HOW TO FIND OUT.

Fill a bottle or common glass with urine and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates a diseased condition of the kidneys. When urine stains linen it is positive evidence of kidney trouble. Too frequent desire to urinate or pain in the back, is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

WHAT TO DO.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp Root, the great kidney remedy fulfills every wish in relieving pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passages. It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effect following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to get up many times during the night to urinate. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists price fifty cents and one dollar. For a sample bottle and pamphlet, both sent free by mail, mention Democratic Sentinel and send your full post-office address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Birmingham, N. Y. The proprietor of this paper guarantees the genuineness of this offer.

Ayer's Hair Vigor Makes Hair Grow

Ambitious Philadelphia Boys.
All of a sudden the bright, small boy in a part of West Philadelphia has developed a wonderful desire to run errands for the neighbors "free for nothing" and generous housekeepers have been marvelling at the solicitation of outsiders for the privilege of running errands. Numbers of the youngsters have made compacts that they shall be the privileged ones for a certain period. The mystery is explained by a scheme of some of the shopkeepers, who give each boy a card indicating the amount of the purchase, and when the boy becomes the possessor of the tickets aggregating a certain amount he is made the recipient of a percentage of all that has been bought through his agency. A corps of ambitious young drug and grocery brokers is thus being developed.

ODDS AND ENDS.

A fly's egg will hatch in twelve hours.
Flies always leave a dead or dying person.
A fly has been known to live six years.
There are more than 400,000 insects on the globe.

Do You Use It?

It's the best thing for the hair under all circumstances. Just as no man by taking thought can add an inch to his stature, so no preparation can make hair. The utmost that can be done is to promote conditions favorable to growth. This is done by Ayer's Hair Vigor. It removes dandruff, cleanses the scalp, nourishes the soil in which the hair grows, and, just as a desert will blossom under rain, so bald heads grow hair, when the roots are nourished. But the roots must be there. If you wish your hair to retain its normal color, or if you wish to restore the lost tint of gray or faded hair use Ayer's Hair Vigor.

FAMOUS NICKNAMES.

Frederick the Great was called Der Alte Fritz by his soldiers, the Philosopher of Sans Souci by his friends, and the Monomaniac by his enemies.

David Garrick was the Stage Atlas, the English Roscius, Little Davy, the Proteus of the Stage and the Valet Tynt, from his stage skill and presence.

Goethe, among many other nicknames, was the Man of Many Medals, in allusion to the decorations and orders bestowed upon him by various Kings and Princes.

Jean Sebastian Bach was called Father of Modern Piano Music because his writings were largely for the piano, and he was the first to use the thumb in fingering.

Gen. Grant was called Old Three Stars, in allusion to his symbols of rank; also, Uncle Sam Grant, Unconditional Surrender, United States, and United We Stand Grant.

Alexander the Great was denominated Macedonia's Madman, because of his rashness. He was ever ready to attack, and disparity of numbers made no difference with him.

John Adams was called the Colossus of Independence, because of his prominence in the debate and proceedings of the Continental Congress and Constitutional Convention.

Lakman, an Arabian philosopher, was called the Aesop of Arabia. He was a slave, ugly and deformed, but famous for his fables and wisdom. He is mentioned in the Koran.

Disraeli was nicknamed Dizzy, from a contraction of his name; the Gay Lothario of Politics, from his facility in adapting himself to circumstances, and Vivian Gray from one of his novels.

Helpless Handling of Stenographers.
"It has been said that every man is 'ward in the dark,' but I know of one man who was unable to comprehend what fear is," said David E. Bangs. His name is John Junken, and he was a schoolmaster in Indiana thirty years ago, a time when stenographers were plentiful. One of John's favorite amusements when a boy was to provoke a rattlesnake to strike; then, before it could recoil, seize him by the tail, and, holding him like a rattler, 'bang' his head off. He could jerk a rattler from his body every time. He would climb to the top of a tall hickory sapling and, with the assistance of his companions, bend it to the ground. All would then let go and John, who would enjoy the rebound. When he was years of age he told Israel Putnam's famous exploit by crawling into a hollow log, dragging a panther out by the tail, and killing it with a hatchet. He entered the army at the outbreak of the war, and, while his gallant conduct was frequently commended it was deemed unwise to confer a commission on a man entirely destitute of prudence and who fairly revelled in reckless exploits."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

An English Court's Robbery.
A most disgraceful miscarriage of justice was made recently in the English Court of Chancery. Two years ago a mechanic married a girl who was a ward in chancery and a fortune of £1000. The cost of £4000 for settling that sum on her amounted to $100. A few months ago she became ill with trouble and her physician said she would die if she were not removed to a warm climate. The husband petitioned the court to use his wife's money for that purpose. The court took six months to decide, settling the matter negatively, and charged $400 for the judgment. Meanwhile the woman had died, as the doctor said she would.

The Red Sea.
The Red Sea is for the most part blue. It gets its name from the fact that portions of it are covered by minute animals, which dye the surface of the water red where they float.

A Smart Young Woman.
All France is talking of Mlle. Jeanne Benabon. She received the college degree of bachelor of arts two years ago, when she was 18. She then became professor of philosophy in a woman's college at Lyons, and this year was a candidate at the Sorbonne for the degree of licentiate in philosophy. The examiners, though not prepared for a prodigy, were amazed at the extent of her erudition and her serene composure in dealing with the vexed problems of Descartes, Kant and Comte. She was third on the list of 200 candidates, all of them older than herself, and is now a lecturer on science of mind in the College of Rouen.

A WONDERFUL CHANGE.

How a Few Hundred Years Altered the Face of Europe.

At the beginning of the eleventh century the towns of Europe were small clusters of miserable huts, adorned with but low, clumsy churches, the builders of which hardly knew how to make an arch; the arts, mostly consisting of some weaving and forging, were in their infancy; learning was found in but few monasteries. Three hundred and fifty years later the face of Europe had been changed. The land was dotted with rich cities, surrounded by immense thick walls, which were embellished by towers and gates, each of them a work of art in itself.

The cathedrals, conceived in grand style and profusely decorated, lifted their bell towers to the skies, displaying a purity of form and a boldness of imagination which we now vainly strive to obtain. The crafts and arts had risen to a degree of perfection which we can hardly boast of having surpassed in many directions. If the inventive skill of the worker and the superior finish of his work be appreciated higher than rapidity of fabrication. The natives of the free cities flocked in all directions to the Northern and Southern Mediterranean; one effort more and they would cross the oceans. Over large tracts of land well-being had taken the place of misery; learning had grown and spread.

The methods of science had been elaborated; the basis of natural philosophy had been laid down; and the way had been paved for all the mechanical inventions of which our own times are so proud. Such were the magic changes accomplished in Europe in less than 400 years. And the losses which Europe sustained through the loss of its free cities can only be understood when we compare the seventeenth century with the fourteenth or thirteenth. The prosperity which formerly characterized Scotland, Germany, the plains of Italy, was gone. The roads had fallen into an abject state, the cities were depopulated, labor was brought into slavery, art had vanished, commerce itself was decaying.

Boulanger's Horse.

The 14th of July was the great day of Boulanger's life, so far as popular admiration and exterior manifestations were concerned. It was the date of the appearance of the black horse, the horse that became, for the time, a party symbol, a political finger post, a feature in the history of France.

He was a prodigiously shrewd horse, as gorgeous as he was famous; he was composed principally of a bristling tail, a new-moon neck, a looking-glass skin, and the action of Demosthenes. He seemed to possess two paces only—a trotting walk and a windmill canter. He was a thorough specimen of what the Spaniards call "an arrogant horse"; he was gaudy, yet solemn; strutting, yet stately; flanneting, yet majestic; magniloquent, yet eloquent.

He was drilled with the most admirable skill; his manners were so superlative that with all his firework display he could not have been either difficult to handle or tiring to sit. Never was a horse so emphatically suited to his rider; the two more identical in their ways; each was as gilded as the other. As the horse bounded the General (who had a weak grip) rocked on him; at every stride he swung harmoniously in the saddle and bent right and left alternately, like a stage sovereign bowing to his assembled people.—Blackwood's Magazine.
