It was not the man from Maine!

But the "iceberg" of Indiana.

Harrison—the grandson of his grandfather—and Morton compose the ticket to be demolished by that of Cleveland and Thurman.

Republican platform—free tobacco, free whisky; high-priced wool, high-priced clothing and blankets, high-priced lumber for homes, high-priced salt, coal, and necessities of life generally.

As claimed by the Democratic press, Blaine was not sincere in his Florence and Paris letters.—John Sherman would not get out of the way at his bidding, and now denounces his perfidy in un-mistaken tones.

A gentleman from the north part of the county the other day remarked to us: "Mac, The Democratic county convention made no mistake when it placed Daniel H. Turner in nomination for Commissioner from the 1st district. He is capable, he is honest, and besides, he is popular where best known." The same can be said of every candidate on the Democratic ticket, from president down.

The 'Democrat' has a good word to say this week for our Democratic candidate for sheriff, John C. Chilcote. But what can that office as now constituted, do for him?—There is the ostensible editor, Bro. Sickels, will have no vote; Bro. James, the publisher, is a Harrisonian republican, and Ed. Bass, an employee, is also a republican. There is no substantial aid, in this view of the case, to be expected from that quarter.

The nomination of Harrison and Morton acted like a chill upon the republicans in this locality.—Zea and Armstrong procured the services of the small boys to get up a bonfire, while they got the powder and anvil together and fired off a few salutes.

Little Foraker, of Ohio, in the late republican convention at Chicago, sought to play Garfield in 1880. Like him, a pledged Sherman man, he was untiring in his efforts to attract the presidential lightning to himself.

Goodland Herald: Bro. McEwen, of the Rensselaer Sentinel, does not beat about the bush when he wants to "set down on" the new Democratic newspaper firm at that place. He seems to think that the prospective proprietors are not of the old moss-back line, but anything for policy. That being the case Bro. McEwen should receive the more hearty support from the Democracy of Jasper county, for they certainly have never had a man to hew to the line more closely than he.

We don't 'seem to think'—we know that prior to 1874 James was an uncompromising and bitter republican. In 1874 he opposed that party, whether from 'policy' or 'for revenue' we leave for those who know, to say. In 1876 he returned to the republican wallow. What 'policy,' 'conviction' or 'revenue' might have induced him to do in 1878, had we not become established here, we are not prepared to state. In 1879 he was made the recipient of part of the plunder that had come into the possession of Fraud Hayes by virtue of the presidential steal. He was active and zealous in his efforts for that party during his occupancy of that office.

"This occasion reminds me most vividly of the scene when four years ago I received a message from my party similar to that which you now deliver. With all that has passed since that day I can truly say that the feeling of awe with which I heard the summons then is intensified many fold when it is repeated now. Four years ago I knew that our chief executive office, if not carefully guarded might drift, little by little, away from the people to whom it belonged, and become a perversion of all it ought to be; but I did not know how much its moorings had already been loosened. I knew four years ago how well devised were the principles of true democracy for the successful operation of a government by the people and for the people; but I did not know how absolutely necessary their application then was for the restoration to the people of their safety and prosperity. I knew then that abuses and extravagances had crept into the management of public affairs; but I did not know their numerous forms nor the tenacity of their grasp. I knew then something of the bitterness of partisan obstruction; but I did not know how bitter, how reckless and how shameless it could be. I knew, too, that the American people were patriotic and just; but I did not know how grandly they loved their country, nor how noble or generous they were. I shall not dwell upon the acts and the policy of the administration now drawing to a close. Its record is open to every citizen of the land. And yet I will not be denied the privilege of asserting at this time that in the exercise of the functions of the high trust confided to me, I have yielded obedience only to the constitution and the solemn obligation of my oath of office. I have done those things, which in the light of the understanding God has given me, so much most conducive to the welfare of my countrymen and the promotion of good government. I would not if I could for myself nor for you, avoid a single consequence of a fair interpretation of my course.

Goodland Herald.—A young Democrat, of Rensselaer, who has already reached the bottom of the legal ladder, and who never was and is not a subscriber to the Herald, wants to know "why we don't give more railroad news." Verily, this aspiring young lawyer, like hundreds of others, is a reader, but not a subscriber. The men who borrow newspapers also borrow books, and the most there is of them is borrowed material.

NOTIFIED.

The Committee appointed to notify President Cleveland of the action of the Democratic National Convention, called at the White House on Tuesday last in performance of that duty. In response the President said:

I cannot but be profoundly impressed when I see about me the messengers of the national democracy, bearing its summons to duty. The political party to which I owe allegiance both honors and commands me. It places in my hands its proud standard, and bids me bear it high at the front, in a battle which it wages, bravely because conscious of right, confidently because its trust is in the people, and soberly because it comprehends the obligations which success imposes. The message which you bring awakens within me the liveliest sense of personal gratitude and satisfaction, and the honor which you tender me is in itself so great that there might well be no room for any other sentiment. And yet I cannot rid myself of grave and serious thoughts when I remember that party supremacy is not alone involved in the conflict which presses upon us, but that we struggle to secure and save the cherished institutions, the welfare and happiness of a nation of freemen.

Familiarity with the great office which I hold has but added to my apprehension of its sacred character and the consecration demanded of him who assumes its immense responsibilities. It is the repository of the people's will and power. Within its vision should be the protection and welfare of the humblest citizen; and with quick ear it should catch from the remotest corner of the land the plea of the people for justice and for right. For the sake of the people he who holds this office of theirs should resist every encroachment upon its legitimate functions; and for the sake of the integrity and usefulness of the office it should be kept near to the people and be administered in full sympathy with their wants and needs.

With all that has passed since that day I can truly say that the feeling of awe with which I heard the summons then is intensified many fold when it is repeated now. "It but remains for me to say to you, and through you, to the democracy of the nation, that I accept the nomination with which they have honored me, and that I will in due time signify such acceptance in the usual formal manner."

Here is the republican candidate as he was dished up in the Chicago Tribune of last Saturday:

HARRISON, unpopular at home, disliked abroad; not supported by any German newspaper or recognized by any German leader in the United States; not numbering among his close friends one man who ever served with him in the senate of the United States; hated in California because he voted fourteen times against the restriction of Chinese immigration; opposed in his own state because he is cold and distant in his manner and identified with every public act that has ever been adopted which could wound the sensibilities of voters not numbered among his own particular clique in the republican party; having strong support among politicians, but little among the rank and file of the party; never elected to any office save that of reporter of the supreme court by the popular vote, and it not probable that he ever will be; the residuary legatee of the New York Central railroad.

Personal.

Mr. N. H. Frohlichstein, of Mobile Ala., writes: I take great pleasure in recommending Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, having used it for a severe attack of Bronchitis and Cataract. It gave me instant relief and entirely cured me and I have not been afflicted since. I also beg to state that I had tried other remedies with no good result. Have also used Electric Bitters and Dr. King's New Life Pills, both of which I can recommend.

Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, is sold on a positive guarantee.

SHERIFF'S SALE.

BY virtue of a certified copy of Decree and Execution to me directed from the Clerk of the Jasper Circuit Court, in a Cause No. 3828 wherein Rufus K. Syfers and Frank McBride were plaintiffs and Allison Carson and Ohava Carson were defendants, requiring me to make the sum of Three Hundred and Sixty nine Dollars and twenty-one cents ($369.21), together with interest and costs, I will expose at public sale on between the hours of 10 o'clock a.m. and 4 o'clock p.m. of said day, at the door of the Court House in the Town of Rensselaer, Jasper County, Indiana, the rents and profits, for a term not exceeding seven ("7") years, by the year of the following described real estate, to wit:

The south east quarter 1/4 of the south west quarter of section thirty-two ("32"), township thirty-one ("31"), range five ("5") west, in Jasper County, Indiana.

And should such rents and profits not sell for a sum sufficient to discharge said copy of Decree and Execution, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place, and in the manner aforesaid, expose at public sale the fee-simple right of said defendants in and to said real estate or so much thereof as shall be sufficient to discharge said copy of Decree and Execution, interest and costs.

Said sale will be made without relief and in accordance with the order of Court in said copy of Decree and Execution.

SAMUEL E. YEOMAN, Sheriff Jasper County, Indiana.

U. Z. Willey, Atty for plffs.
