

As good as new—that's the condition of liver, stomach and bowels when Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets have done their work. It's a work that isn't finished when you've stopped taking them, either. It's lasting. They cure, as well as relieve. And it's all done so mildly and gently! There's none of the violence that went with the old-time pill. One tiny, sugar-coated Pellet's a gentle laxative—three to four act as a cathartic. Sick Headache, Bilious Headache, Constipation, Indigestion, Bilious Attacks, and all derangements of the stomach and bowels, are prevented, relieved and cured. As a Liver Pill, they're unequalled. They're purely vegetable, perfectly harmless—the smallest, cheapest, and easiest to take.

They're the cheapest pill you can buy, because they're guaranteed to give satisfaction, or your money is returned.

You only pay for the good you get. Can you ask more?

That's the peculiar plan all Dr. Pierce's medicines are sold on.

IVORY SOAP

99⁴⁴/₁₀₀ Pure.

THE BEST FOR EVERY PURPOSE.

It is an old-fashioned notion that medicine has to taste bad to do any good.

Scott's Emulsion is cod-liver oil with its fish-fat taste lost—nothing is lost but the taste.

This is more than a matter of comfort. Agreeable taste is always a help to digestion. A sickening taste is always a hindrance. There is only harm in taking cod-liver oil unless you digest it. Avoid the taste.

Scott & Bown, Chemists, 125 South 5th Avenue, New York.

Your druggist keeps Scott's Emulsion of cod-liver oil—all druggists everywhere do.

Agriculture the Basis and Foundation of All Wealth—A Home-made Harrow—Care of Farm Animals—Household—Orchard and Garden, Etc.

Dignity of Agriculture.

AGRICULTURE is the basis, the foundation of all wealth, and the other pursuits are so closely connected with it that their prosperity depends upon the success of farming. There is not only no antagonism between them, but they are mutually beneficial to each other and the utmost good feeling should exist, and they should endeavor to promote each other's interests. No portion of the community needs higher intellectual advancement and more refined culture than the cultivators of the soil. They occupy a proud, high, and honorable position and they should make it greatly sought after.

The youths of the country, instead of abandoning agricultural pursuits, should seek them and endeavor to make them a source of profit and give them high improvement. In this way they will have culture and refinement as well as health and pleasure.

Let the intelligent, progressive, and practical farmers in every neighborhood meet on some Saturday afternoon in every month to consult and advise with each other. Let them give in public meetings the results of their experience, show how to increase the fertility of the soil; to cause greater productions and to improve their live stock. These meetings will become schools of instruction. They will be pleasant and agreeable, as well as instructive, and will enable the farmers to get the benefit of each other's experience. I know of no better method the farmers can have of improving the agriculture of the country and of making it profitable as well as agreeable. How could time be better or more delightfully spent than at these meetings? They are not held for the purpose of advancing the political interests of the men engaged in them, and enabling them to get some office by creating antagonism between the different classes of the community, but their object is to advance the interests of the whole community and to improve agriculture. None but intelligent, progressive and thrifty farmers can be expected to take an interest in these meetings. All such, by uniting together and acting in concert, will exert an influence, the happy effects of which will be felt throughout the whole region in which they exist. If they need any pecuniary assistance to keep up the association, it can be obtained by voluntary contributions made by the members at such times as not to feel them.—Exchange.

Home-made Corn Harrow.

This, for effective work, cannot be beaten. Take four pieces of good plank, 2x6 inches, and ten feet long; soak in water thoroughly; then drive two rows of 20-penny wire spikes into each plank, about two inches apart each way; now bolt three pieces across these, as shown in cut; attach an evener with three chains and you have the harrow made. Corn can be harrowed till two or three inches high with this harrow, without injuring it, and, therefore, is superior to the common harrow for that purpose.

J. W. Armstrong, in Practical Farmer.

Farm Proverbs.

Use diligence, integrity and proper improvement of time to make farming pay. Do not have more live stock than you can keep well. House all things as much as possible—animals, utensils and crops. When you are offered a fair price for your produce do not store it for rats and speculators. The more comfortable you can keep your animals the more they will thrive. A good cow is a valuable machine; the more food she can properly digest the greater the profit. A few roots daily to all the stock are as welcome as apples to boys and girls. Iron shoes on sleds last a lifetime and are cheaper in the end than wooden ones. Replace the bars where you often pass by strong gates, and then wonder that you did not do so before. Although in draining land thoroughly your purse may be drained, yet the full crops that follow will soon fill it again. Always give the soil the first meal; if it is well fed with manure it will feed all else—plants, animals and men. A borrowed tool if broken should be replaced by a new one. A sense of honor in such matters is much to be commended.

How Much a Silo Should Cost.

In reply to a question how much a silo should cost, it is told in a bulletin issued from the New Hampshire Station that the day of costly silos is past, and it is this fact alone which enables the rapid extension of this system of storage. A wooden silo keeps its contents with less loss than a stone or cement one, chiefly because of the penetration of air through mortar and cement. A silo built independent of the barn, having its own frame, roof, etc., can be built for $1 per ton of capacity, if above seventy-five tons capacity. If built in the corner of the barn the cost of material and labor will be about one half that sum, but on most farms where there is lumber, and where much of the work can be done by the farm help, this cost can be reduced almost, if not quite, to an actual cash outlay of $25.

LIVE STOCK.

When to Sell Hogs.

When to sell hogs is a mooted question among farmers.

One writer advises to sell hogs when the most money can be got for the least outlay.

The ups and downs of prices we cannot control, but, by careful attention to the feeding and use of scales we can tell closely whether we are making corn into pork at a profit or not. If not, there ought to be a change of ration or an immediate sale of marketable stock. It doesn't pay to hold beyond the time of profitable growth and fattening.

Most successful feeders believe it pays best one year with another to sell the pork when the highest point in gain has been reached, letting the question of probable higher prices alone. Corn used in keeping over fattening hogs will make twice as much pork if given to other animals.

It is a losing game to hold for an increase of price as a rule.

Make all the pork you can out of your corn in just as little time as possible and then market to the best advantage, is the advice of the Cincinnati Commercial.

Care of Farm Animals.

The most practical and valuable information that can be brought to the intelligent practical farmer is that which relates to the care and management of farm animals. But few farmers have any solid data of facts to draw upon derived from their own experience. To know just exactly which costs the most to produce, a pound of mutton or a pound of beef or a pound of pork is something not more than one farmer in a thousand can tell, for the 999 never keep exact records. All of them can guess at it, may be, quite closely, but it is guess work after all. To be sure they put their money up on their guess work, and embark in mutton feeding, beef feeding, or pork feeding, and many say they ought to know all about it as long as they are in the business. It is true they ought and they would know if they did not have such an universal contempt for keeping exact records. Here is where the English and Scotch farmer excels his American cousin. He is trained in the art of keeping books and records. He is not considered a good safe farmer unless he can show what a thing costs. That is just as great an advantage to the earnest thinking farmer as it is to the manufacturer. The dollars the farmer is to earn runs the gauntlet of ill-luck and accident to as great an extent as the manufacturer's dollars. He should not be loaded down with an extra per cent of carelessness and indifference to sound rules of business procedure.

Best Horse to Sell.

The American Agriculturist states that horses to be sold in the New York market for "general purpose" will bring the best prices when they conform as nearly as possible to the following standard: A good sized, bony head, full, kind eye, pricked ears, good crest, oblique shoulders, short on back, long on belly, somewhat arched at coupling, well ribbed up, heavy boned, short, flat legs, compact, active, blocky, good tempered and a good walker. He should weigh from 1,000 pounds upward.

THE DAIRY.

Pay as You Go.

The creameryman who goes into a community and pays the cash for his milk just as fast as it is delivered at his door, the same as any other business does—or ought to do—will establish himself on a firm basis of esteem among the farmers, and will be supplied with the best dairy affairs, besides insuring the eternal good of all the people of his neighborhood. The farmer and dairyman has to wait too long for returns. A cash basis would benefit all concerned.

It is easy to deride this idea, and say that it is impracticable, chimerical, etc., but this does not make it so, nor will it convince us that it is so. Every line of business is hanging too much on the farmer's capacity (now nearly exhausted) for indulgence, and it is high time for a radical change.

Pay as you go.

Dairy Notes.

STILL another milk-testing apparatus is announced, called the Hutton. The United Kingdom of Great Britain has 9.2 people to one cow. We have one for every 4.3 persons.

NIAGARA is the name given a butter cooler exhibited at the show at Bath, Eng. It consists of a water-tight chamber around which cold water is made to flow.

A CONDENSED milk plant is to be put in at Newport, Me., at a cost of $50,000 to consume the milk of 4,000 cows. Several others are to follow if this one succeeds.

FILLED cheese is still in the market in Chicago and the Farmer's Review of Chicago and a correspondent of the Wisconsin Farmer both advocate a national law against all such frauds.

Milk drawn from an inflamed udder will almost invariably, if made into butter, develop an offensive odor, resembling decaying meat. Such milk is unfit for use. Do not feed it even to pigs. Pour it on the manure pile.

If a man is a criminal who robs your purse, in what category would you place the one who robs you of that which is dearer and more precious than money—your health? Look out for the one who seeks to sell you any of the so-called compounds that are guaranteed to prolong the keeping qualities of milk. They are slow but sure destroyers of health.

SOME complaint is heard that the dairymen who have had the milk feature of the Columbian Exposition in charge have dubbed four breeds—dairy breeds—and shut out the rest. Guernseys, Jerseys, Holsteins and Ayrshires are the lucky breeds. They must be rather exasperating to the Shorthorn men if to no others, in view of the position the breed has occupied in this country.

ORCHARD AND GARDEN.

A Good Marker.

To make a neat soil marker, saw a Popular Garden, take a piece of board an inch thick and two inches wide, and of any desired length; draw a line down the center of each side and one edge, and with a plane or sharp knife pare it down to a sharp edge; fasten a handle of convenient size and length at center of strip on the upper edge and the device is complete.

Grasp the handle firmly, press the sharp edge into the earth, and you have a straight, even drill of uniform depth for sowing. By marking and cross-marking, as in corn planting, you have even spacing for pricking or transplanting. To mark off the distance to next row you might also put on a runner at one side, fastened to rod of iron passing through the marker, as shown in lower figure. This runner can be adjusted any distance and do perfect work. Of course handle and marking strips can be made any length from a few inches to several feet. After trying one you will probably make several of different sizes.

Horizontal Hints.

THE Pearl tuberose, besides being dwarf and having larger flowers than the common one, is earlier blooming, the flowers opening a couple of weeks before the other.

DAHLIAS are easily kept in winter by being placed in a cool cellar, free from frost. The roots must not be allowed to become so dry as to shrivel up.

THE sweet gum is one of the handsomest of ornamental trees. Its starlike leaves are admired by all who see them; and when autumn comes they assume a scarlet color, rivaling the scarlet oak.

MANY of the earliest flowering herbaceous plants, if taken up and potted in the fall, will bloom nicely indoors in the winter time. Columbine, violets, saxifrage, creeping phlox and blood root are among them.

Erythraea paniculata grandiflora, Dactylis gracilis, Japan snowball, Spiraea Thunbergii and Persian lilac are nice things to have in flower in pots in early spring. Dig up from the open ground and pot them before the ground freezes.—Practical Farmer.

THE HOUSEHOLD.

Water as a Disinfectant.

It is a fact that appears to be not generally known, perhaps because it may not be generally credited, that pure, fresh, cold water is one of the most valuable of disinfectants, inasmuch as it is a powerful absorbent. Every sick room should have a vessel of clear water frequently renewed, placed not far from the bed, or even beneath it. This not only absorbs much of the hurtful vapor, but by its evaporation it softens and tempers the atmosphere, doing away with the dryness which is so trying and depressing to an invalid—or even to well persons, for that matter. It has frequently been shown, by actual experiment, that troubled sleep and threatened insomnia are corrected by so simple a thing as the placing of an open bowl of water near the sufferer's couch. Of course it hardly need be said, after these matters have been considered for a moment, that water which has stood for any length of time in a close room is not proper for drinking purposes.—Good House-keeping.

Polite Table Manners.

Soup should be eaten quietly from the side of the spoon; never from the point.

Do not use your knife to serve yourself from dishes from which other people at the table are to take food.

Do not sit sideways on your chair or on the edge of it.

Do not drink tea from your saucer or pour it into the saucer to cool.

Do not leave your spoon standing in your tea cup, but take it out and lay it in the saucer.

Do not wait on yourself before older people or any guests, who may be present, are served.

Do not shove the dishes along the table, but take them up carefully and pass them.

Do not use your napkin for a pocket handkerchief or the back of your hand for a napkin.

Do not use your knife to convey food to your mouth; that marks you as from the backwoods at once.

Do not leave the table before the conclusion of the meal, without asking to be excused.

Do not monopolize all the conversation with talk about the crops if you are a farmer, or about the jelly that will not "jell" if you are a farmer's wife; neither should you eat your meal in solemn silence, but make the conversation general and of interest to all present.

Do not eat fruit in a messy or unpleasant manner or spit the stones, skins or seeds into your plate, but remove them from the mouth with your thumb and fingers or with a fork or spoon.

The table is not the proper place to clean or pick the teeth and tooth-picks should not be placed on the table in a private house.

Make no noise with your mouth in drinking or eating; it is a sign of ill breeding.—Farm and Home.

Would Oblige His Friend.

A well-known Atlanta man, (says the Constitution), who died recently, was ill a long time before the end came. When he became aware of his approaching death, he called a friend to his bedside and asked if he knew a minister whose name was mentioned. "Well, I wish," said the sick man, "that you'd go to him and tell him I'm going to die; and ask him to preach at my funeral." The friend went to the minister's house and found him sick in bed. Nevertheless, he delivered the request. "Tell my good brother," said the minister, "that I'm mighty sick myself, but I'm getting better, and if he can manage to hold on to life until I get up, I'll preach his funeral sermon gladly."

A Bret Harte Story from Real Life.

It was a tender-hearted American who saved the murdered Severa Cisneros from burial in a pauper's grave. When he visited the undertaker's where lay the bodies of murdered and murdered, he was perceptibly under the influence of liquor.

"Say, pard," he said to Carl Schussel, "that gal died afore she wanted to, didn't she?"

"Yes, sir."

"And that feller there murdered her?"

"So it is said."

"And ye'r giving him a big burial?"

"His friends are."

"Ye'r say the gal's got to go to the Potter's Field?"

"I'm afraid so."

"Where's her mother?"

"She has none."

"But she had one on't, and she's got to have a square deal and be buried right. Here's $20 to get her somethin' to wear what's fit to be planted in. Here's $20 to get the botter coffin with, and here's $10 for a broken wheel of flowers. Let's not have it said that old Frisco gives the murderer a bigger send-off than that poor girl what he killed. Good by, old pard."

"What's your name, please? This is an act of rare generosity."

"Have a drink, pard, but my name's my own biz."—San Francisco Report.

Come to Stay.

The terribly aggravated form of influenza, which physicians on the continent of Europe designate as "la grippe," seems to have effected a permanent lodgment this side the Atlantic. It makes its reappearance as soon as the cool weather sets in, and not infrequently during the summer months. In the spring it is rampant. Nothing checks its first attack, or so effectively counteracts its subsequent ravages as Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. The fortifying, invigorating influence of this benedict tonic protects the system against the dangers which beset a feeble physique and a weakly constitution consequent upon abrupt transitions of temperature. It affuses a genial warmth through the diaphragm, which is the best corrective or preventive of a chill, and is a means of neutralizing the effect of exposure in damp or rigorous weather. In dyspepsia, liver complaint, constipation, rheumatism, neuralgia, kidney troubles it is never resorted to without good results.

The Latest Way.

There is, in St. Paul, a certain preacher, of Hibernian antecedents, who considers himself to be in direct communication with the well of English undeveloped, and is generally credited with the possession of as rich a brogue as can be found anywhere in Tipperary. Some mention was made of his peculiar pronunciation at a church meeting, which greatly amused him. He immediately called upon one of his leading parishioners, and, after complaining of the injustice done him, asked him whether, in his opinion, a single trace of the brogue was to be observed in his speech. "Well," his friend answered, "if you wish to deny it, I should advise you to do so in writing."

The Only One Ever Printed—Can You Find the Word?

There is a 3-inch display advertisement in this paper this week which has no two words alike except one word. The same is true of each new one appearing each week from The Dr. Harter Medicine Co. This issue places a "Crescent" on everything they make and publish. Look for it, send them the name of the word, and they will return you book, beautiful lithographs, or samples free.

Derivation of Cactus.

As the rise and fall of the nations of antiquity may be traced by the study of comparative philology, so the history of any art or industry is reflected in that science, and the number of words which are contributed by a given profession may, to a certain extent, be taken as a measure of its importance. Thus the most influential guild of colonial times was the ship carkers of Boston. In those days a meeting of the carkers was usually held to decide upon political or other questions and was called a "calkers," hence our Latin-looking word "cactus."

It gives us pleasure to refer to the advertisement of Dr. W. H. Tutts which appears in our issue of the 21st. For over twenty-five years Tutts' Pills have been before the public, and each succeeding year their valuable properties become better appreciated. They now stand second to none for the relief of that much abused and overtaxed organ, the liver, and for the removal of that cause of so many ills, constipation. They are used in every civilized country, and carry with them voluminous testimonials of their safety and efficacy. Tutts' Pills should have a place in every household.

THE medical adviser of a friendly society in Bath advertises that he will undertake the medical treatment of all and sundry at the economic rate of two cents weekly for adults and half price for children.

WILL NEED A CUSHION.—The man who sits down to wait for somebody's old shoes will need a cushion, and it ought to be a thick one. Such people are usually dyspeptic and a bad liver, and should use Dr. Tutts' Pills to arouse their sluggish liver and put a little new life into them. It overcomes that feeling of weariness, purges the blood, and makes the weak strong and vigorous.
