

It is a great domestic remedy, and should be kept in every home. Mr. Norman Cheatham, Waverly, Sussex Co., Va., who has never been without it for twelve years, subscribes to this opinion. He says: "Our family has been using Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup for twelve years and are never without it in the house. It is invaluable."

HOME AND THE FARM.

A DEPARTMENT MADE UP FOR OUR RURAL FRIENDS.

The Care of Growing Figs—Good Fruit Evaporator—An Overlooked Market—Mistakes of Dairymen—Fertilizer—Caring for Colts—General Farm Notes.

A Serviceable Fruit Drier.

Where there is a surplus of fruit, which the grower cannot sell in a green state, or work up into jam, preserves or dry it, it will be more or less a loss to the grower. Farm and Home cannot too strongly insist upon fruit growers the necessity of trying to preserve some of this surplus for future use by drying. By curing it in this way it will keep good for a long time.

The illustration is a very simple device for this purpose, and is much used in some sections. It consists of a water-tight tin vessel, or rather pan 2 1/2 feet wide and from 4 to 5 feet long and 3 inches deep. The usual method of using it is to place one end of the pan on the stove, the other end being supported by the light bench, as shown in the engraving. At or near one corner of the top is soldered a small funnel, through which water is poured into the pan which is partly filled. A cork is then placed in the funnel, leaving a small hole for the escape of steam, should too much be formed. The fruit is spread evenly over the upper surface of the pan, the juice being evaporated from sliced apples in two or three hours' time even with a moderate fire. This arrangement can be used in the kitchen, and the cooking and baking progressing at the same time, as indicated in the accompanying sketch. Those who do not have a large stove often build a simple arch out of coals, upon which the pan is set.

Look After the Colts.

Colts are the most valuable live stock on the farm, and while it does not pay to neglect any stock, either old or young, yet colts should receive particularly good attention. They should be treated so kindly that they will come to meet you in yard or pasture. This point is accomplished by frequently giving them a lump of sugar, an ear of corn, or something else they like. Halter-break them when small, teach them to lead and stop at the word "whoa," leave them tied for an hour or two at a time, letting them have something to eat while being tied, and there will be little danger of their pulling at the halter. At one year of age they can be accustomed to the bit, and may have a light harness placed on them for a few hours at a time. The modern practice of driving them to a vehicle when only yearlings is bad, for unless extra care is used injury will be the result. Colts should be accustomed to the sight of umbrellas, and to strange noises. Keep them growing when both in and out of pasture. Do not dose with medicine unless absolutely required and then only on the advice of a skillful veterinarian. Give them a name and always call them by it.

A Hog Hanger.

A handy device for raising hogs is a derrick made of three poles or scantlings, twelve feet long and bolted together at the top. A pulley is fastened at the top and a small windlass three feet from the bottom as shown in the cut. A rope is fastened through a hole in the windlass and runs around that and over the pulley. A hook or ring should be fastened to the loose end.

Salt for Potatoes.

In a mention in the Farming World of experiments by Rev. Mr. Cartwright, to determine the effect of different fertilizers upon potatoes, in which salt, soot, wood ashes, malt dust, peat, bone dust, manure, lime, decayed leaves, sulphuric acid, gypsum, etc., were employed, it was found that with one exception salt, the effects of which have been considered doubtful, proved superior to them all, and in connection with soot its energy was very striking. The plants where salt was used were of a pale green, but this proved to indicate no want of vigor.

Experiment with Clover.

The superiority of clover as a fertilizer is shown by an experiment made by that well-known cloverer, T. B. Terry, of Ohio. He tells a reporter of the Rural New Yorker "that three years ago a measured half acre, the end of a field recently seeded to clover, was seeded with twenty loads of good manure, and, in the spring, plowed and set to strawberry plants. It was carefully tilled that season, but a late frost the following season destroyed pretty much all the berries, consequently very little plant food was taken from the half acre. In July (1891) this half acre was plowed and harrowed often until time to seed to wheat. During these two years the rest of the field, not having been manured at all, had grown a crop of clover for hay, the second crop being cut for seed, and in 1891 an unusually large crop of potatoes. Both portions were prepared for wheat last fall and seeded the same day—the half acre that had been manured at the rate of forty loads to the acre and had practically grown no crop, and the portion that had grown two heavy crops with only a clover seed and roots for plant food. The result: The wheat on the half acre was no better, hardly as good, so says Mr. Terry, and so says a number of visitors. The wheat had been removed before my visit, but no difference in the new seedling of clover could be noticed."

Mistakes of Dairymen.

There are many dairymen who make the serious mistake of not providing properly for liberal feeding in the autumn. Consequently, when the grass is gone and the unfavorable weather sets in, their cows begin to shrink rapidly in their milk. Often it does not pay to continue milking them, and they are permitted to grow dry when, with proper feeding, there would be several months of profitable work yet before them. Besides this, the price of dairy products begins to come up at this time, and cows that are kept in milk pay well for the extra trouble and expense of feeding. Some succulent food is needed at this time, to take the place of the grass to which they have been accustomed all summer, as a sudden change to dry feed will lessen the flow of milk, however liberal the ration may be. Roots answer a good purpose at this time, as will also cabbage, green-corn fodder, ensilage, etc. It is not difficult to prepare for autumn feeding, but it demands a little forethought. It is one of those cases, so frequently occurring on the farm, where serious loss is occasioned by the neglect to plan in advance.

The Barn Cat.

A barn cat always looks sleek and fat, and obtains its own living by catching rats and mice. House cats are usually fed so abundantly that they have never been known to catch a mouse, and about the only living thing they were ever known to catch was the canary bird. Notwithstanding this fact they are allowed to live simply because they know no better, and are themselves pets. A good active cat that will spend most of its time about the barn buildings, tiding them of mice and other vermin is worth at least $5 per year to any farmer. All families of cats are not good mousers, but when you are able to obtain one of a family that is, take it to the barn, provide a nice warm place for it to sleep, and take food to it. It will feel quite at home. Should it go to the house, carry it back, and after a time drive it to the barn if it frequents the house, and it will soon learn that the barn is its home, and remain there, catching its living about the buildings and fields.

A Handy Wood Box.

Take four scantling three and one-half feet long. Dress them and put them two feet apart in width and three and one-half feet apart in length. Put on a bottom and side up with good lumber two feet, then put a top on the same as for a table. It is handy, too, as it can be placed close to the stove. Paint it some dark color.—Practical Farmer.

Housekeeping Hints.

To take grease spots out of carpets, mix a little soap into a gallon of warm water, then add half an ounce of borax; wash the part well with a clean cloth, and the grease or dirty spot will disappear.

CRAMP in the leg is instantly relieved by turning the foot inward, so that the toes touch the other leg. When lying in bed rise to a sitting posture merely, and "turn off" the cramp by this means.

NEVER clean a drawing room or dining room without folding up the table covers, etc., and cover up the furniture with sheets; fold the curtains, having shaken them well first, then strew tea leaves over the carpet and brush it well.

A good remedy for inflammation of the eyes caused by cold is to drop a lump of alum the size of a hickory nut into a teacup of hot milk. The curd will separate from the whey. Put the curd, which may be kept moistened by the whey between a fold of soft muslin and lay it over the eyes.

It is frequently asked how much mustard should be given if desired to make a patient sick in case of croup or poisoning. A tablespoonful of ground mustard to a tumblerful of warm water is the rule. Salt is almost as efficacious as mustard if the latter is not at hand. If the first tumbler has no effect give more and tickle the back of the throat with a feather.

Miscellaneous Recipes.

A NICE POUND-CAKE.—Take twelve eggs and their weight in pulverized sugar, the weight of ten eggs in flour, and the weight of eleven in butter.

PEAR JAM.—To six pounds of pears put four pounds of sugar. Put the pears in a sauce-pan or kettle with a little water to cover them. Set over the fire until the fruit is soft, then add the sugar and cook as other jam.

MINCED VEAL.—Pick up cold veal fine, or cut into small bits. Add a pint of milk, three eggs, a spoonful of butter, two spoonfuls of flour. Stew thickly with bread-crumbs, and bake in a deep dish. Season with pepper, salt, and nutmeg.

HERMIT CAKES.—One and one-half cups of brown sugar, one cup of butter, one cup of chopped raisins, one-half teaspoonful each of cinnamon, cloves, nutmeg, and soda, three eggs, flour enough to roll out. Cut in squares or rounds and attend well to the baking.

PAPER PANCAKES.—Sift a pint and a half of flour; to a cupful of sour milk put half a teaspoonful of soda, beating till it foams, pour into the flour; add four eggs slightly beaten and enough cold water to make a thin batter. Grease the griddle well and cover it with a thin coating of batter; turn quickly. Cut in quarters and serve hot with butter and sugar.

DAVID C. COOK.

The Pioneer Publisher of Literature for Sunday Schools.

David C. Cook, the Chicago Sunday School publisher, was born in East Worcester, New York, in 1830, a son of Rev. E. S. Cook, a Methodist minister, a cultured and scholarly man. Since earliest childhood he has been devoted to the Sunday School. In boyhood he joined the church, and began teaching in the Sunday School at the age of seventeen in the West Division of Chicago, and for four years following taught most of the time in two or three schools each Sabbath.

The fire of 1871 was the beginning of his mission and Sunday-school work on the North Side. His field was one of the roughest and poorest of the burnt district. Here, in a German theater and beer-hall, he organized "Everybody's Mission," afterwards removed to a building of its own. With an attendance of 350 to 450, he sustained the school for five years without the aid of church or society.

Besides this, he has since organized and superintended North Avenue Mission, Lake View Mission, Lake View Union Sunday-schools in Chicago, and the Sunday-school connected with Grace Church in Elgin, Ill., besides several smaller schools.

His first publications were issued for his own Sunday-schools alone. Neighboring Sunday-schools, appreciating the value of these helps, became his first subscribers. Soon Mr. Cook discovered that his were not the only schools that needed more and better literature than they could afford to buy at the prices then existing, and resolved to make his life work to place in the hands of the Sunday-school children of the land an abundance of the very best literature at the lowest possible prices.

He was met at the very outset with most insurmountable obstacles and lively opposition; but the obstacles and opposition only furnished zest, for he is a man of purpose, and it has been well said of him, "his indomitable energy demands insurmountable obstacles." That his purpose was good and wise is proved by the way he has been supported.

It is seventeen years since he issued his first publication, and there is now scarcely a village or hamlet in the land where they are not known and used. He employs regularly six associate editors and some sixty writers, representing some of the ablest Sunday school talent in the land.

Among those who know him personally he is always recognized as a man of strong Christian character, a practical worker in the church, Sunday school and temperance cause, and a warm friend of missions, both home and foreign.

He is afflicted with Bore Eyes, use Dr. Isaac Thompson's Eye Water. Druggists sell it 25c.

THE REV. PLINK PLINK ON LUCK. It has often struck me, dear brethren, that the "luck" of some men is simply the natural result of their own good-headedness, shrewdness, ability and pluck.—New York Herald.

A Tremendous Rumpus. In the system is produced by a disorderly liver. Bile gets into the blood and gives a saffron tinge to the countenance and eye-balls, sick headaches ensue, the digestive organs are thrown out of gear, the bowels become constipated, there are pains through the right side and shoulder blade, the breath grows sour and the tongue foul, dizziness is frequent, especially on rising suddenly. This state of affairs could not exist unless the disturbance were a serious one. Yet it is the common ailment with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which relieves every symptom of biliousness and indigestion, and promotes a regular action of the bowels, and is auxiliary of appetite and sleep. The Bitters is a superb specific for malarial and kidney trouble, rheumatism and debility. A wineglassful thrice a day.

REPUTATION is what others say we are, character is what we are.

DON'T give up and say there is no help for Catarrh, Hay Fever, and Cold in the head, since thousands testify that Ely's Cream Balm has entirely cured them.

I HAVE been bothered with catarrh for about twenty years; I had lost sense of smell entirely, and I had almost lost my hearing. My eyes were getting so dim I had to get some one to thread my needle. Now I have my hearing as well as I ever had, and I can see to thread as fine a needle as ever I did; my sense of smell seems to be improving all the time. I think there is nothing like Ely's Cream Balm for catarrh.—Mrs. E. E. Grimes, Rendell, Perry Co., Ohio.

Colorless, Emaciated, Helpless

A Complete Cure by HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA.

This is from Mr. D. M. Jordan, a retired farmer, and one of the most respected citizens of Otsego County, N. Y.:

"Fourteen years ago I had an attack of the gravel, and have since been troubled with my Liver and Kidneys."

gradually growing worse. Three years ago I got down so low that I could scarcely walk. I looked more like a corpse than a living being. I had no appetite and for five weeks I ate nothing but gruel. I was badly emaciated and had no more color than a marble statue. Hood's Sarsaparilla was recommended and I bought it. I noticed that I felt better. The first bottle I noticed that I felt better. I suffered less, the inflammation of the bladder had subsided, that began to return to my face, and I began to feel hungry. After I had taken three bottles I could eat anything without hurting me. Why I got so hungry that I had to eat five times a day. I have now fully recovered, thanks to

Hood's Sarsaparilla

I feel well and am well. All who know me marvel to see me so well." D. M. JORDAN.
