fit of actual settlers. It is the most important step taken under the Cleveland administration. It was the great opportunity that opened up before Mr. Stockslager, and he seized it with a bold hand, and fortified his position by unanswerable arguments. His other work, compared with this, was mere routine work, faithfully and honestly performed, which reflected credit upon him as an efficient officer, but this latter act, restoring to the people these millions of acres of land, places him above all his predecessors in its far-reaching effects for public good.

THE ISSUE REMAINS.

Ten States, says the New York World, will hold elections on the 5th of November next, and it is safe to say that in all of them the contest will be fought on substantially the same lines, so far as National politics are involved, as those of the late Presidential campaign.

The war tariff still remains to burden industry and to hold out illusive hopes to labor. The surplus still swells and continues as a menace to business and an incitement to Congressional extravagance. The rich beneficiaries of this most unjust and unequal system of taxation arrogantly deny to their workmen, now that their bounties are secure for "four years more," not only a fair share in the benefits but a decent hearing of their grievances.

And so the issue remains. The position of the Democratic party upon this question is what it has always been. The Democratic party began in 1840 to de-ounce taxation of the many for the benefit of the few. It has never swerved from this position. It declared in the same platform at "no more revenue ought to be raised than is required to defray the necessary expenses of the Government" on a basis of "the most rigid economy." It has constantly reaffirmed this doctrine. — In 1876 the enduring Tilden platform denounced the tariff as "a masterpiece of injustice, inequality and false pretense," and demanded that "all custom house taxation shall be only for revenue." In the last campaign the party simply maintained its historic position.

It will stick and win.

A WOMAN'S DISCOVERY.
"Another wonderful discovery has been made and that too by a lady in this county. Disease fastened its clutches upon her and for seven years she withstood its severest tests but her vital organs were undermined and death seemed imminent. For three months she coughed incessantly and could not sleep. She bought of us a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption and was so much relieved on taking first dose that she slept all night and with one bottle has been miraculo sly cured. Her name is Mrs. Luther Lutz." Thus write W. C. Hamrick & Co., of Shelby, N. C.—Get a free trial bottle at F. B. Meyer's Drug Store. 2

THE turnip-root celery, under whose name this variety of celery is generally sold, is comparatively little known outside of our large city markets, while on the Continent of Europe it is grown to the almost entire exclusion of the stalk kinds. In these two varieties of the same species it is simply shown how much systematic and persistent cultivation can accomplish in the development of special and different characteristics. While in the one the vitality of plant becomes directed to its development of the leaves, in the other it is turned to the enlargement of the roots. In celeriac the productions of large, tender roots is the object to be attained. These roots, which are irregular, round, of the size of a large turnip, white outside and inside and of a texture similar to parsnips, are principally used as salad. They are boiled like beets, peeled, sliced and dressed with vinegar, olive oil, salt and pepper. A favorite way of serving this salad is to arrange it in the center of a dish, and surround it with a broad rim of red cold-slaw, edged with some leaves of corn-salad, the contrasting colors of red, green and white making an ornamental and attractive dish. The sowing of the seed, transplanting and after management differ but little from that of common celery, except that, as it requires not to be hilled-up, it may be planted closer, placing the rows two feet apart and setting the plants a foot apart in the rows. To obtain large and tender roots the soil must be loose, deep and moderately rich, and in dry seasons a thorough soaking of water should be given every two or three days. The roots are not injured by light frosts, but they are not hardy enough to winter out doors, and should therefore be heeled-in in a cool cellar, or kept in boxes covered with soil or sand. —American Gardener.

HOW VOLTAIRE CURED THE DECAY OF HIS STOMACH.—In the "Memoirs of Count Segur" there is the following anecdote: "My mother, the Countess de Segur, being asked by Voltaire respecting her health, told him that the most painful feeling she had arose from the decay in her stomach and the difficulty of finding any kind of aliment that it could bear. Voltaire, by way of consolation, assured her that he was once for nearly a year in the same state, and believed to be incurable, but that, nevertheless, a very simple remedy had restored him. It consisted in taking no other nourishment than yolks of eggs beaten up with the flour of potatoes and water." Though this circumstance concerned so extraordinary a person as Voltaire, it is astonishing how little it is known and how rarely the remedy has been practiced. Its efficacy, however, in cases of debility, cannot be questioned, and the following is the mode of preparing this valuable article of food as recommended by Sir John Sinclair. Beat up an egg in a bowl, and then add six table-spoonfuls of cold water, mixing the whole well together; then add two table-spoonfuls of farina of potatoes; let it be mixed thoroughly with the liquid in the bowl; then pour in as much boiling water as will convert the whole thing into a jelly, and mix it well. It may be taken alone or with the addition of a little milk in case of stomachic debility or consumptive disorders.—Scientific American.

MERIT WINS.

We desire to say to our citizens that for years we have been selling Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Dr. King's New Life Pills, Bucklen's Arnica Salve and Electric Bitters, and have never handled remedies that sell as well, or that have given such universal satisfaction.— We do not hesitate to guarantee them every time, and we stand ready to refund the purchase price, if satisfactory results do not follow their use. These remedies have won their great popularity purely on their merits.— F. B. Meyer, Druggist. 1

HOUSEKEEPERS' HELPS.

PRESSED VEAL.—Take three pounds of veal chopped fine, two pounds of lean, raw pork, also chopped fine, three eggs, a piece of butter the size of an egg; pepper and salt well; bake two hours. When cold, slice it thin. It is like pressed meat and is very nice.

TO REMOVE PAINT.—One pound of soft soap, one pound of soda; dissolve in one pint of boiling water; lay a thick coat (while hot) upon the paint with brush; leave it for one or two hours until it begins to soften the paint, then scrape off what you can and repeat. When all is removed wash thoroughly with clean water.

BRUNSWICK BLACK, thinned down with turpentine until it has attained the right tone and color, will, if a little varnish is added—about one-twentieth of the bulk of the black and turpentine—prove a stain for imitating walnut and teak wood. There is no difficulty in getting the mixture to dry hard, and it will take a coat of varnish first class.

LETTUCE CHOPS.—Beat each chop fine, and laid each with strips of salt pickled, brown quite through, so as to protect both sides of the chop. Put on a saucepan, sprinkle with minced onion, pepper and parsley, and barely cover with any weak broth you may chance to have. Put on the saucepan lid, set it where it will not boil under one hour. Then increase the heat, and immerse half an hour, or until tender.
Take up the chops and keep hot.
Thicken gravy with brown flour and add the juice of one lemon. Put back the chops, and heat to a weak boil.
Lay the chops on the dish, pour over the gravy and serve.

[illegible]

slowly one hour and a half.

VEAL STEW.—Cut the veal into small strips. Cut a dozen large potatoes into thin slices, place a layer of veal on the bottom of a stewpan, season and then place a layer of potatoes on top. Continue until all is used. Over the last layer of veal spread thin slices of salt pork. Cover with water and cook.

and a half teaspoonful of sugar, and a half teaspoonful of baking powder, two eggs, two spoonsful of baking powder, two eggs, cinnamon. Mix thoroughly, adding the eggs and milk last. Set to a baking pan, and bake on a hot, well greased gridle.

Now Milk.—Pick and wash the rice carefully; boil it in water until it swells and softens; when the water is boiled away, add some milk. It may be boiled entirely in milk, by setting the vessel between two white sugars and stirring with a little flour or beanflour, with constant stirring.
