FALLING HAIR.

Can Easily Be Stopped, Also Dandruff And Itching Scalp.

If Parisian Sage doesn't stop falling hair, itching scalp, and eradicate dandruff in two weeks, B. F. Fendig stands ready to refund your money without argument or red tape of any kind.

Parisian Sage will put a fascinating radiance into any woman's hair in a few days. It quickly cools the scalp and drives away all obnoxious odors.

Susanne Calahan, of Hotel Royal, Bucyrus, Ohio, on March 25, 1910, wrote: "Last August my mother's hair began to come out very badly and her scalp was so sore it was very hard to do anything for it. We decided to use Parisian Sage and it proved a grand success in every way. Her hair stopped coming out, dandruff all disappeared, soreness all left the scalp and her hair is coming in again very nicely. We only used three bottles.

We recommend it to every one needing it and feel that we cannot praise Parisian Sage too highly."

Parisian Sage is sold by druggists everywhere and by B. F. Fendig for 50 cents a large bottle. Mail orders filled, charges prepaid, by Giroux Mfg. Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

A Famous Orator Says

"The best all-around family medicine ever sold over a druggist's counter is Electric Bitters." It is the grandest tonic for weak, nervous and run-down people that is known to man. If you want new life, strength and energy, take only Electric Bitters. 50c. Guaranteed by A. F. Long.

Mrs. Ella Flagg Young, of Chicago, president of the National Education association, in an interview declares that children should be taught to swim. She adds that a compulsory course will soon be introduced in the public schools of Chicago, of which she is superintendent.

Work 24 Hours a Day.

The busiest little things ever made are Dr. King's New Life Pills. Every pill is a sugar-coated globe of health, that changes weakness into strength, languor into energy, brain-fog into mental power; curing constipation, headache, chills, dyspepsia, malaria. 25c at A. F. Long's.

Sally's Birthday Gift.

By Abbie Tibbetts.

"You have never given me a nice birthday present yet, grandma," declared Sally fractiously. "You've always given me boxes of thread or packages of needles or something of that kind. But you always give Lucy a nice present."

"My money is my own," returned Grandma Brooks, rebukingly. "And my dear granddaughter Lucy is always respectful toward me."

"I think I'm the one who takes care of you, grandma—I take care of your house, anyhow. I should think you might give me a set of furs, or something," she added disconsolately.

"I'm afraid, Sally, you have inherited all the imperfections of your mother. She was an unending trial to me from the day she was born till she ran away to be married."

"I don't wonder my mother ran away from you," flashed Sally. "I should run away myself only—only—"

And then further speech was checked by a sob. "Only Wesley Burbank is a very prudent young man," Grandma commented with a chuckle. "He prefers to wait; he thinks I'll probably leave you a lot of money sometime. But if I should you would spend it on furs and things, or lose it as your mother used to do before you. She actually lost $1,000 in bills once which I was sending by her to the bank."

"And just because my mother happened to lose that, I suppose I can never have any furs," wailed Sally, recurring to the original theme of the controversy.

"You might get something from the old cedar chest in the garret; there is a muff and boa which your mother used to wear."

"And which moths have probably devoured ages ago," declared the unappeased Sally.

"You can find out by looking," her grandmother returned indifferently. Sally did not feel very hopeful as she presently ascended the stairs to the murky little garret. And she felt still less hopeful when she lifted the lid of the cedar chest. And there, near the bottom, wrapped in musty paper, were the muff and boa—not so ravaged by moths as might be presumed.

"I can trim off the eaten edges and make quite a passable article of this," Sally mused as she twirled the big muff in an interested inspection. "But what in the world is in the lining?" she asked herself, cautiously fingering something which was neither fur nor wadding, and shrinking with a little nervous dread of an ambushed mouse.

But that she warily drew forth at length was not a mouse. What she gazed upon with incredulous eyes was a roll of bills which, of course, must be the $1,000 which her mother had lost so long ago.

How long Sally stood dazed in that dim old garret she never knew. It was her hour of temptation. By the right of her long unpaid and thankless drudgery, the money was hers. With it she and Wesley could begin life so delightfully—but all the same the money belonged to her grandmother.

"I should like to know what all this is," Grandma Brooks queried with severity a little later as Sally was preparing the dinner. "You haven't the mince pie warming yet, and you're actually putting mustard over the cranberry jelly. I should suppose you'd be more heedful when I have invited Wesley here to dinner."

Just then the door bell rang, and the grandmother went to the door. A moment later Wesley Burbank followed her into the room.

"I hope Sally won't spoil our dinner," she said, crossly, for Sally had dropped the luckless mustard bottle, and stood with an averted face, unmistakably crying.

"She's sulking about some furs," Grandma Brooks sniffed in her most aggravating fashion.

Sally turned impulsively, with flaming cheeks. "I could have more than a set of furs," she said, saucily. "If I had a mind to be as unjust and wicked as you are, but I shall not keep from you what is your own. There is the money my mother lost years ago. It was in the mothy old muff you allowed me as a birthday present to-day."

For a moment there was an impressive silence. And then Grandma Brooks turned slowly toward the pair. "I don't intend to have our dinner marred by heroics nor any other nonsense," she avowed, with her severest frown. "But perhaps there will be no harm done, Wesley Burbank, if you will look at the dates of the bills Sally found in the muff. Then you will admit what was lost years ago has not been so easily found. I mean my granddaughters to share alike all I have. If I have been strict with Sally, you have no reason to complain, for I have trained a clever housewife for you, and her honesty has been tested and proved, as you will know. The $1,000 is my birthday present to her. Old folks can outwit the young ones every time."

And the young people admitted with remorse that Grandma Brooks spoke the truth.

A HELPING HAND.

Is Gladly Extended by a Rensselaer Citizen.

There are many enthusiastic citizens in Rensselaer prepared to tell their experience for the public good. Testimony from such a source is the best of evidence, and will prove a "helping hand" to scores of readers. Read the following statement:

Charles Malchow, Harvey street, Rensselaer, Ind., says: "Kidney complaint and backache kept me in misery for years. The attacks came on so frequently that it seemed as if I were never free from pain. The small of my back was the part most affected, but often the pain extended through my shoulders and even into my neck. The kidney secretions annoyed me by their irregularity in passage and proved that my kidneys were at fault. Years ago I learned about Doan's Kidney Pills and on getting a supply at Fendig's Drug Store, I began their use. After taking a few doses, I knew that I had at last found the remedy I needed. My kidneys were strengthened and the pains in my back were disposed of. I have taken Doan's Kidney Pills since then when having similar attacks and I have never failed to get prompt and lasting relief. This remedy lives up to all the claims made for it."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

At the Church of God.

NEWS IN PARAGRAPHS.

The elaborate funeral given King Edward cost England $202,500, as is shown in the supplementary financial estimate issued yesterday.

Dr. W. L. Hines, secretary of the Kosciusko county board of health, has presented to the Warsaw city council an ordinance requiring that all cows from which milk is sold to the public be regularly inspected.

Arrangements for the Boy's City at Winona Lake have been completed and all is in readiness for the opening July 25. Reports received from the various state camps that are expected to attend are enthusiastic and indications point to a warm political contest between the candidates for mayor.

William Waking and Richard Sars, well known men of Richmond, have built a biplane, according to a design of their own and will attempt a flight this week. Each plane of the craft is about twenty feet long and ten feet wide. The operator will sit in the center of the lower plane. Spruce lumber from Vermont has been used in the construction.

The trustees of Grover Cleveland Memorial fund, appointed to select a suitable type of memorial to the late ex-president and a site therefor, reported yesterday that it had been agreed to erect a tower in connection with the new granite building of the grounds of the Princeton university. Of $100,000 needed $75,000 has been raised and the balance assured.

The world may yet hear of Roy Crawford, a bright little boy who ran away from the Odd Fellows' Orphans' Home at Greensburg because he wanted to earn a living for himself and refused to eat the bread of charity. He has been given employment with the consent of the Howard Circuit court by Dr. R. F. Vernon, of Kokomo, who will see that the lad is given all the advantages of schooling while in his care.

The fans of Huntington have come to the support of the team playing in the Northern Indiana league, electing a board of directors. The fans took over the management of the team and started in to clear away a $300 debt. Baseball days at the picture shows and a tag day for athletic purposes are to be features of the campaign to put Huntington on her feet in baseball circles.

A WEAK WOMAN AND HER STORY

In Floral, Ark., Lives a Lady Who Feels That Her Strength Was Restored by Cardui.

Floral, Ark.—"I must speak a good word for Cardui," writes Mrs. Viola Baker, of this place.

"About a month ago I was in very bad health. I was so weak and nervous that I was not able to do my housework. My husband bought me one bottle of Cardui, the woman's tonic. I took it according to directions and now I am in good health."

"I think Cardui is a fine tonic for weak women."

And you are not the only lady who thinks so, Mrs. Baker.

Thousands, like you, have written to tell of the wonderful benefit Cardui has been to them.

Cardui contains no minerals, or other powerful drugs. It contains no glycerin or other malikish-tasting ingredients.

It is just a pure, natural extract, of natural vegetable herbs, that have been found to regulate the womanly functions and strengthen the female system.

All druggists sell Cardui.

See yours about it.
