THE Daily,
Weekly and Sunday
Issues.

The Sentinel in its several editions reaches more readers in Indiana than any other newspaper published within or without the state.

It is read in every city, town and hamlet.

The Daily is an eight to twelve-page paper of 56 to 84 columns and contains the very latest market reports, in addition to all the important news of the day. It has a special news service from New York, Washington and Chicago.

The Weekly is a mammoth issue of 12 pages and 84 columns, and in addition to the cream of the news of the week includes an invaluable farm and home department, with a variety of special features for all classes of readers.

The Sunday issue contains regularly 20 pages of 140 columns of reading matter, and frequently 24 pages or 168 columns. This issue is much like the Daily, but political topics except a few items are allowed but little space and the additional columns are used to meet the tastes of those who desire clean, wholesome and entertaining miscellany.

INDIANAPOLIS SENTINEL
Indianapolis, Ind.

A copy of the Indiana Almanac for 1893 has just been received by us. It is without question the most complete and best work of its kind that has been issued in the State. The main features of the work are deserving of extended notice. The World's Fair, which is to be held this year, will no doubt be visited by almost every citizen of Indiana. This important subject is fully outlined in twenty-eight pages of printed matter, showing out of the buildings and descriptions of all the interesting features and exhibits. Complete tables and Tariff Duties and increases are notified. A reliable table of the Indiana Post-offices, with their salaries. This constitutes a reference volume for those interested in the new appointments by counties. The tables of population are furnished. Tables of population of States, cities, etc., and other matters of paramount importance are also set forth. A concise collection of general information on the recent political revolution is perhaps the most interesting feature of this work. The vote of Indiana by counties on both State and National tickets is scheduled, and separate tables are given on legislative districts. The great result by popular vote and electoral votes is also shown. For the benefit of handy reference the platforms of the four leading parties in 1892 are appended.

HIGHWAYS—DITCHING.

If the Iroquois Valley is to be drained under pending proceedings every land owner should at once take steps to have laid out any public highway which would be proper after such drainage is accomplished. This course country otherwise will be more difficult to establish the roads and the county will not be assessed her share of constructing the improvement. This is an important matter and should receive prompt attention before the report is filed.

AUSTIN & CO. Composed of W. B. Austin, G. K. Hollingsworth, will loan you money on personal mortgage, or chattel security, for long or short time at local bank rates. These loans can be paid back at any time, and are more desirable than bank loans, because interest is reduced. We have unlimited capital and can accommodate everybody.

T. J. MALLATT,
Fair Oaks, Ind., Dec. 15, '93.

William McKinley put a protective tariff of 25 cents a bushel on American wheat. For 1892 the importations of wheat was valued at $10,307; duty $2,575.75. [This wheat was purchased for seed, and the $2,575.75 was taken from the pockets of our farmers.] The exports of wheat to other countries amounted to $161,399,132. We sell, but do not buy wheat, and if there was no duty on wheat the importations would be no greater, while the export demand would probably be much larger and the wheat growers would get better prices. The duty on wheat flour is 25 per cent. ad valorem; the imports were $3,793; the exports $75,362,283. Duty on corn is 15 c. its per bushel. In 1892 our imports were $3,592; the exports $41,590; duty collected, $528.80. Cornmeal, duty 20 cents a bushel; imports $210; exports, $919,961; duty $42.

Rye—Duty 10 cents a bushel; imports $848, exports $11,432,160. Butter—Duty 6 cents a pound; imports $17,637, exports $11,432,160.

Oat meal—Duty 1 cent a pound; imports $27,946, exports $555,957. Bacon and Hams—Duty 5 cents a pound; imports $43,532, exports $47,092,650.

Beef—Duty 2 cents a pound; imports $11,917, exports $30,610,539.

Lard—Duty 2 cents a pound; imports $221, exports $33,291,621.

Pork—Duty 2 cents a pound; imports $997, exports $4,822,295.

Apples—Duty 25 cents a bushel; imports $13,876, exports $2,406,950.

And so on through the whole list. Of the articles enumerated above we import in a measure nothing, nor would we import any more if admitted free, for the reason that this country is the great producer and usually has a large surplus from which to supply foreign markets. The only object McKinley had in imposing the tax was to hoodwink the farmers.

When the McKinley Committee on Ways and Means in 1889 were adjusting the tariff schedules for the American wage-workers they were importuned by the hop-growers to increase the duty on hops, which was then 8 cents a pound. Their argument was the usual one that they could not compete with the cheaper labor engaged in hop-raising in other countries. This country would be flooded with the article and their large hop yards would become worthless. They succeeded in their object, and the duty was increased to 15 cents a pound. In the nine months ending Oct. 1 of this year our hop-growers exported to foreign countries 7,867,222 pounds, valued at $1,781,423. The imports during the same period were 1,530,348 pounds, of the value of $631,613. The exports were five times the imports! It appears then, that the American producer could pay freight charges to foreign countries and undersell the product of pauper labor there. Can the Republican political economist explain this?

"All things considered," says the Chicago Record, "the Wilson tariff bill will prove a satisfactory measure from the protective side to the masses of the citizens, to manufacturers, to consumers and to labor. It may result in a great increase in production, in higher wages, in larger extensions of American trade and in greater prosperity."

EDITORS ARE BARRED.—An exchange says that an editor once applied at the door of hades for admission. "Well," replied his sabbath majesty, "we let one of your profession in here many years ago, and he kept up a continual row with his former delinquent subscribers; and as we have more of that class of persons than any other, we passed a law prohibiting the admission of editors."

The exact reason why some of the large steel works east of the Alleghenies will close on the first of the year was given some three or four weeks ago by Frederick Wood, second vice president of the Pennsylvania Steel company located at Steelton, Pa.

"Previous to the past year," he says, "we were in a position to compete most favorably with the steel manufacturers of the country. Just at present we are not, though the fault is not our own. It is all due to the discovery of deposits of good steel-making ore in Michigan on the banks of Lake Superior. The ore comes from what are known as the Mesabi districts, and can be very cheaply mined by steam shovels and loaded by them directly on the cars.

"Owing to the freight charges we can not, of course, compete with the mills west of the Alleghenies in purchasing this ore. Nor can the foreign ore from Cuba and the Mediterranean, which we use entirely, paying the duty of 75 cents a ton, compete with the western ore.

"The result is that our steel business has gone to pot, and will continue so if the western output holds out and the tariff is not taken off raw material.

"If the tariff is taken off raw material, we shall be able to compete on even terms with the other steel-making companies. If it is not, I do not think there is a single company east of the Alleghenies mountains that will be able to continue operations in steel-making.

"As I understand the tariff, it is intended to encourage the industry and not to shut up manufacturing. When this is the result, it has outlived its usefulness. With the tariff off raw materials, eastern and western plants would be on an equal basis."

Mr. Sovereign, who succeeded T. V. Powderly as chief officer of the Knights of Labor, is an out-and-out free trader. "I believe," he says, "in no makeshifts or partial reductions of tariff taxation. The so-called protection to American labor is a delusion. Labor is not protected. Invested capital receives a bonus in the form of protection, and it is then optional with the capitalists to give a share of the bonus to labor in the form of increased wages. But this option is seldom, if ever, exercised."

If there ever was a time when a high tariff should benefit the laboring classes, that time is now. If the employees of protected corporations have received their share of tariff bounties, there should be no suffering. In the most cases, the poorest paid labor in this country is that employed by protected concerns. The laboring classes are forced by law to help protect capital, and they in return are compelled to accept for their labor whatever protected capitalists see fit to give. The protection proposition "that the government take care of the rich, and the rich will take care of the poor," don't operate in the interest of the wage-earner.

"It is notable," says the Laporte Argus, "how soon people forget about hard times when a change comes. Every winter there is more or less talk about hard times. It is worse this winter than usual, because of the financial panic last summer and fall, but there always more or less factories and mills that shut down work because of slack orders or over stocks, and almost invariably the force of workmen is reduced in numbers. Everybody who stops to think knows this to be true for it is so from year to year. There is not one-tenth the suffering now that there was after the panic of 1873, and that lasted for five years."

Once the Wilson tariff bill becomes operative free raw material will enable our manufacturers to employ more labor, vastly increase their outputs and not only supply our own but the markets of the world. There will then be no lack of orders, no over stock, no over-taxation. The people's money,

Rochester Sentinel: The finest job of printing ever turned out in Rochester has just been delivered to Senator Zimmerman. It consisted of a thousand very expensive cards containing a full tone zinc etching of Mr. Z., and a Christmas and New Year greeting couched in very pretty language. The thousand, however, didn't "go round" with the Senator's friends, and he is getting five hundred more as fast as the press can turn them out.

We acknowledge receipt of one of those handsome cards, and thank the Senator for his remembrance of us in their distribution.

The recently elected Republican governor of Iowa was once rebuffed for crookedness as a pension attorney, which fact was known to every man that voted for him. In New York the Democrats defeated their candidate for supreme judge because he had been charged with having been mixed up with some shady business. These facts fully illustrate the difference between the two parties.

The Democratic State Central Committee has issued a call for the Democrats of the State to meet at their respective county seats on Saturday, December 30, at 2 o'clock p. m., to elect delegates to the district conventions to be held January 8, 1894, to elect a member of the State Committee for the ensuing two years.

In response to this call Democrats of Jasper county are requested to meet at the Court House, in Rensselaer, on Saturday, December 30, at 2 o'clock p. m., and elect five delegates to the Tenth District Convention to be held at Logansport, January 8, 1894, for the purpose designated above.

Loaded Revolvers Stood Guard. Two loaded revolvers prevented the saving of $ 00 in a burning house in Van Wert, Ohio, a few days ago. The money, which was in gold, was concealed under a carpet in a bed-room, and on a bureau in the same room by the revolvers, pointing toward the entrance. No one would dare enter the room. No trace of the money could be found after the house burned.

DEPEW ON BAD TIMES IN EUROPE. Chicago Herald: Upon his return from foreign shores Dr. Depew has to say: "The cry of all Europe is bad business; nothing like it has been known before. They all feel and look poor. While this is especially true of continental Europe, England has not escaped the prevailing hard times."

And Dr. Depew doesn't attribute the bad business to tariff reform of the kind promised in the Chicago platform of 1892. He could not do that in the case of continental Europe, where business is worst, for there they have had no tariff reform, or promise of any, except of the McKinley kind. In the case of England, where business is best, he does not mention free trade as the cause of the depression. He mentions nothing but the great coal strike, which he says "was productive of an incalculable amount of damage."

Napoleon McKinley and Cesar Reed will have to apply the rod of discipline to the back of the learned doctor. They are telling the American people that it is the Wilson bill and the fear of a moderate installment of tariff reduction that is making business bad and throwing men out of employment in this country. Therefore it was Dr. Depew's duty to say nothing about bad business and restriction of employment in Europe unless he could make it appear that there were promised installments of tariff reduction to account for the trouble there.

But instead of keeping still or talking tariff, like an obedient partisan, he states the facts and omits to charge them all up against tariff reform. He tells how even continental hotel proprietors have been forced to discharge men until in one instance the same man appeared in a blouse to kindle a fire, in blue coat and gold lace as a lead clerk, and in a dress suit as head and only waiter. And he doesn't intimate that the tariff had anything to do with these lightning transformations and the distressing restriction of employment which they implied.

So far from that, the distinguished post-prandial orator leaves us to our own reflections. He tells us that the situation is best of all in free-trade England, in spite of the great coal strike, and he leaves us to recall the fact that it is best there in spite of the immense losses inflicted upon British investors by the financial catastrophes in Argentina and Australia and many minor catastrophes elsewhere, while the situation is worst in continental countries where they enjoy the blessing of protective tariffs, and where they have not been deeply involved in outside financial disasters, except in the case of the Panama Canal. The inference is obvious. If tariff reduction has nothing to do with depression in Europe probably it has nothing to do with depression here, though McKinleyism may have not a little to do with depression on both sides of the water.
