HOW TO FIND OUT.

Fill a bottle or common glass with urine and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates a diseased condition of the kidneys. When urine stains when it is positive evidence of kidney trouble. Too frequent desire to urinate or pain in the back, is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

WHAT TO DO

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp Root, the great kidney remedy fulfills every wish in relieving pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passages. It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effect following use of liquor wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to get up many times during the night to urinate. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists price fifty cents and one dollar. For a sample bottle and pamphlet, both sent free by mail, mention Democratic Sentinel and send your full post-office address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Birmingham, N. Y. The proprietor of this paper guarantees the genuineness of this offer.

How Donizetti's Skull Was Stolen.
A French review says that the skull of Donizetti is still carefully preserved in the library at Bergamo, the town where the composer was born, lived, and died. For several years before his death Donizetti had shown signs of insanity, and just before the funeral took place an autopsy was made by the attending physician. It demonstrated the existence of grave lesions in the musician's brain. The organ weighed 1,554 grammes, which is about a ninth above the average. The convolutions that are supposed to govern the imaginative and musical faculties showed high development. After the operation had been completed, one of the doctors present secretly took possession of the upper part of the cranial vault, placed it upon his own head, and, covering it with his hat, managed to carry the strange memento away unobserved.
This happened in 1848. The doctor kept the skull all his life, naturally saying very little about it. After his death a nephew had it made into a paper weight. In 1874 the municipality of Bergamo, learning of these facts, instituted an inquiry that established their truth, and finally managed to get possession of the relic.

Old Sarsaparilla.

That's Ayer's. The same old sarsaparilla as it was made and sold by Dr. J. C. Ayer 50 years ago. In the laboratory is different. There modern appliances lend speed to skill and experience. But the sarsaparilla is the same old sarsaparilla that made the record—50 years of cures. Why don't we better it? Well, we're much in the condition of the Bishop and the raspberry: "Doubtless," he said, "God might have made a better berry. But doubtless, also, He never did." Why don't we better the sarsaparilla? We can't. We are using the same old plant that cured the Indians and the Spaniards. It has not been bettered. And since we make sarsaparilla compound out of sarsaparilla plant, we see no way of improvement. Of course, if we were making some secret chemical compound we might.... But we're not. We're making the same old sarsaparilla to cure the same old diseases. You can tell it's the same old sarsaparilla because it works the same old cures. It's the sovereign blood purifier, and—it's Ayer's.

MRS. HENRY IRVING.

The Romantic Story of the Great Actor's Wife.

Much to the regret of the English people Henry Irving has left London and will soon arrive in this country. He leaves behind him the mother of his children, whom he has not seen for many years. There is a certain romance connected with the great actor's marital relations which is not known to the world.

A slender, good-looking but melancholy lady is the wife of the great actor. If the truth must be told, she has not been without occasion for grief. The London public knows little about her and cares less. It is known that she is no more. But people who have an intimate knowledge of many concerns say that Lady Irving has borne a heavy burden for many years. She was married to Irving twenty-six or twenty-seven years ago, when he was an inconsiderable player. Her maiden name was O'Callaghan, and she was the daughter of a regimental surgeon of the British army in India. She was a woman of imperious, even violent temper, and she and Irving did not enjoy a long period of felicity. Two children were born to them. They were named Henry and Laurence.

When Laurence Irving was 2 weeks old and Henry was 2 years, Mr. and Mrs. Irving separated. The actor left for America and never returned. Except for chance encounters the two never have met since that day. His friends asserted that she was insanely jealous; her friends that he was careless of her. He had the stronger side, but her family and relatives by marriage have constantly reiterated their faith in her. A number of years ago a suit for separate maintenance was removed. It is not known that a suit was actually brought, but Mr. Irving promptly settled $1,000 a year upon his wife. The latter, however, has never made use of this money, which has gone toward the education of her children.

This Boy Is a Dandy.
The champion knife swapper lives in Gainesville, Ohio. He is a little boy—the son of a preacher—and this is his record, as given by his father: "That boy, not many months since, worried me till I bought him a knife. Like a boy, he left it out one night and it got rusty. Then he lost interest in it and began at once to swap it off. Well, the little rascal has naturally a knack for trading, and, sir, he took that rusty knife and with a little work on it and a good deal of talking he succeeded in exchanging it for two good knives. These knives in turn he traded for three knives, worked considerably on them, and got a cheap watch for the three. He kept trading till he had completed forty-seven different bargains, most of them in his favor. At the end of the forty-seventh trade he owned a shotgun, a hound puppy, two jackknives, and 65 cents in money, besides other smaller trinkets too numerous to mention."

JUST THINK OF IT.

We eat $10,000,000 Worth of Peanuts Every Year.

The peanuts which are sold by street vendors and others are not the first-class article, says a dealer. The best peanuts are used for other purposes. They are made into meal and grits by scientific men, and in Germany they are prepared for sick people in the hospitals. The peanuts you get in candy are the very poorest grade.

Peanuts originally came from Central and South America. They grow there in long pods, and the pods contain from four to five kernels. They were carried to the old world in the early days, and in the seventeenth century they constituted the chief staple of Africa. The negroes who were imported from Africa to this country brought over the peanut and they first grew in Virginia. And now this country is raising the crop, and, owing to American shrewdness, the nut is ground and used for various purposes and shipped all over the world.

In 1861 and 1865 peanut oil was manufactured largely in four Southern States, and was employed as a substitute for olive oil. Sometimes peanut oil is used for lighting, and again it is utilized to advantage in the making of soap and as a lubricant in machine shops. The American peanut is larger and better flavored than any other, but it does not contain so much oil as the African nut. The "cake" which is left after extracting the oil makes excellent feed for cattle, and is used very largely for that purpose in Germany, where it sells for from $30 to $35 a ton. The United States now produces 4,000,000 bushels of peanuts annually, or 88,000,000 pounds. The total world's supply amounts to about 600,000,000 pounds. It is estimated that $10,000,000 worth are eaten every year in the United States.
