WHAT THE LAW DECIDES.

A license to sell intoxicating liquor is held, in Voligt vs. excise commissioners (N. J.), 37 L. R. A. 292, to be a mere temporary permit which does not constitute property in any sense, and its revocation can be made, without anything in the nature of a judicial proceeding, on proof by affidavit that the licensee has violated the law.

A landlord's duty to use reasonable care to protect the property of his tenant from injury by the elements while repairing a roof or putting on a new one at his request is held, in Wertheimer vs. Saunders (Wis.), 37 L. R. A. 146, to be one which he cannot delegate to an independent contractor so as to be relieved from liability if the contractor is negligent.

The disqualification of one of the three members of a town board to sit on a hearing for the revocation of a license is held, in State ex rel. Getchel vs. Bradish (Wis.), 37 L. R. A. 289, to make a decision of the board revoking the license invalid, and the chairman is held disqualified when he has procured a person to make an unlawful purchase in order to get evidence to revoke the license.

An insane delusion is held, in re Kimberly (Conn.), 37 L. R. A. 261, to be a false belief for which there is no reasonable foundation and which would be incredible under the given circumstances to the same person if of sound mind and concerning which his mind is not open to permanent correction through evidence or arguments. The numerous cases on the question what constitutes insane delusions are collected in a note to this case.

The driver of a truck in a procession, knowing that a temporary superstructure upon it was built by the hirer for the occasion, although he was sent by the owner of the horses and truck, who had agreed to furnish a driver, is held, in Hardy vs. Shedd (C. C. App. 4th Cir.), 37 L. R. A. 83, to be a special servant in the employ of the hirer for that particular occasion. With this case is a very extensive note on the question which of two or more persons is the master of another who is conceded to be a servant of one of them.

BITS OF KNOWLEDGE.

Sixty languages are spoken in the empire governed by the Czar of Russia. The largest winged insect in the world is the Atlas moth of Central Brazil. Its wings extend fourteen inches from tip to tip.

An average of three British seamen lose their lives every day by drowning, and 800 British steamers and sailing vessels are lost yearly at sea.

There were only 500 miles of underground wire in London, England, in 1890; there are now 13,000 miles. In 1890 there were five and a half miles of pneumatic tubes, compared with forty miles now.

A bricklayer can lay about 1,500 or 1,600 bricks in a day of ten hours where the joints are laid, about 1,000 per day when both faces have to be worked fair; and not more than 500 a day when carefully jointed and faced with picked bricks of a uniform color.

The human brain is composed of at least 800,000,000 of nerve cells, each an independent organism. The lifetime of a nerve cell is estimated to be about sixty days, so that 5,000,000 die every day, about 200,000 every hour, and nearly 3,500 every minute, to be succeeded by an equal number of their progeny. Thus once in every sixty days a man has a new brain.

The most remarkable case of a letter found in the stomach of a man.

with a short memory lately came to light in North Carolina. The wonder is that the overcoat, the letter, the owner of the coat, the writer, and the addressee all outlasted the interval of thirty-two years between the lapse and the restoration of memory in the oblivious custodian of the letter. It was written in 1865. When discovered, in 1897, inquiry was instituted as to whether the addressee were still alive, which being found to be the case the letter was duly forwarded.

NOTES OF NOTABLES.

Hall Caine has been ordered by his physician to go to Rome and abstain from all work and worry.

Mme. Emma Eames, the great singer, said recently that though she loved America no singer could live there long because the constant rush and hurry soon told on the voice.

There is a relic of Livingstone in the Charterhouse school, London, in the form of an old battered coat given by the great African missionary to one of his native followers.

When President McKinley returned to the White House recently he found that one of the alterations was the fitting out of a hitherto unused room as a handsome smoking room for him.

Mme. Nordica recently had an expensive silk gown ruined by the dirt on the stage of the Auditorium in Chicago and declares that the next time she sings there she will wear a bicycle suit.

Pampeluna, his native town, has established a Sarasate museum, to which the violinist has given all the presents and jewelry he has received from royal personages during his career.

On the last occasion when rumors of his resignation were rife Lord Salisbury is said by London Truth to have observed, "So long as I am in public affairs I do not intend to be the Dowager Lord Salisbury."

FOR EVERY TASTE.

Glasgow has a population of nearly 1,000,000, and has only 404 doctors.

It is expected in Tokio that Japan's budget next year will show a deficit of 25,000,000 silver dollars.

In St. Louis there is enough vacant and unused land to make a strip 125 feet wide and nearly 900 miles long.

The number of young fishes transferred last year from the hatcheries to the waters of Wisconsin was 77,000,000.

Denmark has labor unions comprising 88,000 members. The Swedish unions have a membership of 7,000, the Norwegians of 12,000 laboring men.

The King of Korea has sent thirty young men to Russia to learn the languages of that country. On their return they are to be employed as officials.

Pitcairn Island now contains 120 inhabitants, the descendants of the well-known English sailors and Tahitian women. Only forty of the inhabitants are men.

AMONG THE WORKERS.

A prominent Brooklyn unionist claims that those unions that have labels are more careless about asking for union label goods than those who do not use labels on the goods they manufacture.

The action of the building trades council in pressing the heads of the departments to put into force the eight-hour law relative to the employment of mechanics and laborers on public work, is to be carried into court.

Jacksonville cigarmakers struck because all the men employed before the shut-down were not given work when operations were resumed. They asked that the work be divided in order to provide work for all.

The National Laundrymen's Association, at its convention in Boston, took the stand that it would not recognize the Chinese. This it did by tabling certain resolutions which sought to establish a boycott of Chinese laundries.

"The Free Labor Protection Association" is the title of a new organization of capitalists started in London. This institution is to fight trade unionism and assist in providing non-unionists when strikes or lockouts occur.

A chestnut tree at Torwouth, the residence of the Earl of Duple, near Bristol, is probably the oldest tree in England. It is 1,000 years old at least, and measures 50 feet in circumference.

The average age of the Presidents of the United States has been 56. Grant was the youngest man ever elected to the Presidency, and the first Harrison, who was inaugurated at 68, was the oldest.

A fish exerts its greatest propulsive power with its tail, not with its fins. The paddle wheel was made on the fin theory of propulsion, and the screw propeller had its origin in noting the action of the tail.

is what many a mother is looking for; something absolutely safe and reliable, that will disarm her terror of that dread rattling, strangling cough, so fearful to the mother, so fatal to the child. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is a croup cure that can be relied on. Thousands say so.

Mrs. W. J. Dickson ("Stanford Eveleth") writes from Iron, N. S.:

"That terror of mothers, the startling, croupy cough, never alarmed me so long as I had a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in the house."

"We have used Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in our family for years. Once when our boy had a severe attack of croup, we thought that he would die. But we broke up the attack by using Ayer's Cherry Pectoral."

FEAR IN BATTLE.

The Colonel Says No Man Went Through the War Without Experiencing It.

They were talking about a soldier's feelings in battle and some expressed the opinion that man never went through the civil war without being frightened at any time by his personal danger.

It was the colonel, who had gained honors on the battlefield, who answered him as follows:

"When I started out I felt sure that I would never know what the feeling of fear was, and experience taught me that all soldiers went forth with the same impression. God, how I changed my mind during my first skirmish! We were behind an embankment and I was in command. It just rained lead across our heads. Every time a man raised his head above the breastworks I came whizzing off his shoulders as sure as shooting. I got scared. I could feel myself growing colorless. I couldn't articulate. My arms grew rigid, and to save me I couldn't have put in a load. All of a sudden it came to me that the men under me knew that I was scared. This thought loosened up my tongue and joints a bit. Then it flashed over me that it would never do for me to let my men know that I was afraid, and that I must do something to prove that I was not. What could I do? The man next to me poked his head up at that point and a minute ball took him right between the eyes. A cold sweat broke out on me, and I was ready to collapse, when all of a sudden it came to me that all would be lost; that I should be ruined if I let my men go on thinking that I was a coward. I seized my field glasses and, with a shout, leaped to the top of the breastwork. I raised those glasses to my eyes, and for a second my enemy almost stopped firing they were so astonished. I looked from one end of their lines to the other.

"Come down from there, you d—d little fool!" said a rough voice behind me, and I was jerked back into the ditch by a powerful force. "Do you want to get killed?" It was my colonel's voice and his hand that saved me. What did I see through the field glasses? Not a thing. I was too scared. A blind man could have seen more. But I saved my reputation. Many times after that I was frightened in battle, but never so much so, and I never shivered. From that day until the war closed I never knew what fear was during the whole of those four bloody years."

"What did they think of you that day?"

"It went the rounds in my company that I had an attack of heart trouble," answered the colonel with a laugh, "and I never took the trouble to correct the story. It was true in a way, for I was so frightened that my heart almost stopped beating. It's bosh to talk about any man going through the war without feeling fear. Any brave old soldier will tell you of experiences such as I have told."

DEVIOT DEFINITIONS.

Cipher—Something that a man can always get for nothing.

Jackpot—A vessel sometimes used for the cooking of "greens."

Ignorance—Sometimes it's bliss, and sometimes it's blisters.

Ambition—The feeling that you want to do something that you can't.

Clove—A scent sometimes used to disguise the breath of suspicion.

Cheat—What the other fellow does when you get one word of the bargain.

Compromise—An agreement by which both parties get what they don't want.

Egg—Something that a hen lays simply because she is unable to stand it on end.

Miss—Something that is better than a mile if she is neither too old nor too young.

Rapid Turn of Fortune's Wheel.

Good fortune has come to James Wilson after eleven years of penniless wandering on the face of the earth. Wilson was the son of a wealthy New York banker and broker. In 1873 he married a nurse in the family, in spite of parental objections. He went to Australia and lived there for several years with his wife. In 1884 his father died, cutting him off without a cent. He tried to break his father's will, but was unsuccessful, and since 1886 he has led the life of a tramp. He has recently received news in San Francisco that the United States Supreme Court has decided in his favor a suit that will give him a good portion of a $15,000,000 estate. Wilson is particularly bitter against his relatives, who, when he was sick and hungry, refused him money or food. He is 52 years old.

A Chance for a Match Company.

The Papuans of the Malay coast of New Guinea are still in the most primitive state. They are wholly unacquainted with metals and make their weapons of stone, bone and wood. They do not know how to start a fire, though fire is used among them. When a Russian asked them how they made a fire they regarded it as very amusing, and answered that when a person's fire went out he got some of a neighbor's and if all the fires in the village should go out they would get it from the next village. Their fathers and grandfathers had told them that they remembered a time or had heard from their ancestors that there was a time when fire was not known and everything was eaten raw.

A Straight Tip.

Trainer (at the track)—Bet every cent you can raise on Tippet. He'll win in a walk.

Friend—But the track's muddy. Does he like mud?

Trainer—Does he like mud? Why, that horse positively refuses to eat unless he's standing in it.

HOBBIES FOR ROYALTY.

The Empress Elizabeth of Austria is an accomplished housewife. She also delights in her fame as a pastry cook, and her daughter, the Archduchess Valerie, is proud of her accomplishments in the methods of ancient and modern cuisine.

Queen Victoria, whose especial hobby is music, has educated her daughters to be useful as well as accomplished women, and they may all be said to be efficient and artistic. The queen herself likes to study Hindostanee and to see her favorite dogs and ponies.

The queen of the Belgians is a clever nurse and a good doctor, having not only studied medicine, but having frequently applied her knowledge in emergencies. The queen of Greece is at the head of an association of women whose object is to the moral regeneration of criminals.

The queen of Portugal is more frivolous, having the reputation of being the "most dainty" lady in Europe. Her pale complexion and her auburn hair permit any colors, and she often appears in astonishing colors. The Princess Waldemar of Denmark ranks among the most fashionable of royal ladies.

About the Size of It.

He—The sum of woman's happiness may be put into three words—"I love you."

She—And the sum of man's happiness may also be expressed in three words—"Pay to bearer."

The Bane of Beauty.

Beauty's bane is the fading or falling of the hair. Luxuriant tresses are far more a woman's adornment than the maid whose casement of charms is yet unperfected by time. Beautiful women will be glad to be reminded that falling or fading hair is unknown to those who use
