

FRIDAY JULY 12 1860

The State Board of Education has accepted the bid of the Indiana school-book company to furnish the school-books, under the new law. They trust and its supporters may now retire with as good grace as possible.

Our neighbor this week seems to be drifting about on adverse and contrary winds. In a short editorial article, he declares "that never in the history of the country was there a time when the wages of labor or the products of the soil would purchase so much of the necessities and comforts of life as now; and there is no other country on earth where working-men and farmers earn and enjoy so much as they do in this land of tariff protection." Our neighbor is exceedingly wild in his statements. He gives his readers no information with reference to the existing state of affairs in the 'tariff protected' coal fields of Clay county, where the coal barons are seeking to reduce the compensation of the workingmen—through whose toil they have become millionaires—down to what would be equivalent to 55 cents per day.

He will not inform his readers that the Clay county coal miners—employed in a largely protected industry—are in an actual state of starvation, dependent for what little they get upon the charities of the people—would not even insert, for the information of the charitably disposed of his readers, the enforced proclamation of his own Governor announcing that these workingmen are in need, and entitled to the charities of the people. He will not inform his readers that Carnegie, whose income from the toil of his workingmen is $5,000 per day, is now advertising for men to take the places of workingmen who refuse to be reduced still lower in the scale of starvation.

But the funny part of our neighbor's claim for 'the benefits of protection' is that it tends to add to the fertility of the soil, increases production to such an extent that "there is no other country on earth where * * farmers earn and enjoy so much as they do in this land of tariff protection." We knew the farmer had no place in the tariff schedule, and have always been at a loss to determine wherein he derived benefits from it, but our neighbor explains it to our satisfaction!

Another funny claim is, in the reproduction of an article from the Inter-Ocean which seeks to prove that the protective tariff does not enhance the price of the article it is designed to protect.

A Cincinnati Star-Times reporter recently interviewed a miner, and from the interview we cull the following, referring to a miner, who was also clerk of the village:

"Why, a neighbor heard the children of the clerk of the village crying one night and went over and found that they were crying because the mother was trying to put them to bed hungry. Think of that, the cleek of the corporation, a man elected to office by his fellow-citizens and known and respected by all, sending his children hungry to bed, with nothing in the house to give them."

This of an employe of a heavily protected industry! But then it should be remembered that it is the millionaire employer who receives the benefit of protection in the enhanced price of the protected article. Who has not heard the proposition—"let the government take care of the rich, and the rich will take care of the poor." The workings of that plan is now beautifully illustrated in the protected plants all over the land.

The Republican gives the Republican Town Board of Rensselaer a regular "bazoo" for its award of the contract for a large culvert to Lewis Day for three hundred dollars more than the lowest bid. We know the Board did not do it through any love entertained for Day's politics, and the columns of the Sentinel are open to the Board for any explanation it may desire to make.

About 100,000 of the colored citizens of Kansas propose to emigrate to Oklahoma.

A PLEASANT GATHERING.

A large number of the relatives of John C. Barkley assembled at the residence of Mrs. Jane Shaw, his sister, in Barkley township, on Tuesday last, to pass a day together before his departure for his home in Missouri. Mr. E. had designed leaving on Monday, but on the suggestion that it would be pleasant and agreeable to have an assemblage of the friends he postponed his leave-taking for two days.

The affair was gotten up on exceedingly short notice, and in the hurry notice failed to reach some. Nevertheless there were present:

Sisters—Bell Barkley, Mary Parkison, Jane Shaw and Rose Murray.

Brother-in-law—W. W. Murray.

Sister-in-law—Mrs. H. A. Barkley.

Nephews and nieces, and families—Mary, Will and Charlie Murray; Willie and Earl Barkley; H. B. Murray and family; Granville Moody and family; Geo. B., Ed., Jas. and Ad. Parkison and families; Sam. English and wife.

Cousins—Jas. W. McEwen and family.

Neighbors—Wm. Bull, wife and daughter; Smith Newell and wife; Miss Dora English, and before the party broke up Ad. Parkison, of this place, put in an appearance and was welcomed.

About sixty-five took part in the festivities.

It was regretted that other relatives could not be reached by mail, and that the time of those having matter in charge was necessarily so fully occupied as to preclude the service of personal notice.

The well known hospitality and ability of the friends in the Barkley settlement to provide abundantly for any occasion renders it unnecessary for us to go into details with reference to this. The large tables, spread in the handsome grove, fairly groaned under the weight of luxurious plenty.

The day was happily, pleasantly and profitably spent, and not till the sun began to sink in the west was a movement made to bring the enjoyments of the day to a close.

The occasion will long be remembered by those who participated, and particularly by John C. Barkley, in whose honor it was gotten up. It forms a page in his life-history which, in the remaining years that may be allotted him, he will look back upon with pleasure and reflections.
