

Bound to Have His Fun.
Speaking of football brings to mind a time not many years ago when Yale's athletic conscience was not so tender as at present. On her team were graduates galore. She even went outside of a candidate or two, though none of the imported "top o' men" finally played at Springfield.

Among the surreptitiously acquired material was one true-hearted son of old Erin, over six feet tall, and renowned as a pugilist. His physique was excellent, but somehow he never seemed to get into the play. Nor was he deficient in courage. The coaches could not understand it until one day he was given the ball to run with. Then some rasher tackled him hard, and in a minute the former pugilist had dropped the ball and was going at the tackler hammer and tongs.

"Here, you!" shouted the coaches. "What are you doing there? Play football!"

And between the cracks of the blows came back the answer:

"Oh, go to the devil, an' lave me do me man!"—Boston Budget.

LOVE in marriage should be the accomplishment of a beautiful dream, and not, as it too often proves, the end.

DENVER UNDER ARMS

TROOPS CALLED OUT BY GOV. WAITE.

Entire Police and Fire Department, Aided by Deputy Sheriffs, Refuse to Surrender—Neither Side Ready to Shoot—Revolt Against an Injunction.

Surround the City Hall.

Thursday was an exciting day in Denver. From 2 o'clock in the afternoon until 9 o'clock in the evening the First Regiment, Colorado National Guards, the Chaffee Light Artillery, and the Signal Corps were drawn up in front of the City Hall. A big brass "Napoleon" and two Gatling guns were trained upon the building, and the order to fire was momentarily expected. The people of Denver awoke Thursday morning to find their sleepers under martial law. The Governor of Colorado had late Wednesday evening summoned the State troops mentioned above to assemble at their armory, Twenty-sixth and Curtis streets, at 10 o'clock a. m. Thursday. The Governor's orders did not, of course, specify what the troops were wanted for, and the venerable, but pugnacious, executive refused flatly to talk, but of course the whole town knew. This critical situation was brought about by the determination of Gov. Waite to oust the two members of the fire and police board, Jack son Orr and D. J. Martin, whom he removed for protecting gambling houses, and place in office their successors, S. D. Barnes and Dennis Mullins. Messrs. Orr and Martin, having obtained from the District Court an injunction restraining Gov. Waite from forcibly removing them, were determined to resist to the utmost.

Prepare for Battle.

The order for the troops to move was given at 2 o'clock. All the men were attired in fatigue uniform, and the artillerymen looked especially warlike in their khaki hats and tightly fitting suits. There was an average of twenty men to a gun, and each of these weapons of death had four horses attached to it. At the city hall the whole police department was rapidly collected and prepared to defend the old fire and police board. In addition several hundred of the toughest citizens, many of whom have records as man killers, were sworn in as deputies by Sheriff Burchinal and placed in the city hall as reinforcements of the police department. Each deputy was armed with two six-shooters and instructed to use them in case of necessity. The police were armed with shotguns in addition to their clubs and revolvers. Chief Pearce of the fire department made early arrangements to assist in the battle, and his mode of warfare, while of a peculiar nature, was decided upon as the first method of action for the defense of the city hall.

Lines of those were arranged throughout the building ready to be attached to the fire hydrants in order to greet the advance guard of the opposing forces with streams of water, to be given additional force by the use of the steam engines in the central station. Should the streams of water prove unavailing in protecting the hall from the invading forces the men were stationed as to open fire from behind the walls of the city building.

The militia were drawn up in line of battle, and the Gatling guns were turned on the city hall. The police force was drawn up on the main floor of the city hall, armed with rifles and shotguns, ready for action.

A Truce Arranged.

The Chamber of Commerce took a hand in the overtures for peace and made several propositions to the Governor and the rival police board. Finally the Governor agreed to withdraw the troops and leave the old board in possession for a few days, if they would agree to submit the case at once to the Supreme Court on its merits. This proposition was promptly refused by Messrs. Orr and Martin, the de facto board. Bloodshed now seemed inevitable. The American flag was at this point displayed out of the window of the Board of Trade. The crowd outside cheered wildly. "They won't let us fire on the flag," somebody shouted. More cheering.

Suddenly an order from the Governor came, stopping all hostilities for two hours. The reason soon became plain. Gov. Waite had been communicating with the War Department at Washington, and had secured orders for the regulars at Fort Logan to proceed to Denver and assist in keeping the peace. They arrived by special train at 8:15 p. m., and went into camp 600 yards from the Union Depot platform, awaiting orders from Brig.-Gen. McCook, commanding the Department of the Colorado. Gen. McCook had a conference with the Governor, and then, about 9 p. m., the force of State militia that had been stationed around the City Hall received marching orders, went to the armory, and there, disbanded, subject to call, the men going to their homes. The Governor was afraid that if firing was begun in the darkness some non-combatants might be shot and a general riot precipitated.

Friday morning a conference was held and Governor Waite agreed to submit his altercation with the police board to the Supreme Court and to abide by the decision. This determination ended the prospect of bloodshed which for two days kept Denver in a fever of excitement. The regular troops, under General McCook, were moved up town to temporary quarters in the afternoon. During the night the general McCook received instructions from the Secretary of War authorizing him to use the United States troops only for the protection of the Government's property unless it was represented to him by the Governor of the State that the authorities were unable to suppress the insurrection. A dispatch says the troops have been ordered to remain until peace is assured.

BAD STORM IN TEXAS

AT LEAST A DOZEN PERSONS ARE KILLED OUTRIGHT.

Cyclone Sweeps Over Longview, Emery and Other Places, Demolishing Houses and Uprooting Trees—Hailstones Weigh Fourteen Ounces—Peculiar Shaped Cloud.

Death in Its Wake.

A destructive storm swept over Longview, Texas, at 1 o'clock Sunday morning. At least six persons were killed outright, three were fatally and many seriously injured. Great lumps of ice fell, breaking 300 panes of glass. Many pieces of ice weighed fourteen to eighteen ounces, while others, which must have been very much larger, were found in the morning after a heavy warm day, but it is now entirely demolished. There are six persons dead, three mortally wounded, and five seriously and painfully hurt.

Half a mile south of the ill-fated Lester house, the house of John Buffit, a white man, was taken away from the floor and dashed to splinters, leaving the family unhurt, except from bruises by hail stones. The storm swept on toward Marshall. Fruit trees and fences were demolished for many miles around. A Texas and Pacific passenger train was passing at the time and barely escaped the funnel-shaped cloud.

Six Killed at Emery.

The cyclone passed over Emery, the county seat of Rains County, thirty miles south of Greenville, totally demolishing the western portion of the town. Six persons were killed outright. In addition to these at least fifty are wounded, and some of them will die. The cloud came from the southwest, and, as described by an eyewitness, it resembled an hour glass, approaching like two funnels together, point to point. The bottom of it was forked, and it was one continual blaze of electricity. It had the rotary cyclone motion and seemed about thirty or forty feet wide. It struck the ground north of the Missouri, Kansas and Texas depot and its track extends about four or five miles north and is about 100 yards wide, according to dispatches from various points. Everything in the track of the storm is a complete wreck.

That Sinking Feeling.

A Detroit doctor, who came to a boy about 16 years old, who came into his office one day last week, and after getting the doctor's advice, disappeared and has not since been seen, at least by him.

"Doctor," said the boy, "I have a sinking feeling all over, a great many times a day."

"Ever at night?" asked the doctor.

"Hardly ever."

"Let me see your tongue."

The boy showed his tongue; the doctor felt it, and, sounding his chest, worked a stethoscope on him, listened at his heartbeats, and then told him what was the matter with him and what to take for it.

"Maybe my business has got something to do with it, doctor," suggested the boy, as the physician stepped into the adjoining room to get a phial.

"Hardly that, I think," cheerily sung out the physician from the other room. "What is your business?"

"I run an elevator," responded the lad, and before the doctor could get to him he had disappeared, as above stated.

A Sheriff's Posses.

The full name of the Sheriff's posse is posse comitatus, the power of the county; the Sheriff being the chief executive officer of the county, he and his assistants embody the power of the entire county. All male persons except physicians and clergymen are liable to be summoned to serve on the posse, and there is no formal warning for duty, as there is for the jury. The Sheriff simply calls for the first suitable men whom he meets to come with him, bringing arms, and the men are legally bound to obey the call. In the posse there is no enlisted force, no lieutenants in policemen, and Constables in the country possess it. That is, they may call upon the bystanders to assist them; and persons so called upon are bound to answer the call, or be punished for refusing to do so.

The Land of Promise.

In the mighty West, the land that "tickled with a hoe laughs a harvest," the El Dorado of the miner; the goal of the agricultural emigrant. While it teems with all the elements of wealth and prosperity, some of the fairest and most fruitful portions of it have been harvested by malaria reared in its fullness by those unprotected by a medicinal safeguard.

No one seeking or dwelling in a malarial locality is safe from the scourge without Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Emigrants, bear this in mind. Commercial travelers, sojourning in malarious regions should carry a bottle of the Bitters in the traditional gripes. Against the effects of exposure, mental or bodily overwork, damp and malarial air, or water, it is an infallible defense. Constipation, rheumatism, biliousness, dyspepsia, nervousness and loss of strength are all remedied by this genial restorative.

A Disadvantage of Wealth.

A visitor among the poor on the east side of the city found unexpected testimony to the disadvantages of wealth during one of her recent calls. Mrs. B. has a family of a dozen children, and, like most of her class, she had her tale of woe to tell.

"How are the children, Mrs. B.?" inquired the caller.

"All very well, indeed, ma'am, very well, indeed."

"You ought to be thankful, I'm sure, with so much sickness all about."

"Y—yes, ma'am, I suppose I ought to be thankful—but, I tell you, ma'am, when they're well they eat an awful lot."

How to Extinguish Fire.

Take twenty pounds of common salt and ten pounds of sal ammoniac (muriate of ammonia), to be had of any druggist, and dissolve in seven gallons of water. When dissolved, it can be bottled, and kept in each room in the house, to be used in an emergency. In case of a fire occurring, one or two bottles should be immediately thrown into the fire, and the fire will certainly be extinguished. This is an exceedingly simple process and certainly worth a trial.—Medical and Surgical Reporter.

Medical writers claim that the successful remedy for nasal catarrh must be non-irritating, and have used various remedies that will reach the remote sources and ulcerated surfaces. The history of the efforts to treat catarrh is proof positive that only one remedy has completely met these conditions, and that is Ely's Cream Balm.

This safe and pleasant remedy has mastered catarrh as nothing else has ever done, and both physicians and patients freely concede this fact.

I HAVE always said that the greatest object in education is to accustom a young man gradually to be his own master.—Sydney Smith.

I HAVE BEEN AFFLICTED with an annoying catarrh of the nose, caused by diphtheria, and have used various remedies, but have never found anything equal to BROWN'S BRONCHIAL REMEDY.—Rev. G. M. F. Hampton, Philadelphia, Ky. Sold only in boxes.

AND though mine arms should conquer twenty worlds, there's a lean fellow, low beats all conquerors.—Thomas Dekker.

Tariff and Taraxion.

Tariff duties and internal revenue taxation on incomes and corporations are exciting public interest, but of quite as much interest are those things which tax the system and require at once an external remedy. On this subject, with special recommendation, Mr. Pierce D. Brown, Bridgewater, Mass., says: "In accidents from all kinds of athletic sports, to reduce sprains and bruises, I have used St. Jacobs Oil and always found it most reliable." Also, Mr. C. R. Sands, Margum, Okla., writes: "I have used St. Jacobs Oil for sprains and rheumatism and would not be without it for anything." Mr. R. Ledbetter, Denton, Texas, says: "I have used St. Jacobs Oil and it is the only thing I ever saw that would cure toothache in ten minutes' time, and it is usually prompt and sure for frost-bites. All of these communications are of recent date, showing unabated interest.

Turkish Superstitions.

Among other Turkish superstitions are these: If a pair of scissors are left on a table open, it is a sign of a quarrel; if they fall upon the floor and stick up, it means a visit; and if an apple or other fruit falls from the hand just as you are about to put it in your mouth, it is a sign some one envies you. If a leaf or a piece of bread falls to the floor, it is a sign that some of your relatives are in want of bread in a strange place. To bite the tongue signifies that you are not telling the truth. The little white spots which come under the finger nail, means various things, according to the finger. The right thumb nail means money earned; the left, finding money or a pre-ent. The first finger means friends, the next, enemies, the third, journeys, and the little one, fbs. When an eyelash falls off and flies on the cheek, it means a present of a new gown or other article of wearing apparel.

No MORE potent charm can be found at beauty's shrine than an exquisitely lovely complexion such as invariably follows the use of Glenn's Sulphur Soap.

Windfall.

The origin of "windfall," in the sense of "good luck," dates from the time of William the Conqueror. It was then a criminal offense to cut timber in the forests. Only such could be gathered as the wind had blown down; hence a heavy wind-storm was hailed by the peasants as so much good luck; and hence the modern application of the expression.
