"The fighting continues under satisfactory conditions. Our entire battle front has been maintained in spite of violent attacks of the enemy at several points.

"On our left wing, in the region included between Labassee, Armentiers and Cassel, the fighting between the opposing forces of cavalry has been confused because of the nature of Ter- raine.

FIGHTING IN FRANCE BECOMES REAL SIEGE

Wounded Soldiers Say Movements of Germans are in Contrast to Those in Belgium.

PARIS, Oct. 10.—6:59 a. m.—In contrast to the rapidity with which the Germans have conducted their campaign against Antwerp, the tide of bat- tle is flowing slowly in certain parts of France. The engagements in the Woerre district, according to the statements of wounded soldiers who have been brought back from this territory, continue to take the form of a slow and steady siege.

The German trenches in the Woerre have been constructed in two lines, one behind the other. The outermost is furnished with quick firing guns with outposts constantly on guard. In the meantime the larger detachments shelter themselves in the second line. These trenches are large and comparatively comfortable and at intervals they broaden out in subterranean rest rooms in which the troops may sleep in comparative security. The first line may be reached from the second through underground passages.

The daily routine of the German forces in these trenches is carefully observed. The fire of their heavy artillery is determined through the study of maps and aerial reconnaissances and is directed mostly to the ravines and woods where the enemy is supposed to be.

The allies have just installed a system of drainage in their trenches, which, up to the present time, has been very successful. Drainage is a most necessary precaution, as many of the troops are suffering from inflammatory rheumatism.
