity. He is taciturn, cold, and circumspect; he knows how to select those only who can serve him, and he neglects those who only seem of no use to him or who can not be dangerous to his purposes.
 He speaks fluently on subjects which he understands and maintains an imperturable silence when subjects are discussed with which he is not familiar.
 He is every inch a soldier, and his bearing in a drawing-room is all that can be desired.

The old Duke of Cambridge, commander-in-chief of the British army and cousin of her majesty the queen, is fond of attending banquets and making attention speeches. He is also fond of champagne, and sometimes mistakes the white shoulder of the lady next him for a pillow, to the amusement of the guests and the bewilderment of the lady.
 At a banquet given a few days ago to the retiring Spanish ambassador, the duke woke up and extolled the courage of the late King Alfonso "amid the population of Madrid and other circumstances such as cholera and earthquakes."
