The Farmers' Home Market.

Hon. Hugh McCulloch, secretary of the treasury under Lincoln, Johnson and Arthur, addressed the farmers of the country as follows:

Farmers have been so drilled in the idea that it is the home market upon which they should rely, that they seem to have been unconsciously of the fact that the home market is altogether insufficient for the supply which is increasing more rapidly than the home market demands, and that either increase of demand or diminution of supply has become a necessity. Western farmers are complaining of the prices of what they have to sell, and many of them attribute the depression to a scarcity of currency. If they would cease looking to protectionists for information and examine the trade relations between their own country and other countries they would discover that it is markets, and not currency, that is needed to improve their conditions. The tariff has contributed immensely to the gains of manufacturers, while for some time the farmers who have been as well off at the close of the year as they were at the commencement, have been the exceptions.

United States Senator Allison, of Iowa, said:

I am told that we must legislate so as to furnish a home market for all our agricultural products, and that this can only be done by a high tariff. Any one examining the subject will see that our agricultural products increase more rapidly than our population, so that if we do not export these products in their natural condition, we must do so by converting them into manufactured articles and export these articles. But this can not be done under a high tariff, for all nations will buy manufactured products where they are the cheapest. This rule excludes our highly-taxed manufactures made from highly-taxed materials from the markets of the world, although we have natural advantages.

It is on human and horse, and all animals cured in 30 minutes by Woolford's Sanitary Lotion. This never fails. Sold by LONG & EGER, Druggists.

The increase of State tax, including benevolent and reform fund, in Jasper county, is $7,620.84.

Total increase of tax, $18,464.15.

Increase of local tax, $18,464.15.

The increase of the tax on railroads within the county is $11,077.91, or $3,457.07 greater than the increase of State tax. The increase of the tax on railroad property should have decreased the total tax levy of 1891 below that of 1890.
