The tariff is a tax.

And the consumer will have it to pay.

Importers and jobbers are sending out circulars to their customers notifying them of increase in price of goods rendered necessary by the passage of the McKinley tax bill.

The window glass manufacturers will advance prices October 15th to conform with the rates fixed for them by the McKinley tax bill. This tax levied on the consumer all goes into the pockets of the manufacturers. The government will not get a penny of it.

McKinley, in his speech accepting a nomination to congress sought to console his friends with the statement, "the tariff will pinch the people for a while." He did not state how long the "pinching" process would last. Very consoling?

Thousands of miners at Ishpeming, Mich., have struck for higher wages, and this in the face of a tariff bill passed in the interest of home products. Home products, the property of the employer of labor is protected, but the laborer, the producer of the product, according to McKinley and the republican party let them strike and be d-d. Their places can be filled by imported negroes and foreigners. Blessed tariff!

The canned goods industry receives a hard hit from the McKinley tax bill. Tin has already advanced 60 per cent. But, according to Jay Gould, the consumer can reduce his tax by using one can instead of two. Poor Jay is a philo-sopher.

Jay Gould, the millionaire, says "If the McKinley Tariff increases the cost of some articles people will simply use less of them. If the tariff on wool makes clothing cost more a person will get along with one suit where he would otherwise have two." McKinley should have added a section to his tax bill taxing such Jay Gould philosophy. The failure to do so may be regarded as an oversight, as he no doubt thought he had taxed everything.

Indianapolis manufacturing establishments are reducing the wages of their employees. McKinley, Owen & Co., and our own "Republican" told the people it would increase wages, and that the consumer would not pay the tax. What think ye?

Read the expose of the design of the Republican party to import negroes into Indiana to compete with our wage-workers in their efforts to earn a livelihood, and to vote the republican ticket. The Indianapolis News, a republican supporter of Harrison, says of the infamous scheme: "There is no questioning the reality or baseness of the proposition." "The people should gibber this infamy." Let honest men ponder. The theft of the presidency for Hayes; the open purchase of voters for Garfield; the "blocks-of-five" methods for Harrison; and the proposition now entertained by the managers of that party to colonize a sufficient number of negroes in the States of Indiana, Connecticut and West Virginia to stifle the expression of the people of these States, should cause every honest man to leave that party in disgust.

The Patterson (N. J.) silk factories have given notice of a 10 per cent. reduction in wages. We don't think the employees interested in this notice will hang in their parlors the motto: "God bless the tariff."

Louis S. Hayes, of Chicago propounds the following tariff questions to the Tribune of that city: "The republican party advocates a tariff on foreign articles and manufactures," says Mr. Hayes. "in order to protect and foster home labor? Why does not our republican congress provide a system of government inspection requiring the manufacturer to pay a tariff or percentage on each 'head' of foreign labor employed in American industries? It seems to me but logical to presume that if a tariff on foreign productions is a good thing for home industries a tariff on foreign labor should also be a good thing for home labor." Mr. Hayes' questions are full of meat for farmers and wage-workers.

Phelps, Dodge & Co., the greatest importers of tin-plate in the country, say:

As importers and metal dealers we simply add the duty to the price of our goods and the consumer pays it. The effect of the duty on tin will be widely felt.

Bro. Marshall always argues that the foreign manufacturers pay it.

John Sherman says there is nothing new in reciprocity. It is surely not new that genuine reciprocity is real free trade.

The Democracy of Colorado "demand a lower duty upon the necessities of life and a wider market for American products."

Resolutions of Non-Convention.

Resolved, That we the Democracy of the 10th district, Indiana, in delegate convention assembled, do fully indorse the platform adopted by the Democratic State convention Aug. 28, 1890.

That we deplore the depressed condition of trade in this country, superinduced by over taxation, and that we condemn W. D. Owen, Republican Representative for this district in Congress, for his failure to make any effort to relieve the people from needless and oppressive burdens.

That we unqualifiedly censure Congressman Owen for his reprehensible distribution of federal favors ignoring as he has the old veterans and the promises made them by appointing in many cases ward politicians and political heelers whose only recommendations and qualifications and qualifications for the offices they fill consist in their ability to manipulate party politics and dictate nominations to further the interests of W. D. Owen and his immediate friends.

That we condemn Congressman Owen for his affiliation with the majority in Congress in degrading the House of Representatives from a deliberative body into a one man despotism, thus enabling the partisan majority to unseat legally elected Democrats in order to strengthen their extravagant and erroneous legislative policies.

That we solicit the aid and assistance of conservative men of all political parties in the election of a representative to Congress who will faithfully and impartially serve his constituency regardless of the importance of any foreign interests that conflict with ours.
