Ayer's Sarsaparilla

The Remedy with a Record.
50 Years of Cures

"We are living in the shadows of an unbridled plutocracy, caused, created and cemented in no light degree by legislative aldermanic and congressional action; a plutocracy that is far more wealthy than any aristocracy that has ever crossed the horizon of the world's history, and one that has been produced in a shorter consecutive period, the names of whose members are emblazoned not on the pages of their nation's glory; but of its peculations; who represent no struggle for their country's liberties, but for its boodle, no contests for magna charta, but for railroads and charters and whose octopus grip is extending over every branch of industry; a plutocracy that controls the price of bread that we eat, the price of the sugar that sweetens the cup we drink, the price of the oil that lights us on our way, the price of the coffins in which we are buried." Gen. S. Brice, in North American Review.

Just at the time when Philadelphia manufacturing establishments are becoming successful bidders for railway material in China and Japan, the congress of the United States is engaged in making commercial war upon those countries by imposing fines upon the importation of some of the products most largely sold to our merchants and manufacturers. And this passes muster as up-to-date Republican statesmanship.—Shoals News.
