POOB.

The transition from long, lingering and painful sickness to robust health marks an epoch in the life of the individual. Such a remarkable event is treasured in the memory and the agency whereby the good health has been attained is gratefully blessed. Hence it is that so much is heard in praise of Electric Bitters. So many feel they owe their restoration to health to the use of the Great Alterative and Tonic. If you are troubled with any disease of Kidneys, Liver or Stomach, if long or short standing, you will surely find relief by use of Electric Bitters. Sold at 50c and $1 per bottle at F. B. Meyer's Drug Store.

A Vain Search.
 Yellowly—"Why, Brownly, how bad you look this morning. Did you sleep any last night?"
 Brownly—"Not a wink."
 "Anybody sick?"
 "I am."
 "What's the matter?"
 "Well, you see my wife has been in the habit of going through my pockets at night, and I thought what was good for the gander was good for the goose, so after she fell asleep last night I arose and set out to go through her pocket."

"Get anything?"
 "No. Searched the dress over and over, spent the whole night at it, but couldn't find the pocket."

Equal to the Occasion.
 The following conversation took place in a clothing dealer's store in Boston the other day:

Customer—"You say that the price of the coat is thirteen dollars. Don't you know that thirteen is an unlucky number? Make it twelve, and I'll owe you one."

Dealer—"No, no, mine friend! Of thirteen was an unlucky number, make it fourteen, and I owe you ten."

No Wonders.
 Jokes, like poems, are worth all the more if they happen to be sensible.
 Clara—"What a terrible noise that wagon makes!"
 George—"Yes, it's dreadful, isn't it?"
 Clara—"What makes it groan so?"
 George—"Why, it is filled with green apples."

A MAN IN THE HOUSE.

Interesting Information Which Was Imparted at 1 O'Clock in the Morning.

They say that when John H. Oberly, the "bishop," was a younger man than he is now he was an irrepressible joker. A member of the Jefferson Club, who claims to know what he is talking about, tells the St. Louis Republic that John was born at just 1 o'clock in the morning, and relates the following circumstance concerning the twenty-first anniversary of that event. The entire household was asleep, excepting, presumably, young Oberly. At a few minutes after 1 o'clock he went to the door of each bed-room, and with feigned cautiousness aroused the sleeper, saying:

"There's a man in the house."
 Presently everybody was up and half dressed. Some ventured out into the halls, others stood timidly in their half-open doorways, while still others remained out of sight behind locked doors.

"Come out here," said John to those who had not left their rooms; "I tell you there's a man in the house."
 Finally he succeeded in getting everybody into the hall, where the group stood half afraid, half ashamed to show fear.

"Where is he?" said one.
 "Here I am," answered John. "I am a man. I am a man. I was twenty-one fifteen minutes ago."

CONVERTED BY LOVE.

Dr. Garner Accepts Christianity and Becomes a Husband.

At Baltimore something of a sensation was created recently when it was learned that Dr. Samuel Garner, professor of languages at the United States Naval academy at Annapolis, and Miss Emily F. Owens, a very cultured lady of Baltimore, had been married. There is a very interesting romance connected with the affair, interest in which has been intensified by the high standing of both parties in the field of letters.

Dr. Garner was for a long time connected with the Johns Hopkins university, successively as a student, assistant librarian, and instructor, and during this time formed the acquaintance of Miss Owens, the daughter of a well-known citizen of that city, now deceased, and they soon became fast friends. Both were well educated and good-looking and both were well off in this world's goods.

There was only one barrier which prevented the marriage, and that was the religious differences of the loving couple. Dr. Garner was a confirmed infidel, while the lady was a devout believer in Christianity. He hoped to win her as his bride, but she was firm and said she would marry none but a Christian. Dr. Garner could not bring himself to believe the doctrine of Christianity, and, seeing that his pursuit of the hand of Miss Owens was hopeless, he determined to forget her.

With this end in view he went to the far West. There after awhile he accidentally became a boarder in the house of a minister of the gospel. The divine, thinking the young man a hopeless infidel, did not try to change his thoughts to things Christian. In a few years, however, Garner noticed in what perfect harmony the minister and his wife lived together, and then for the first time he began to realize that perhaps it was better for a man and wife to be Christians than for them to hold widely different opinions on religious topics.

All hope of wedding his first love had long died out. To him she was nothing but a memory, but he asked the divine to lend him some books, which request was gladly complied with, and in due course Samuel Garner became a Christian man.

By corresponding with friends in Baltimore, to his delight, he found that Miss Owens was still unmarried. Letters were at once exchanged between them, and Mr. Garner set out for Baltimore. The culmination of the story was had when the two happy hearts became one.

A DOG'S QUEER HOBBY.

He Rides on Streetcars Every Chance He Gets.

A valuable field spaniel owned by H. T. Jaeger of Rochester, N. Y., has been missed at intervals for a day at a time, but until recently has always returned home by the hour for meals. One day, however, he disappeared and was gone for two days. His owner advertised for him, and the following day he was returned by a man who had discovered his peculiar mania.

It was riding on streetcars. His master had often noticed that when he started from home the dog was first to get on the car, and it now appears that the animal had become an habitual passenger, his favorite place being with his paws on the window sill looking out of the car. He will get aboard of any car he sees, and rides till he is put off. The day when he was missed it was ascertained from the drivers that the dog had boarded a Monroe avenue car at Union street, rode as far as the Four Corners, where all the lines center, changed to a Lake avenue car, was put off at the Driving park, was afterward found under the seat on the same car and put off, but was afterward taken on the same line and returned to its owner. Mr. Jaeger proposes now to get a season ticket, good on all the street railroads, and attach it to the dog's collar so that the animal may indulge his street car propensities in a proper and legal way.

May Come Yet.
 "Marriages are made in heaven," quoth Miss Antique.
 "Then there is some chance for you yet," was the cruel response of her younger sister.
