Valuable Voice.

There are heights to be reached in every profession, and it is not to be wondered at if the peaks of some professions are considered superior to those of any other by the enthusiastic artist, Martin, the popular French singer, for no food for reflection in an experience which he had with a cab-driver. The incident is related by the author of "Souvenirs d'un Banteur."

Martin had a voice of great compass and most agreeable sound, of which he was decidedly proud. He had a weakness for drawing out compliments on it.

One day, as he was being driven through the streets of Paris in a cab, he saw some one passing carelessly in front of the cab, and in danger of being run over.

"Ho ho!" he cried in his most sonorous tones. The coachman turned around quickly.

"O, monsieur!" he cried, "what a voice like that!"

"What would you do if you had?" asked Martin, with a smile, believing he had been recognized, and, leaning on the idea that his reputation extended even to the drivers in the streets.

"What would I do, monsieur? Faith, I should become the first coachman in Paris!"

House-Cleaning Wore Him Out.
The man of the house took to the sofa in the sitting-room, with a newspaper, directly after breakfast, while his wife went on with the house-cleaning.

She was dismantling the front room, and while he pursued the sporting column she carried past him, in turn, seven chairs, three tables, a desk, four footstools, a bookcase, and the rest of the furniture. Then she lugged in the last of the clothes.

"Maria, do you want any assistance?" said the man just then, rising and folding his newspaper.

"Not just yet, dear," said Maria.

"Well, then, I think I'll leave you," said he, and he started for the office.

On the way down he told three men that if there was anything that wore him to the skin and bone, it was that confounded house-cleaning. Said he: "We are in the midst of it now, and I tell you I'm about used up."—St. Louis Post Dispatch.

How Rosewood Received Its Name.

Many people suppose that its name comes from its color, but this is a mistake. Rosewood is not red, nor yellow, but almost black. Its name comes from the fact that when first cut it exudes a perfume similar to that of a rose, and although the dried rosewood of commerce retains no trace of this early perfume, the name lingers as a relic of the early history of the wood.

They Must Drink.

Rats can be driven out of any house by depriving them of water. They can live almost indefinitely without food, and when hard pushed will not hesitate to eat each other, but no rat can go twenty-four hours without drink, and if every possible means of obtaining water is taken from them they will desert the vicinity.

These Are Fine Threads.

If your nerves were steady enough to admit handling the silkworm's threads, and you were to take a carpenter's rule and lay such threads side by side until they covered the space of an inch, you would find, after you had completed the task, that you had handled exactly 1,000 threads.

A Spider's Web Newspaper.

Among recent novelties that of a newspaper printed on the web of a sacred white spider is chronicled. It is a sheet about six inches, contains two columns of matter, including an English story, and is excellently printed.

And Yet He Lives!

One of the most remarkable attempts at suicide ever known in Mexico has just been reported. Puntano Gonzales, a well-known young business man, became despondent, because his sweetheart did not reciprocate his affection. Going to his room, he began feasting on sulphur matches. He swallowed two boxes of them, sticks, sulphur, and all, and was suffering terrible agony when discovered by his roommate. It required several doctors to save his life.

Push-strings.

The girl of the period seems to be a case of suspended animation.

An unprofitable job—Laboring under a delusion.

The distance that lends enchantment is hardly distance of manner.

Shabby treatment—"Cleaning and repairing."

If you want a thing well done, do it yourself. If Noah had trusted his ark to a contractor, he might have got wet.

SHORT AND SERIOUS.

PEOPLE devote too much time looking at the clock.

A MAN's temper is like a fly: it is full grown the moment it appears.

The more you admire a thing, the more trouble it will make you.

It is not the pleasure seeker who finds pleasure, but the one who tells it out.

THE best revenge to take on your enemy is to try to amount to something yourself.

Some men will make fools of themselves when they know it as well as anybody.

A MAN never wants anything so bad as when he is told he will have to fight to get it.

TOO MANY people think their friends will admire them whether they have on clean collars or not.

TO-MORROW should never come: all that it does is to prove to a man that he was a fool yesterday.

THERE is comfort in the reflection that some men are honest as naturally as others are dead beats.

NO MAN can be everything his neighbor thinks he ought to be, unless he is ashamed of himself all the time.

THOUGH there are billions of people in the world, every man's happiness depends on how two or three treat him.

NO WOMAN ever admires a man so much after he has made a confidante of her, and told her of his love for another woman.

AFTER a man has become rich in a town, people who disliked him begin to look mysterious when the question is asked how he made his money.

WE once knew a pious woman who was always confessing to the Lord that she was a great sinner, but she was never known to admit a mistake of any kind to any one else.—Atchison Globe.

GATHERINGS OF GOLD.

WORDS are the counters of the wise but the money of fools.—Hobbs.

TEMPTATIONS are a file that rubs off the self-confidence.—Penelton.

A GOLDEN thread of gospel grace runs through the whole web of the Old Testament.—Henry.

DOING is the great thing; for if, resolutely, people do what is right, in time they come to like doing it.—Ruskin.

NATURE has made occupation a necessity to us; society makes it a duty, habit may make it a pleasure.—Capelle.

NOTICE—Owing to the liability of fires and compelled to prob bit all hunting on my lands in Jasper county, and notice is given that any person trespassing on my lands with a gun will be prosecuted.
