WITH THEIR FINGERS!

That is the way the Japanese pull teeth.
The Japanese use no instrument for extracting teeth, but lift them out with the thumb and forefinger, as the surprising statement of a Japanese traveler recently, while at Dick Hubbard was Minister to Japan, he went on to explain, I visited that country and spent a pleasant week with him. One day I was troubled with the toothache, and Mr. Hubbard took me to a dentist and explained to the dentist-colored operator that I wanted the grinder extracted. I was placed in a ham-chair and tilted slightly back. The dentist examined my teeth, talking volubly meanwhile to Uncle Sam's representative. Suddenly his thumb and forefinger closed on the troublesome tooth, and before I had time to think of what was going to happen he lifted it out and held it up before me, smiling at the same time that vacant smile peculiar to the children of the Orient.
"You were waiting for the forceps," were your words said Minister Hubbard, with a laugh. "They don't use 'em here. Look at this. Here is a young Jap taking his lesson in dentistry."
A 12-year-old Japanese boy sat on the floor, having before him a board in which were a number of holes into which pegs had been tightly driven.
He was attempting to extract the pegs with his thumb and forefinger. Mr. Hubbard explained that as the strength of this natural pair of forceps developed by practice the pegs would be driven in tighter. After a couple of years of pulling the young dentist would graduate and be able to lift the most refractory molar in the same manner that he now lifted wooden pegs.

A Cut or Burned Finger.

There are times when a simple thing in amateur surgery goes a great way toward easing pain. On New England farms the women all know what to do with a cut or burned finger. The materials for the operation are always close at hand. Under the shell of every egg there is a white gelatinous film that is in itself a perfect skin.
If the cut is not very large a piece of this film, fresh and wet, laid over the wound will prevent soreness and in a great measure hasten the growth of the new skin. The film adheres closely, keeps out all foreign matter, and draws the edges of the wound together. It will not come off easily, and another advantage that women will appreciate is that it does not show.

There is another simple remedy for cuts and burns. When a member of the family has a burn or cut, take a bottle of shellac varnish and industri-ously paint the wound. The varnish, drying, acts in the same manner as the egg film, and at the same time is almost invisible. The remedy is an old one in carpenter shops, and has been proved by use to be an efficacious one.

Housekeeper's Don'ts.

Don't let aestheticism overwhelm common sense to that degree that your windows are so "profusely" "got up" as to make ventilation or the washing of them a difficult job.

Don't dust your furniture with a feather duster. It's like cleaning an egg-cup by stirring the egg around.
Use a cloth. If it is slightly soiled so much the better for the woodwork.

Don't be vague in your furnishings and get this and that and the other thing because each by itself is pretty, but take the object of a room first into consideration and live up to it. Then take one color as a guide and select all others in harmony with it.

Don't put furnishings with big designs in a small room—it will make the room look the smaller. Keep in the rule of proportion. It's like a little woman with a skinny face wearing a big football of a hat, which only accentuates her sharp features the more.

Camels Have Been Used in America.
About 1862 the problem of transporting army supplies on the Western plains became so serious that the War Department recommended the experiment of using camels. Some time elapsed before the necessary animals could be secured, and their first successful employment, so far as can be learned, was in 1857, when a train of camels conveyed the stores and baggage of a surveying party located a wagon road between Santa Fe and California. This trial was attended with such good results that some time later 150 camels were imported for use in the Southwest, and as late as 1876 a camel train was in operation between Yuma and Tucson, Ariz. The camels thrived well and did their work satisfactorily, but the hostility of the Indians soon thinned their number, and their use was further rendered unnecessary by the spread of the railroads.

GRAINS OF GOLD.

A LOVING heart is the truest wisdom.
The reward of one duty is the power to fulfill another.
That which is everybody's business is nobody's business.
The less people speak of their greatness the more we think of it.
Reputation is what others say we are, character is what we are.
All men are frail; but thou shouldst rejoice none so frail as thyself.
Men are always invoking justice; yet it is justice that should make them tremble.

CHARACTER is always built up by the intention to do right, and the right is always our duty.
The mere fact that charity is to begin at home is all the proof we need that it shouldn't start there.

EVERY person is responsible for all the good within the scope of his abilities, and for no more.
The man who is doing all for God that he can do will soon be able to do more for him than he does.

SINCERITY is the indispensable groundwork of all conscientiousness, and, by consequence, of all heartfelt religion.
Many men and many women enjoy popular esteem, not because they are known, but because they are not.

MODERN SAMSONS.

LEANDER RICHARDSON, the editor of the New York Dramatic News, is 6 feet 3 inches in height and weighs 280 pounds.

MISS ROSABELLA KIBLER, who was born in Jasper County, Ill., a week ago, is 19 years old and weighed 505.

J. C. MITCHELL, the man who lifts 800 pounds with his teeth, pushed a freight weighing 30,000 pounds along a track on North street, Baltimore, in the presence of about 300 people. He had to require the strength of eight ordinary men to move the car.
Colonel T. RICE, of Indianapolis, who lifts a new York frequently, is very sensitive to the subject of his weight, but no one has ever intimated that the Colonel's handiwork handicapped his mental brilliancy, much less his physical appearance. While walking about the hotel he wears a wide Gordon sash, tan-colored shoes, and a small hat perched on one side of his head.—New York Press.

STUB ENDS OF THOUGHT.

SOME women are of many minds.
Some family trees are very shady.
OPINIONS change and men change with the wind.

IN a good cause the impulse. Never undertaken to respect.

A GREAT deal of American "tin" goes abroad every year.

VIRTUE may be its own reward, but most people expect more.

IF God did not smile in the sunshine the white rose would be black.

IT pleases a man more to call himself a fool than to have another do it for him.

ONE time in a thousand, possibly, we find a thing worse than we thought it was.

THERE is more joy than sorrow in the world, for man smiles a thousand times where he weeps once.

APHORISMS.

EVERY one can master a grief but he that has it.—Shakespeare.

BETTER three hours too soon than one minute too late.—Shakespeare.

THE weak may be joked out of anything but their weakness.—Zimmerman.

THE two best rules for a system of rhetoric are, first, have something to say, and, next, say it.—Emmons.

WHAT we wish to do we think we can do, but when we do not wish to do a thing it becomes impossible.—Lavater.

SOCIETY is the atmosphere of souls, and we necessarily imbibe from it something which is either infectious or healthful.—Hall.
