LET INDIANA LEAD, NOT FOLLOW.

It is very discouraging to the suffragists of Indiana, as well as the men of the state who are interested in politics, to feel that Indiana may be a laggard in ratification of the federal amendment, when by virtue of every token it should be a leader. It is true, of course, that many other states have not as yet ratified the amendment, but if each one sits back, ready to ratify as soon as thirty-five other states have done so—the result is obvious, and women will not be enfranchised before the next election.

One thing the women of Indiana have to be thankful for is the ardent support given them by their representatives in congress and the senate, and no better friend have the women ever had than the Hon. Everett Sanders, of the fifth district. On learning of the postponement of a special session by Governor Goodrich, Mr. Sanders wrote him as follows:

"Some time ago there was an announcement that a special session of the Indiana legislature would be called for the purpose of ratifying the national suffrage amendment. I have understood recently that there has been some likelihood of a change in this plan.

"You will recall the splendid record which the republicans of Indiana have in the house of representatives on the suffrage question. Every member cast a vote in favor of the constitutional amendment, both in the 65th congress and again in the 66th congress.

"The chairman of the suffrage committee in the house, Hon. James R. Mann, succeeded at the very beginning of the session in bringing the suffrage amendment before the house and it was passed, receiving an overwhelming majority of the votes of the republican members of the house. The people of Indiana are in favor of this amendment and they ought to be given the opportunity at the earliest possible date of expressing their views through their representatives to the general assembly. I sincerely hope that no change will be made in the plan to call a special session and that we shall soon have the pleasure of announcing to our colleagues here that Indiana is added to the column of those states which have ratified this amendment, giving enfranchisement to the millions of women citizens of our country.

With assurance of my highest regards, I am,

And Representative Fairfield, of the thirteenth district, not only shares the personal appearance of our much beloved Lincoln, but also shares the views of Lincoln when he said: "I shall go for all sharing the privileges of the government, by no means excluding women," and has written the Indiana Franchise league expressing his deep interest in the suffrage cause and his hopes of the earliest possible ratification in Indiana by a special session of the legislature.

BEWARE OF STRANGERS BUYING JUNK.

It has come to my notice that strangers come into this community to buy junk and represent that they are purchasing the same for me. I have but one man, Omar Wilcox, authorized to purchase junk for me. All others representing themselves as agents for me have no authority whatever from me, and I will not be responsible for anything they do.

If you will call me when you have junk for sale I will buy it of you and give you the top of the market. Strangers often steal and seldom pay market prices.

WANTS COL. HEALEY TO MAKE RACE FOR INDIANA GOVERNOR.

Medaryville, Ind.
Aug. 19, 1919.

Louis H. Hamilton, Rensselaer, Ind.
My Dear Louis: Read Jim Watson's eight points on the high cost of living, which should make him president. We are for Watson for president and your Col. Healey for governor. Col. Healey is the most popular man in the state today among our soldier boys, who will be a power in the next election. The field is open and by all means get him out. We would like to show you what we can do over here.

Sincerely yours,
JAMES R. GUILD.

Farmers to Discuss Federation.

At the request of the Indiana Federation of Farmers, Secretary P. H. Hunter has called a meeting of the board of directors of the Jasper County Betterment association which will be held Monday evening, August 25th to confer with officials of the state association relative to the $200,000 guarantee fund which the farmers of the state are raising.

The state federation will be represented by P. R. Burton, who has charge of this district.

Will Stay By Rosen Rye.
Despite the practical failure of the rye crop this year in many localities, the majority of the growers of Rosen rye retain confidence in this variety and expect to sow it again this fall.

Up until filling time, the new variety had every indication of outyielding the common rye two to one. Hot, dry weather and scab infestation made such inroads, however, that in some localities the yields secured fell below that of the common variety, poor as it was.

Eight representative threshermen have been keeping records of the yields of all Rosen and common rye that they have threshed this season. These reports are not all in and complete statistics are not available, but the reports received indicate that the Rosen rye has averaged about three bushels per acre more than the common.

While this is a small margin, most of the farmers realize the adverse rye conditions and among them the new variety has made many friends.

Party to Attend District Meeting.

A party of farmers, members of the Jasper County Betterment association, will auto to Lafayette on next Thursday, August 28th, to attend a district meeting of the Indiana Federation of Farmers, according to plans being made by Joseph Kosta, of Union township, who will be in charge of the party. The autos will leave the court house square at 7:30 o'clock in the morning and Mr. Kosta invites all who are interested in the state organization to be on hand and make the trip.

Potash Plots Doing Well.

That this is a year when potash fertilizers for corn are going to pay big dividends on the high priced goods is indicated by the appearance of the corn on several experimental plots which various farmers are carrying on on their farms.

Stephen Kohley, of Marion township, is experimenting with potash from various sources compared with varying amounts of phosphate fertilizers. He reports that from present appearances kainite is giving the best results.

John Rush, of Newton township, has a plot on which he is comparing wood ashes brought from southern Indiana with various other forms of potash. Mr. Wood finds the wood ashes to be a cheap and satisfactory source of potash for corn.

Livestock Men Will Meet.

A meeting of representative producers of the various breeds of livestock found in the county will be held at the court house Friday evening, August 29th, for the purpose of making arrangements for the annual livestock show to be held some time this fall. Breeders who have been working on the matter report an unusual interest in the event, especially among the hog breeders.

LINCOLN HIGHWAY IMPROVEMENT TO BE LET.

Contracts for the permanent improvement of the Lincoln highway through Porter county, Indiana, are to be awarded by the state highway commission February 15th, next and the construction is to be completed in 1920, according to a report made to the Valparaiso, Ind., chamber of commerce by State Highway Commissioner Wright. The work on the Lincoln highway in Porter county will be either concrete or brick, as will also be the sections of the highway to be constructed to connect up existing permanent work in Lake and Laporte counties.

STATE VETERINARIAN URGES CATTLE BE VACCINATED.

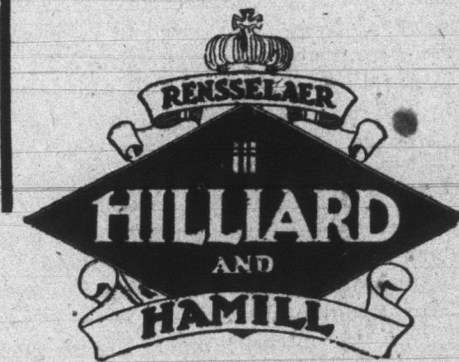

Indianapolis, Aug. 19.—Vaccination of cattle, particularly calves bought by Indiana farmers for feeding, to prevent fever is strongly urged by Dr. L. E. Northrup, state veterinarian, in a statement made today. Dr. Northrup pointed out that during this season when farmers are buying cattle in large numbers, practically all stock shipped from any distance is exposed to shipping fever during transit and in stock yards. The disease, he said, frequently results fatally when no precautions are taken, while on the other hand vaccination against shipping fever has proven one hundred per cent effective.

FARM ADVANCES $15
PER ACRE IN MONTH.

Eugene Lang has sold the eighty acres of land he bought of E. W. Matheny a month ago to Bert Amsler. Mr. Lang paid $235 per acre for this farm and received $250 for the same from Mr. Amsler. This is an advance of $15 or a profit to Mr. Lang of $1,200. The two deals were made by Harry Swartzell.

IS NOW IMPROVING.

Mrs. George Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. D. McColly, of this city, is now improving from an operation for appendicitis. Mrs. Smith underwent the operation at Hahnemann hospital some considerable time ago and had not been getting along very well until the last few days.

DAYLIGHT LAW IS DIMMING

LOWER HOUSE OF CONGRESS
OVERRIDES PRESIDENT
WILSON'S VETO.

Washington, Aug. 19.—Taking advantage of the absence of a large number of city representatives, the farmer members of the house today succeeded in overriding President Wilson's veto of the daylight saving repeal bill by a vote of 223 to 101, with one member voting present.

Leaders of the forces favoring the repeal had made a thorough canvass of the members present before they decided to permit the question to come to a vote. Efforts of Representatives Blanton, democrat, of Texas, and King, republican, of Illinois, to defer the vote, and a motion by Representative Wingo, democrat, of Arkansas, all opponents of the law, were quickly voted down, because it was known in advance what the result would be.

Contrary to all expectations, more city members than representatives from rural districts were out of town. The vote to save the daylight saving plan was thirty-four short of the total which prevented the first attempt to override the president's veto in July.

Only eleven votes were needed to save the plan today. Had this additional number of city members been present, the advocates of the repeal would not have had the two-thirds vote necessary, under the constitution, to override the veto.

A glance at the list of 106 absentees showed that included in this number were far more than eleven members who were known to have favored retention of the law.

Members opposed to continuing the law declared the action of the house makes certain the deathknell of daylight saving. They pointed out that on every vote taken on the subject in the senate more than a 3 to 1 majority for the repeal has been recorded.

Senator Cummins, republican, of Iowa, chairman of the interstate commerce committee, plans to call up the vote in the senate at an early date.

Under the terms of the bill daylight saving will come to an end on the last Sunday in October, when the clocks will be turned back an hour.
