Chinese Food Riots.

Yokohama papers, steamship Empress of India, announce that food riots have taken place in the Yangtze-Kiang valley. China is in a state of uprising against foreigners and the Government is expected. Towns in Chekiang province contributed last month to the relief fund for starving peasants, who are to be paid in cash and rice for working on public improvements. High officials used the money in riotous living, causing farmers to descend to the air. A police sergeant was called in and while he investigated the strange phenomena a panic-stricken mob hurried him, not daring to speak above a whisper, some of the more courageous tearing nearly all the clothing off. Finally, he discovered that an illegal oil tank near the creek had sprung a leak and some practical joker had ignited the film of oil.
