

SILVER IN WISCONSIN.

LARGE QUANTITIES OF RICH ORE DISCOVERED.

Many Weeks in Atlantic Gales—Russia Hastily Increasing Her Navy—Algeria in Line—Gang of Counterfeiters Broken Up in Wisconsin.

Counterfeiters' Gang Broken Up. United States Marshal Craig arrived at St. Joseph, Mo., with Edward Duncan and wife, who were arrested near Parnell City. The couple are charged with counterfeiting silver half dollars of 1886, and dollars of 1890. Duncan could not be held at the examination before Commissioner Beach, but enough evidence was disclosed against his wife to send her to the penitentiary for years. The capture of the couple and a man named McCarthy breaks up a gang who have flooded Nodaway County five months with thousands of dollars of spurious money. The outfit came from Omaha, and the gang is supposed to have a plant at that place.

FULL OF SILVER.

Very Rich Find in Wisconsin. Tillam, silver, apparently in great quantities, has been found within twenty miles of West Superior, Wis., and already the mining craze has affected the whole town. Ore has been brought into town which assays over 300 ounces of silver to the ton, and the prospect is said to be very extensive. The find was made by W. C. Tonkin, a practical miner from Nevada. Surrounding the city at a distance of seven to fifteen miles is a rough range of hills, semicircular in form, rugged and almost precipitous. It is heavily wooded and indented by deep gullies that render driving almost impossible and which have prevented a thorough exploration of the range. The lower portion of the elevation is fairly approachable, and more than twenty years ago copper was found in the hills. It is now said to give the range of hills the title by which they are now known, "Copper Range." The mineral was found in its native state, but the top formation convinced miners that the cost of taking the metal out would not warrant the putting in of a prospect plant on a large scale.

RUSSIAN GUNBOATS LAUNCHED.

A Fleet of Torpedo Boats and Other Vessels Also Under Way.

A St. Petersburg dispatch says that Russia is pushing with vigor the increase of her navy. An ironclad, the Navarin, rather a significant name for the vessel, was launched and a half-armed gunboat, the Otafay, was also launched on the same day. A gunboat, now about completed, will soon follow, and a fleet of torpedo cruisers is under way. The last of the order was given since the Chilean war, and their construction was undoubtedly due to the proved efficiency of torpedo cruisers in that conflict. Great activity in naval shipbuilding also prevails in the Black Sea, where Russia already has a formidable fleet.

TRIED TO KILL ENLOE.

A Brick Thrown at the Tennessee Congressman While He Was Speaking.

An attempt was made to assassinate Congressman B. A. Enloe at St. Louis, Tenn., while he was delivering an address. A half-brick was thrown through a window at him but, struck J. N. Galbraith, of Centre Point, inflicting serious injuries.

SEAS MOUNTAINS HIGH.

Several Weeks Reported on the New Jersey Coast—Arrival of the Alaska.

Incumbent steamers at New York report the storm at sea worse than ever before. The Gulf liner Alaska, several days overdue, arrived, having been kept back by the severe gale. A terrible rainstorm set in along the New Jersey coast and continued twenty-four hours. The wind that had been blowing at forty miles an hour increased to fully fifty and possibly sixty. The breakers have been rolling mountains high, and as they dashed upon the shore they caused ruin and destruction. Bulkheads, bathing-houses, pier and bluffs were torn away like so much driftwood.

Robbed on His Child's Grave.

Edmund D. Landers, a good, wealthy and retired merchant of Brockton, Mass., was found lying senseless on the grave of his only child, a daughter who died forty years ago. He will probably die. He related sufficiently to say that while he was visiting the grave he was strangled by a highwayman and relieved of his money and valuables. There is no clue to the perpetrator of the deed.

Algeria in Line.

The Governor General of Algeria, Africa, notifies the United States Consul that Algeria accepts the invitation to take part in the exposition. "My intention is not," he writes, "to make a special section for the colony, and I trust I will obtain permission that its products be exposed with those of France, forming, nevertheless, a distinct sub-section."

Engineer Meany Gives Himself Up.

Engineer Meany, of the New York and New England train which was wrecked at Hawleyville, Conn., has surrendered himself. Three lives were lost by the accident and the coroner issued warrants for manslaughter against Meany and Conductor Conrad. Both men fled. Meany gave bail in $2,000.

Wooster University Gets $20,000.

By the settlement of the Benick contested will case Wooster University, at Cleveland, receives a $20,000 addition to its endowment. The original gift was $25,000, but the case has been litigated for years, and the college authorities were glad to compromise for the smaller sum.

Steamer Devonshire a Derelict.

The British steamer Devonshire, Captain Christie, has arrived at Glasgow from Montreal with the crew of the British steamer Devonshire, from Barrow, New York, which was abandoned 350 miles west of Tory Island.

Mexican Charity.

At the City of Mexico the ball fight for the benefit of the Spanish flood sufferers will be the grandest ever given on the American continent. Never in the history of the art of taumachy have such extensive preparations been made for an extraordinary spectacle, and devotees of the ring are coming with great interest for the affair to come off.

Contest Over Boulanger's Will.

The daughters of the late General Boulanger have retained counsel to contest four clauses of their father's will.

Storm Around Bermuda.

A special cablegram from Bermuda says: A tremendous rain and wind storm has been raging around Bermuda for two days, and all incoming steamers report having experienced very rough weather. The mail steamer Duart Castle was seven days in running from St. Thomas to Bermuda. She ran short of coal and had to burn her woodwork. The captain reports having encountered the roughest weather he ever experienced.

Overlooked in Banks.

The city of Pierra Mojado, Mexico, has been visited by a heavy storm. Rain fell in torrents, and a river that passes through the city overflowed its banks and flooded many buildings. It is estimated that the damage to property will reach $200,000. Many persons had narrow escapes from drowning.

HOW MEXICAN PRISONERS "ESCAPE."

Permitted to Get a Short Distance Away, They Are Shot in the Back.

Seven miles below Rio Grande City, Tex., and on the opposite side of the river, the body of a nephew of Julien Flores, a suspected revolutionist, swings to a tree with nineteen bullet holes in it. The young man was arrested some days ago and left for Victoria under a guard of soldiers. The corpse is rotting away, but no one is bold enough to cut it down. Felipe Sinas, another member of Garza's band, was caught and has been removed in the same way. The soldiers excuse the death of these men by stating they were killed under a law permitting the shooting of a prisoner who attempts to escape. By its warrant, hundreds of men have been executed in Mexico within the past five years. A political prisoner is given to understand that he must make a break for liberty, and that if he does not he will be shot anyhow. The victim is allowed to put some ten yards of space between himself and his captors and is then tumbled on his face with bullets through the back.

LYNCH LAW AT OMAHA.

Police Officials with Weapons and Firearms with Him Repulsed.

At Omaha it was reported that little Lizzy Yates, the five-year-old victim of an assault by Joe Coe, a disreputable negro, had been confined in the city jail. "We'll lynch the nigger," was heard on every side. There came a confused sound of tramping feet hurrying along the paved street toward the county jail, and a remarkably short time the jail was surrounded. There was no organization apparent. No leader seemed to control the crowd. The entire police force of ninety men were carried away bodily, strewn with lines of hose were hustled off the scene, and desperate men tore up street-car rails to use as battering rams upon the formidable steel gates and doors. The cowering victim was taken out and in a twinkling was strung up to an electric trolley wire. The mob then dispersed, and it became known that the girl had not died after all.

TAKE YOUR CHOICE.

Business Improving, Though Prices Are Low and Collections Slow.

R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

From all parts of the West and South come indications that business is gradually improving, and the improvement is felt in Eastern centers. There is still a most encouraging absence in any trade of that speculative excitement and over-confidence which is so often a presage of disaster. Purchases are governed by unusual conservatism, and yet are large in volume. Failures are rather numerous but are in nearly all cases the results of a long continued commercial strain, since the foreign disaster of last November. It is true that prices of nearly all products are very low, and the margin for profit is very narrow while competition is severe; but the volume of trade is larger than in any previous year in spite of the fact that some branches of business are retarded. It is also true that collections in some quarters are slow, but the latest reports from various sections are on the whole more favorable. The news regarding the chief industries is decidedly favorable.

CHINESE STILL COMING.

They Enter the United States in Large Numbers by Way of Canada.

Canadian customs returns show a steadily increasing influx of Chinese into British Columbia from China, with every indication that such a state of affairs will arrive at between Canada and the United States by which the government of the Dominion will co-operate with the authorities at Washington to prevent Chinamen from crossing the border from Canada into the United States. The Minister of Customs said the first of January, 1900, to June 30, 1891, the total Chinese population entering Canada from China through the regular channel was 2,637, each paying $50 per capita on landing. The number to whom certificates were granted to leave the country and return was 2,107, and the number returned 1,101. The number who passed through the country en route to China or the United States was 2,410.

KIOWA'S MAYORESS UNPOPULAR.

Business Men Petition Her to Resign Because of Her War on Saloons.

Kiowa, Kan., is in a turmoil because of the open revolt of the people against the lady Mayor, Mrs. Paxton, and have petitioned her to resign. The business men, who depend for much of their trade on the saloons, are opposed to prohibition, and Mrs. Paxton has kept up a continual war on the saloons, and recently sent out a lot of special police to destroy all saloons. A liquor found and nail up the doors. A subscription paper was sent around among the merchants and an attorney employed to fight the order, when it was found that Kiowa had no ordinance empowering the Mayor to close the saloons. The petition asking Mrs. Paxton to resign was signed by the United States. Her husband's name is said to be attached to it.

DAKOTA WHEAT SAVED.

Cool Weather Prevents the Grain from Growing in the State.

Three days of sunshine and a few booming thrashers have revived hope and driven away clouds and despondency from the Northwestern harvest fields. The cool, windy weather has prevented the wheat from growing, and the machines and men already sent forward and others promised at once have made the people hopeful and happy. Many farmers believe that the quality of their grain will improve by the sweating process, as they are stacking it and will stand up to the test of the South of Fargo and the main line of the Northern Pacific the grain is practically all stacked, and in that region, except along the line of the Fargo and Southwestern, local machines will be able to do the work.

BARDLEY BREAKING DOWN.

The Disgrace and Contumacious Beginning to Tell on the Ex-City Treasurer.

John Bardley has found an occupation in prison that seems to agree with him and of which he has made a success. It is that of boxing, and the ex-City Treasurer has shown a degree of skill in the work that has surprised those who remember that in his younger days he was a blacksmith and supported himself for many years by hard manual labor. The long strain upon Bardley, his disgrace, and the prison confinement are beginning to tell upon him. He lives in the hope of a pardon through political influence after a few years' confinement.

FIRE IN A COTTON WAREHOUSE.

About 1,500 Bales Burned at Hawkinsville, Ga.

At Hawkinsville, Ga., fire in McCormick & Bridgman's Long Star Warehouse destroyed 1,500 bales of cotton. Loss, over $40,000. Moffat's mills, with 1,500,000 feet of lumber, burned at Dahlousie, N. B. Loss, $25,000.

RAINMAKER MELBOURNE.

Went Water Western, Kansas for 10 Cents Per Cultivated Acre.

Melbourne, the rain wizard, failed to make rain at Goodland, Kan., in large quantities, but the inhabitants believe that he can make rain under favorable circumstances. He has agreed to produce all the water necessary for the crops next summer in Western Kansas for 10 cents per cultivated acre. It is the opinion of a number of lawyers that this method of irrigation will come under the irrigation law passed by the last Legislature, and that forty counties interested may therefore sue for damages as provided by that law. In 1889 there were over 2,000,000 acres under cultivation in these forty counties.

ED NEAL HANGED.

The Condemned Man Confessed His Crime but Refused to Reveal His Identity.

Ed Neal, who murdered Mr. and Mrs. Allan Jones near Omaha in February, 1893, has been hanged. His neck was broken by the fall. The name Neal was an assumed one, but the condemned man refused to make known his identity, and all efforts to discover the prisoner's true name or any facts about his life previous to the murder have proved futile. He confessed his crime on the gallows, but said he preferred to die under an assumed name to save his parents the shame and sorrow of knowing his ignominious end. The purpose of the crime was robbery.

WHOLE FAMILY STRICKEN.

Five Children Buried Within a Week and the Mother Dying with Diphtheria.

Stantonsville, a small village in Kent County, Del., is having an epidemic of diphtheria. William Hammond, a hard-working farmer, has buried his entire family of five children within a week. The faithful mother sat by and nursed them until the breath left the last one, when she took to bed with the dreaded disease, and her death is hourly expected. The husband is prostrated with grief. What adds to his misery is that he is compelled to bury the dead and care for the wife, it being almost impossible to secure help.

One Killed and Several Injured.

Several cars of freight train on the Erie Railroad were thrown from the track near Ridgewood, N. J., by the breaking of one of the wheels. Before there was time to send out danger signals an extra train carrying trainmen from Peterson to Walldwick dashed into the wreck, badly damaging the locomotive and knocking the crew to pieces. Engineer Boker was thrown over among the wrecked freight cars and badly bruised. Fireman Tibbets had his leg broken and was badly scalped. He died on the way to the hospital.

Much Wheat Will Be Worthless.

There is still a great deal of alarm among elevator men and grain buyers regarding the wheat of Northern Minnesota and North Dakota. Col. C. A. Morton, the Fargo expert buyer, writes: "The present outlook for a portion of this crop, not less than 40 per cent, of it, is decidedly squally. Of all the grain raised in North Dakota, fully that percentage is in the shock, and no small portion of it is sprouting. If it's weather continues the stuff will be rotten, worthless, unfit even for hog feed."

Costa Rica at Peace with the World.

The Minister of War of Costa Rica denies the rumors recently given publicity in the American press, that his government is making active preparations for war. Costa Rica is at peace with all the world. Her boundary question with Nicaragua has been arranged amicably, and the settlement of that with the republic of Colombia in respect to Bocas del Toro was left to Spain, which government is expected to announce the result of her arbitration at an early day.

Rioting in China.

London dispatches announce that there has been serious rioting forty miles from the town of Amoy, China. The population of Amoy, amounting to about 300,000 people, is in a state of great excitement. The riot was caused by official abuses. Several mandarins and other officials were killed by the rioters. It is officially announced from Shanghai that the promoters of the Ichang outbreak are proceeding to Shun King, in the province of Su Chuen, on a tributary of the Yang Tse Kiang.

Russians Relieving the Jews.

The St. Petersburg authorities have forgotten their bigotry for once, in view of the horrors of the famine. It has been ordered that relief to the starving peasants shall be given without any discrimination as to their religion, the orthodox receiving no more than the Standist or the Jew.

Murdered by Robbers.

Dr. William M. Lockwood, formerly of Stamford, Conn., was found choked to death on a road near Berkeley, Pa. Robbery is supposed to have been the motive for the murder, as the deceased was thought to have some money. No trace of the murderers could be found.

More Wheat Threshers Wanted.

Reports from the wheatfields of North Dakota are more encouraging, but the demand for threshers is more urgent than ever. The weather is good, but as less than half the crop has been threshed it is feared that much of it will be lost.

Fast Work on a Typewriter.

In a typewriting contest at Portland, Ore., F. E. McGurrin wrote 311 words in 59 seconds from dictation on a typewriter. He wrote 104 words per minute blindfolded.

TRIBUTE TO GEN. GRANT

THE STATUE OF THE DEAD COMMANDER UNVEILED.

The Ceremonies Preceded by an Impassioned Speech by the Mayor, and a Parade of the Citizens and Soldiers in Honor of the Hero of the Rebellion—Great Naval Display.

Grant Day in Chicago.

Sunshine and rain warred fiercely and unrelentingly with each other in Chicago to determine which would have the mastery when it came to unveil the Grant statue. And Phoebe won a dazzling victory, and all the people rejoiced. It would have been a bitter disappointment had it been ordered otherwise. The silken cord was gently pulled by the fair hands of the daughter of Gen. William E. Strong, and responsive to her timid action the white drapery was loosed from the figure beneath it, fluted a moment in the breeze and fell, disclosing in all the majestic calm of a heroic man's upturned bronze by a master hand. For a moment admiration held the multitude spellbound, incapable of uttering an exclamation. Then, glowing with pride and patriotism, from a hundred thousand throats went up such a mighty shout as is rarely heard. It was the apotheosis of their admiration—they were amazed with enthusiasm.

One minute before the unveiling a signal gun was fired to warn the galling, excited and expectant throng that everything was in readiness for the ceremony. Slowly the seconds ticked by and there was a vast hush. Scarcely a sound was heard save from the far distant center of the city, from where the roar of commerce was plainly audible. The statue was bared to the eye and the tumultuous murmur of approval had hardly subsided when from the United States steamship company a salute of twenty-one guns. Bishop Newman patiently waited for the reverberation of the last gun before he delivered the invocation, and Emil S. Dryer had to be correspondingly patient before he could introduce the Bishop. Reverently the last syllable was heard, and, released from the first strain of

And then came the turn of Judge Walter Q. Gresham, who in his oration honored Grant, honored the people and honored himself. The Judge was a Much moved as were the people, there was yet one who was influenced more than all. A figure in mourning, an old lady with silvered hair and a glance of meekness that dimmed her men of stately pride. She was Grant's widow, ## of the spoken words took form in a hundred wild varieties, and for the moment the greatness of the orator seemed to overshadow the memory of the man that quickened his tongue to words of eloquence.

General Boulanger.

He was the leader of a faction of agitators with the least sense and the most ambition.—Cincinnati Gazette.

The suicide of Boulanger removes the Diss Debar of French politics.—Indianapolis Sentinel.

At last Boulanger has attempted something in which he has succeeded.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

His suicide, like Balmaceda's, was the only way in which he could save himself from a worse fate.—Boston Herald.

When he stood over the grave of his mistress and decided to solve the mystery of the future, perhaps he made no mistake.—Minneapolis Tribune.

Balmaceda-Boulanger. There are alliterative examples for you, Barillas. The world will not complain if you follow where they have led.—Detroit Free Press.

Boulanger, the man of destiny, is dead, and it may be said of him as of another, "the last state of that man was worse than the first."—Baltimore Herald.

It will be fortunate if France profits by the exposure of Boulangerism. But it does not take much to make a hero in France, as this man's life shows.—Philadelphia Press.

The assertion that "General Boulanger's death will strengthen France" is bosh, of course. For more than a year past he has had no following.—St. Louis Globe Democrat.

His death marks the end of the last and greatest attempt under the Third Republic to turn the progress of events backward and to make a republic a monarchy.—Buffalo Express.

The real lesson of the career thus pitifully ended is a simple one. It is summed up in Wolsey's familiar advice to Cromwell. Boulanger could not fling away a mean ambition for a noble one.—Boston Post.

With one sentiment in Boulanger's "political testament" there will be a general agreement—never did anything either as a soldier or as a statesman to justify the hold which he gained over the affections of his admirers, or to explain the dread which he aroused in the minds of his enemies.—St. Louis Globe Democrat.

He was selfish, vain, and unprincipled. He was a brilliant soldier and a capable commander, but he never had any higher motive than self-glorification and self-advancement. The manner of his death was a fitting end to a sensational and dishonorable career.—Indianapolis Journal.

He overreached himself in his attempts to attain the height of his ambition, and instead of becoming the dictator of France and a second Napoleon, he ended his life miserably on the grave of the woman for whom he deserted his family and disgraced himself.—Philadelphia Call.

The mob of Paris and the aristocracy of France might have anything they wish in Boulanger's neck; they may have overlooked the liaison with Bonaparte and the desertion of the wife; but they could not conceal their disgust at the cowardly flight from danger. This disgrace, added to the others, marked the end.—Rochester Post-Express.

Grover's Little Girl.

Papa Cleveland feels "a heap bigger" now than when he was elected President.—Omaha Bee.

There is no use in talking. Grover Cleveland's girl ought to have been a boy.—Indianapolis Sentinel.

President Harrison can send hearty congratulations to Mrs. Cleveland—she's a girl.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Baby McKee will turn green with envy when he fully realizes what has occurred in the Cleveland mansion.—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

Everybody is wishing Mrs. Cleveland and the baby well and some people are interested in the old man's welfare.—Toledo Commercial.

Grover Cleveland is still in the shadow of his bad luck. It was a girl, and Baby McKee is a boy and has the innings.—Petersburg Index-Express.

After all, if Baby Cleveland had been a boy there would have been just as many people disappointed. It is an even question.—Kansas City Times.

If Mr. Cleveland is happy, nobody else has any right to complain, but, all the same, about 5,000,000 Democrats wish it was a boy.—St. Louis Republic.

Baby McKee has a rival in Baby Cleveland, and the paragraphers have a brand-new and inexhaustible source of inspiration.—Wheeling Register.

Grover was gently humming to himself "Papa's a Baby Boy" when the nurse called and told him it wasn't that kind, and then his smile was "out of sight."—Columbus Journal.

If Harrison and Cleveland are the nominees of their respective parties for President in 1892, Baby McKee is knocked out as a factor in the campaign.—New Orleans Delta.

Grover Cleveland has been President of the United States, and now he is a father. What has he left to live for? The world can have no richer honors in store for him.—Buffalo Express.

The advent of little Miss Cleveland has conferred on the ex-President the full dignity of a benedict, and will enable him to realize and to do what he has not been able to do before.—New York World.

Evidently Gladstone doesn't expect to enter the House of Lords unless he does so with a broom and sweeps the interior from woodcock to entrance.—Minneapolis Times.

If as statesmen there is reason in the suggestion to pay members of the English Parliament a salary, who is there that can conscientiously cavil at similar financial recognition of our able but just now overworked city councils?—Philadelphia Times.

The "Grand Old Man" tells the people of the United Kingdom that Parliament could get on very well without the Lords. But how would the Lords get along? That is a part of the problem that Mr. Gladstone does not appear to have solved.—Milwaukee Journal.

Mr. Gladstone's speech at the Newcastle congress indicates that the Liberal hosts of the party will not lack vigorous leadership in the approaching conflict. The Grand Old Man's brain has not lost its power nor his tongue its cunning.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.
