SHERIFF'S SALE

BY VIRTUE of a certified copy of a Decree to me directed from the Clerk of the Jasper Circuit Court, in Cause No. 3566 wherein William J. Sparks and Henry C. Snow were plaintiffs and William H. Bradley et al. were defendants, requiring me to make the sum of One Hundred and Ninety-six dollars and eight cents ($196.08), together with interest and costs, I will expose at public sale on SATURDAY, MARCH the 9th, A. D. 1889, between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m., of said day, at the door of the Court House in the Town of Rensselaer, Jasper county, Indiana, the rents and profits, for a term not exceeding seven (7) years by the year, of the following described real estate to-wit:

The south half (½) of the southwest quarter (¼) and the southwest quarter (¼) of the southeast quarter (¼) of section thirty-three (33), township thirty-three (33) north range six (6) west, without relief and without redemption; and also the undivided one-half (½) of the south half (½) of the southwest quarter (¼) and the southwest quarter (¼) of the southeast quarter (¼) of section thirty-three (33), township thirty-three (33) north range six (6) west with relief and with redemption.

And should such rents and profits not sell for a sufficient sum to discharge said Decree with interest and costs, I will, at the same time and place, and in the manner aforesaid expose at public sale the fee simple right of said defendants in and to said real estate or so much thereof as shall be sufficient to discharge said Decree with interest and costs.

Said sale will be made in accordance with the order of Court in said Decree.

The Indiana State Sentinel

The Best Family Newspaper in America!
The Best State Paper in Indiana

"CREAM AND NOT SKIM MILK" IS OUR MOTTO.

The Indiana State Sentinel is walking rapidly to the lead as one of the best family newspapers in the country. It is so large and full of news that people wonder at the low price at which it is published. Its merits as a family paper will be told to you by every one of its numerous readers. They will tell you that every week they find notes and news from every county in the State and from every locality in the United States and the Old World. They will tell you that every week they find articles from people in every calling of life—how this farmer prospered, how that one failed; the cost and profit of crops last raised; the management of cattle and live stock of all kinds; the treatment of orchards, farms, fields, and a thousand and one other matters in which people are interested. The Farmer's Household is well and ably represented by his wife and daughters, who take you into their parlors and kitchens, gardens and dairies, and tell you each occupy their time for their own profit and the good of others. They contribute thousands of recipes for preparing food, curing meats, making all kinds of cakes, ornaments, for the house and personal adornments, all having a tendency to increase and improve the comforts of home and fireside. Other features of The State Sentinel are its leading and fearless editorials; its home correspondence; its telegraphic markets; its humorous, commercial and financial departments—all combining to make it what is required for a No. 1 family journal.

The Daily Sentinel will be sent to any address for 50 cents per month.

The Sunday Sentinel will be sent to any address for $2.00 per year.

WIT of the Past and of the Present.

Among the multitudinous complaints of the present, nothing is more frequently heard than regret over the lack of social brilliancy. The good things that have been said by wits, diners-out and bon vivants are periodically dragged to the front and made to contrast with the rapid gaiety and wearisome conventionality of the present. The brilliant man or woman of former generations had an immense advantage in that their sayings were caught upon the diamond pen of some professional man of letters, reburnished and handed down to us in the form of permanent literature. Now the best minds do not work for the special benefit of my Lord or my Lady, or, indeed, for any private coterie. They seek a larger audience. No brighter scintillations ever flashed forth within the best-furnished banquet hall of the past than may be heard at many a public or semi-public gathering to-day. But the exigencies of to-day press upon one another. The chronicling of all the good things is left to the newspaper reporter, and however nimble his pen and wide ambitious his brain, the result again is subject to the exigencies of the newspaper office, or to the press of business upon the city editor.—Boston Transcript.

Still Larger.

An enterprising tobacconist in London, whose name was Far, advertised himself and his wares simultaneously by writing up in conspicuous lettering over his store, "The best tobacco by Far." A rival on the opposite side of the way, not to be outdone, at once proclaimed the superiority of his stock by advertising, "Far better tobacco than the best tobacco by Far." This reminds me of the New York Mail of the story of the man who, returning from the far West to civilization, saw a sign up outside a saloon, "The largest bear in the world." After paying his twenty-five cents and entering the sight, he noticed another sign across the street, "Larger bear," and as he once returned and demanded the bear back, on the ground that it had been extorted under false pretences, as the was a larger bear over the way.

In England hay is considered so necessary that notwithstanding the difficulty of curing it there it constitutes an important food for stock. In the West, with our hot, dry harvests, the curing of hay is comparatively simple. As a rule the hay may be cut down in the morning and raked the same afternoon. If allowed to lie in the heaps until sweating has fairly commenced, it may then be removed to the stack, and it will come out bright, sweet and comparatively free from dust. When clover constitutes a considerable part of the hay more care is necessary. The leaves form the important part of the value

No Cut in Wages.

The employees of a Michigan railroad had been trembling in their boots over a reduction of wages, when an agent, dispatched from headquarters, passed along the line and said to the various station officials:

"I am happy to inform you that there will be no cut in salaries."

"Good. My salary is so small that I could hardly stand a cut of 5 per cent."

"The road is not making any money, but the President feels that every employe is earning his salary, and that, perhaps, the fall business may bring us out all right. Put your name down for what you can afford."

"On what?"

"Why, on this paper. It is a subscription to buy the President a $2,000 silver tea-set as a token of the esteem of the employes. Let's see? You get $600 per year. If you put your name down for $50 you will be giving all you can afford. Rest easy, Mr. Blank, there will be no cut in salaries." — Washington News.

George III. Makes His Own Bishop.

When Archbishop Moore died, Manners Sutton was Bishop of Norwich, and also Dean of Windsor. He was at that moment residing at his deanery, and was entertaining a party of friends at dinner. In the middle of dinner the butler came up to him with an excited face. "Beg pardon, my Lord, a gentleman wishes to see your Lordship directly, but he won't give his name." "Nonsense," said the Bishop; "I can't come now, of course." "The gentleman says it is very important—very important, indeed, my Lord, or he wouldn't disturb you." "Well," said the Bishop, some what crossly, "ask him to wait a few minutes till I have finished my dinner."

"Beg pardon, my Lord," said the butler, persistently, and with some confidence, "but you had better see the gentleman directly." The Bishop, amazed at his man's coolness, made an apology to his guests and went into the next room, where he was still more amazed to find King George III., who, as usual, was breathless and rapid. "How d'ye do, my Lord? how d'ye do? eh—eh? Just came to tell you Archbishop of Canterbury is dead—died this morning—want you to be new Archbishop—you know, new Archbishop. What d'ye say—eh—eh?" The Bishop stood dumbfounded, and the King broke in again, "Well, d'ye accept—d'ye accept—eh, eh?" The Bishop had by this time recovered himself sufficiently to bow gratefully and murmur his thankful acceptance. "All right," said his Majesty; "go back, got a party, I know; very glad you accept. Good-night, good-night, good-night." And with that he bustled away. The fact was that he anticipated exactly what happened. Mr. Pitt came down to his Majesty next morning to inform him that the Archbishop was dead, and to recommend to his Majesty Bishop Pretyman (Tomline) for the vacant primacy. The King, who had rather too much of Bishop Pretyman at Mr. Pitt's hands, resolved to be first in the field, and was now able to tell his Prime Minister that he had already appointed the Bishop of Norwich.—Macmillan's Magazine.

YOUNG man, remember that a friend is another self. The one needs the assistance of the other. If you have found a true friend be thou true to him, for ye know not at what hour that friend will prove himself to you a friend indeed.

"TOM, do you ever have another wife beside mother?" "No, my boy; what possessed you to ask such a question?" "Because I saw in the old family Bible where you married Anne Donini in 1835, and that isn't mother, for her name was Sally Smith."

The only contrivance that women can afford to receive from men, in work, wages, and general conduct, is fair play, equal advantages, and equal wages. No woman will ever ask of men other than as great pay always as they treat each other.—Inter Ocean.
