THEY MUST NOT BE ASSESSED.

Office Holders May Work and Talk and Vote for Their Party.

WASHINGTON, November 2.—Mayor Thos. N. Hart, of Boston, recently addressed a communication to the Civil Service Commission asking what particular members of the civil service may properly take in practical politics. In reply, the commission calls Mr. Hart's attention to the regulation of the President of July 14, 1886, (President Cleveland's letter to the heads of departments in the service of the general government), and to the subsequent instructions of the Postmaster General to postmasters and their employees. The reply continues: "Beyond the prohibition as to political assessments the civil-service act and rules confer no authority or duty upon the commission to interfere in the conduct of office-holders. The commission has no part in removals except where removal is made for the reasons forbidden by the act and rules. The system does not impair the legitimate and voluntary activity of parties or abridge the rights of officials to vote and freely express their opinion."

As to where the precise line dividing the proper and improper participation of office-holders and public servants in party politics is to be drawn must evidently be left to the discretion of the President and appointing officers.

No More Bonded Appointments.

WASHINGTON, November 2.—It was announced at the treasury to-day that there will be no more appointments of bonded officers until Congress assembles. The period still intervening between this and the session is so very short that the Secretary of the Treasury believes it would not be worth while to make appointments and have the appointees give bond, when, as a matter of fact, their appointments may not be confirmed by the Senate. It is recognized that, as usual with all administrations, there are some appointments in the departments which may not be confirmed by the Senate, and to those offices the President will probably nominate new men.

The Water Works Contract.

To-day John A. Cole, of Chicago, civil and constructing engineer for the Water Work Company, was in the city and had under consideration the various bids at present in for the construction of the new plant. Mr. Williamson, superintendent of the company, said that the contract would be let next week.

HYDROCARBON BURNER.

A Cook Stove Expense Reduced to Three Cents Per Day.

David Watson has purchased the Deed's hydrocarbon burner and has made some improvements, and now has a perfectly operating burner in every detail. Mr. Watson has established headquarters at 723 Main street where the burner can be seen during the day or Saturday evening. The patent greatly reduces the cost of keeping up a stove. A cook stove can be operated for an entire day from 6 in the morning until night by the use of three gallons of crude oil. The cost of the oil is less than 1 cent per gallon which makes the entire expense not more than 3 cents per day. This certainly discounts the use of coal. Aside from the cheapness of the burner there is no dirt. There are no ashes to be removed and the burner is always ready to be lighted.

The burner occupies the fire-place and can be fitted to any stove. It consists of an oil pan which sits at the bottom of the burner. The crude oil is conducted into the pan by means of a small pipe fitted with a needle valve at the side of the stove to regulate the flow of oil.

The water is conducted into it similarly to the oil. To light the stove it is only necessary to turn on the oil and throw a match into the pan. The flame from the oil below heats the water and produces steam, which is conducted through a coil to the blower which is placed above the oil pan. The steam creates a strong draft and at the same time combines with the oil and produces an intense heat. The heat can be regulated by the amount of water and oil turned into the blower.

A uniform heat is secured a short time after the fire is lighted. The intensity of the heat can be regulated by the needle valve. Mr. Watson informed a News reporter that within three minutes after the oil is ignited steam is produced. Another beauty of the burner is that it requires no attention. When it is once in operation it burns with a steady heat which does not vary to any perceptible degree for hours.

There is no possibility of an explosion. In support of this, Mr. Watson dropped a lighted match into the oil tank on the wall in the rear of the store. The gas from the oil ignited and burned but there was no explosion. The burner can not explode and can be operated with perfect safety. In the event the oil reservoir should take fire, the gas would burn off of its own accord or it would only be necessary to close the reservoir and the flame is extinguished instantly by reason of the absence of air.

Mr. Watson certainly has the best burner of the kind in existence. All difficulties have been overcome and it stands without a rival. It has no objectionable features and its good points strongly recommend themselves to everyone. It is just the thing for use in the cook stoves and already Mr. Watson has taken numerous orders for the burner. Besides use in cook stoves it can be used in furnaces very successfully. A number of burners are now in operation and they have proven satisfactory. They can be used under small boilers to advantage. The cost of running them is slight in comparison to that of coal.

The public is invited to call and see the wonderful burner in operation. It is simple in construction and in consequence can be furnished at a reasonable cost. The saving to a purchaser is so great that in a very short time it would more than pay for itself. The cost of the burner is only $10. Aside from the saving in the cost of fuel the perfect cleanliness is an item of no small amount of consideration, as well as the lack of attention that is required.

Mr. Watson has had many applications from outside cities for the burner. It will pay those who have coal or wood stoves to call and see it and be convinced of its cheapness, cleanliness, safety and durability. 723 Main street, opposite the Terre Haute House.

Nuptials.

H. E. Owen, formerly bill clerk at the E. & T. H. freight office, now a broker at Butte, Montana, will on Wednesday, November 6th, be married to Miss Alice E. Thomas, at Seattle, Washington Territory.

In England alone we spend at least $60,000,000 a year on tobacco. What with pipes, matches, cigar holders, cigarette tubes, cigarette machines, we do not spend less than $100,000,000 a year.—The Pulpit Treasury.
