

Democratic Sentinel

FRIDAY DECEMBER 13 1889

The renomination of Cleveland in 1892 is predicted by Ex-Speaker Carlisle.

Last week Senator Voorhees introduced a bill in the Senate to increase the pensions of those who lost a limb, or limbs, or both eyes, in the army.

The loyal soul of our neighbor of the Republican is intensely stirred over a prayer uttered by the chaplain of House. As a rule you can safely bet on the extreme loyalty of a stay-at-home republican.

Dudley visited Indianapolis the other day and the district attorney notified commissioner Van Buren not to have a warrant served on him. Evidently fraud, in the interest of the republican party, may be committed with impunity.

Here is a pointer to drivers on the roadways: The law provides that if a man wants to go faster than another one ahead of him on the road is going he has a right to pass, and if he is prevented by the other, and an accident should happen thereby, the man thus obstructing the road is responsible for damage done. No man has a right, however, to infringe upon the rights of others trying to pass. —Exchanges.

The Rensselaer Republican says — "The snide school-book law has received another knock-out in the courts. Judge Fraser, of Warsaw, has decided that the law does not make the use of the books in the schools, obligatory."

Referring to the same decision, the Indianapolis News, the leading Republican paper in the state, says: "The decision of Judge Fraser of Kosciusko county on the school-book question leaves the ring of rascals, whose plundering this law choked off, cold comfort. The decision affirms the constitutionality of the law, and not only this, but offers with it an obiter dictum that the legislature could make the law compulsory where it did not. It brushes aside the whimper which the corruptionists set up, that the public officers could not be compelled to wait on the people in supplying them with school books. It also makes an end of the imbecile chatter about the present supply being a monopoly, and, in so doing, it speaks of the scoundrelism of the old ring in its supply of books to the people. As to compulsion, the judge holds that the present law does not declare this, leaving this point open to the local authorities. But as the law imposes a standard as to certain books both in quality and price, it would certainly limit the local authorities in that regard. They could not buy poorer nor more expensive books. We may expect a final clearing up of the question from the supreme court, and then if there has been a loop-hole left in the present law, the people will stop it up at the next legislature. The school book plunderers are going to be driven out of Indiana, bag and baggage. They may just as well make up their minds to that. And it is the beginning of their exodus from other states; which is why they are fighting so desperately here with their suborned newspapers and anonymous lying circulars."

To William Wade Dudley: Our $1,000 awaits your affidavit. Will you take it?—Indianapolis Sentinel to Dudley when in that city.

Senator Turpie has introduced a bill in the Senate to pension all soldiers at the rate of one cent a month for each day they were in the army. This would be an average of $11 a month for all three years.

Senator Turpie has introduced a bill in the Senate to confiscate the goods of 'trusts' and other combinations. In a speech in support of his measure, the Senator said: Trusts were the gigantic sin of this age and generation. They were an iniquitous system that honey combed the whole world of domestic commerce with fraud, falsehood, suspicion, distrust and impurity. The trust was a nuisance, open and notorious, but it could not be grappled with and suppressed as other nuisances, and such legislation as was proposed in the bills introduced by Mr. Sherman and Mr. George (in conjunction with his own proposition for confiscation of trust goods) should be enacted and enforced.

Persons attending the Temperance Conference at Indianapolis on December 18 and 19, wishing to return at one-third full fare, must not neglect to obtain a certificate from the agent where the ticket is bought and have the secretary of the conference certify to his or her attendance. Tickets may be bought Monday, Tuesday or Wednesday, and will be good to and over Saturday. Reduced rates have been obtained at all the principal hotels, and the meeting promises to be the largest held for many years.
