A STORY OUT OF THE GREAT WAR

The following very interesting letter was written to Ed Cavendish in reference to the death of his brother-in-law.

St. Louis, Mo.,
Wed., Dec. 17, 1919.
Dear Friend—

Just a few lines in regards to your brother-in-law, Jacob Joy. On or about the 2nd day of August, 1918, we landed at Brest, France, there we stayed one day and then we rode three days and nights in box cars till we came into a town named Savoyce. Here I got acquainted with Jacob Joy. We were made automatic rifle men from there (Savoyce) we hiked for over a month till we reached reserved trenches. We stayed ten days in reserve trenches, then we went to support trenches. Just as soon as we got there shells were flying thick all around us. We got busy and dug a hole. We dug all day that day. The next day we carried ties and steel bars and laid them over the top of our hole. By that time it was dark again and we crawled in our hole and tried to sleep.

Many a narrow escape we had together. One night I and Jake heard a German aeroplane above us. While we were standing in our trench looking up, an aerial bomb came flying down about six feet from us (the bomb was about 7 feet long) the jar of its explosion knocked me down and Joy on top of me. We got up on our knees staring each other in the face. In the light of the moon we could just about see each other. I said to Jake that sure was a close one and we were both frightened but we had to laugh. When we raised upon our feet another one busted on the other side of us. It tore a hole in the ground large enough to turn a wagon in. It was then four thirty in the morning for our first stand to the captain came around said: "Boys, take your rifles, face the enemy and stand to."

In about ten minutes the Germans sent us over an awful heavy barrage. We were quite scared, but we still held our nerves. Just about that time our ten days in support were up. We went into the front line trenches where it was fine the first night. From then on it was continuous fighting and shells flying all of the time where we had but a little hole about two feet deep, just room enough for one man to sleep in. He laid two hours while I watched two hours, then we would change about.

One morning the captain came around and asked for volunteers to go into no man's land to see what we could see. Joy and I volunteered to go. We got fourteen volunteers and went crawling in the weeds to the Germans. We crawled a valley and started up the hill, which the Germans were on. When the Germans saw us they opened up on us. We all got behind trees and shot at everything we saw, but didn't have enough men with us. All were killed but five of us. We had to come back. Joy and I never had a scratch on us. When we got back we reported to the captain that they were too strong for us. We went to our trenches. About one o'clock in the afternoon the Germans opened up an awful barrage. The shells were bursting 10 and 12 feet apart. A lot of our men were lying on the ground killed from the shrapnel and it was impossible to stay there. At three o'clock in the same afternoon we got orders to go over the top. We started with a heavy barrage on the Huns at four o'clock. We had 500 men on our side. By five o'clock we captured the hill and never lost a man. We got 27 machine guns, 50 prisoners and about a hundred dead birds.

Well everything was quiet. The captain came around and got five men, which was Jake Joy, myself, Evans, Ford and Dovernort. They put us five on outpost and told us not one of us to close our eyes all night. This was on the first night of October. We were all squeezed into a little hole without any shelter and it was raining all night long. Me and Joy were just like two brothers, (we were awful hungry) and we had one can of corned beef and a couple of hard tacks. Joy ate one-half and I the other. It was then about one o'clock in the morning. About four-thirty in the morning we heard a little noise in the weeds in front of us. The Germans had sneaked through a communicating trench under the ground and opened rifle machine gun bullets all over the top of us.

We fought them for about ten minutes and Jacob Joy was struck in the forehead with three bullets. He folded his arms and leaned himself on the bank of the ground and Ford was behind Joy and I. One was shot in the eye and the other in the mouth, but were not killed.

Evans on my left side, says to me, "lets run back to our own men," and I told him not to run, but he was excited and raised up. As he did they struck him in the head and he fell against my left leg and was killed instantly. They shot the shoulder strap off of my coat, also a slight wound in the left shoulder, but was not hurt. I fired a few more shots at the Huns and they threw grenades on us and picked us three up and captured us. They took us to the Metz hospital and stayed until the armistice was signed and with the help of a Belgium overcoat I got back to my company and finally was sent back to old U. S. I sure was glad to get back but to my sorrow my mother and wife had died at the time of Jake's and my last stand.

Well I am married again and am trying to forget the past. Well, my friend, you may tell his mother how he died, but make it as easy to her as you can. Well, I will

THE NEIGHBORHOOD CORNER

A DEPARTMENT OF FARM WELFARE CONDUCTED BY COUNTY AGENT LEAMING.

Farm Labor Situation Improving.
More labor for the farms have been received into this county in the past week than in any previous week this season and it begins to look as if the more urgent demands for help may be cared for in good shape if farmers give the matter attention at this time.

A common difficulty in providing help is that many farmers have no work for their extra men at this time of the year when the work in the cities is slack and good men pass up the community in search of places for the summer. Re-adjustment of the farm operations to provide profitable employment for men at this season would enable many farmers to secure help that will otherwise have to do without.

Applications for farm help will be received at this office up to March 1st and filled as rapidly as possible.

Poultrymen will Meet Feb. 26th.
Members of the county Poultry Association will meet at the court house on Thursday evening, February 26th at 7:30 o'clock for an important business session involving the purchase of new equipment for future shows. Arrangement is being made for some of the members to take over the old equipment and replace it with modern and up-to-date exhibition material. The president has issued a call for all members of the Association to be present at the meeting.

Extensive use of Phosphates Indicated.
As a result of an item appearing in this column last week relating to basic slag as a source of fertilizer, it is probable that a group of farmers will club their orders and secure a carload of this material direct from the mines.

A very general tendency is noted this season for the farmers to recognize the economy of using high grade fertilizing materials. A few years ago it was a matter of common observation that many farmers looked only at the cost per ton in purchasing their season's supply, paying little or no attention to the chemical analysis of the goods or the availability of the various elements contained therein.

The farmer who buys his fertilizer on the basis of the net cost per unit of the available plant food is the one who is going to buy the cheapest.

A Good Year For Self Feeders.
Lumber yards report that they are selling more lumber this season to farmers to go into self feeders for hogs and cattle than ever before. The fact that hogs can balance their own rations better than the farmer who feeds them and that the self feeders are great labor savers, tends to bring them into favor of the public. No cheap method of feeding hogs has yet been devised than that of feeding corn and tankage to hogs in the self feeder and at the same time giving free access to plenty of clover or alfalfa pasture and water.

The hog feeder who still depends on the old armstrong methods of hog feeding is soon going to be hopelessly outclassed as far as economy of production is concerned.

General Wood says that capital and labor should "pull together," and the leg of the Public denotes that they are doing so.—Columbus Record.—Columbus Dispatch.

Now will you believe that the groundhog saw his shadow and that he knows enough to remain in his hole for six weeks?

PRESIDENT'S PHYSICIAN ON PATIENT'S CONDITION

Baltimore, Feb. 11.—The Baltimore Sun publishes a copyrighted dispatch from Washington in which is given an interview with Dr. Hugh H. Young, of Johns Hopkins Hospital, at Baltimore, on the condition of President Wilson. Dr. Young has been one of the physicians in attendance on the President. Dr. Young in part said:

"From the very beginning the medical men associated with the case have never had anything to conceal. When I first saw the President in October, a crisis had arisen of such gravity, owing to the development of prostatic obstruction, that an emergency operation to relieve this situation was contemplated, but by a fortuitous and wholly unexpected change in the President's condition the obstruction began to disappear.

"The improvement in this respect, which has been steady, is now complete. The President is organically sound when I saw him first and I found him not only organically sound when I visited him last week but, further, all the organs functioning in a perfectly normal, healthy manner.

"The President's general condition and specifically the impairment of his left arm and leg have improved more slowly, it is true, but surely steadily. There have been no setbacks, no backward steps, and rumors to this effect are rubbish.

"As you know, in October last, we diagnosed the President's illness as cerebral thrombosis, which affected his left arm and leg, but at no time was his brain power or the extreme vigor and lucidity of his mental processes in the slightest degree affected. This condition has from the very first shown a steady, unwavering tendency toward resolution and complete absorption. The increasing utility of the left arm and leg greatly impaired at first, have closely followed on this improvement. The President walks steadily now, without assistance and without fatigue. And he uses the still slightly impaired arm more and more every day.

"As to his mental vigor, it is simply prodigious. Indeed, I think in many ways the President is in better shape than before the illness came.

"You can say that the President is able-minded and able-bodied, and that he is giving splendid attention to affairs of state and that we have every assurance that he will become progressively more active in these matters with the advent of spring and sunshine, which can not now be long delayed."
