THE UNIVERSAL CAR

The Ford Sedan, with electric self-starting and lighting system and demountable rims with 3 1/2-inch tires front and rear, is a family car of class and comfort, both in summer and in winter. For touring it is a most comfortable car. The large plate glass windows make it an open car when desired, while in case of rain and all inclement weather, it can be made a most delightful closed car in a few minutes. Rain-proof, dust-proof, fine upholstery, broad, roomy seats. Simple in operation. Anybody can safely drive it. While it has all the distinctive and economical merits of the Ford car in operation and maintenance. Won't you come in and look it over?

SENATOR HARDING

NEXT PRESIDENT

He got his first taste of newspaper life and his longing for the editorial game at college, where he was editor of the college paper.

Like many another young man, the senator worked his way through college, part of the time as a section hand on the T. & O. C. Railroad and part of the time at various other occupations.

Learned From Ground Up.
When he took charge of the Marion Star he started to learn the business from the ground up and has kept pace with improvements in the mechanical branches of journalism to this day. It is not unworthy of note, in this time of industrial unrest, that in all of the years which Senator Harding has owned a newspaper he has never had a strike or a threatened strike among his employees.

Although he is by preference and profession a newspaper publisher, Senator Harding is identified with a number of other enterprises in Marion and other parts of the state. He is a director in a bank and several large business enterprises and is a trustee of the Trinity Baptist Church.

During the last twenty years Senator Harding has been abroad three times, each time to study other systems of government.

Gained Fame As Orator.

Harding's first political speech was made at a Republican county committee meeting in a little country school house to an audience of about twenty-five persons. So successful was he in holding the ear of his audience that he attracted the notice of older politicians, who immediately utilized his services in making speeches all over the state. It was not long before he was billed for speeches with McKinley, Foraker and others of equal prominence.

In 1898 he was nominated for state senator from the district composed of Hardin, Logan, Marion and Union counties and was elected by an overwhelming majority.

Served As Lieut. Governor.

At the expiration of his second term as state senator he was nominated for lieutenant governor on the ticket with Myron T. Herrick as the gubernatorial candidate. He served with Governor Herrick during his first administration, but declined to be a candidate for re-election, retiring to private life to devote his attention to business interests.

In 1910 he was nominated for governor of his state, but was defeated. In 1914 he became a candidate for the United States senatorship from Ohio and won the election by more than 102,000 votes.

Senator Harding has done important work on the Senate committee on foreign relations, as well as on other committees. He was one of the earlier advocates of preparedness, while others clamored for peace at almost any price, having sponsored the bill for preparedness which had the endorsement of the late Col. Roosevelt.

Made Taft Nomination.
As a public speaker he is calm, yet at all times forceful. It will be remembered that he made the speech nominating William Howard Taft for the presidency at the Republican convention in Chicago.

Harding has been depicted as a "middle of the road" man, a man who is safe, conservative and sane. He is not a radical, nor is he yet a conservative. He sticks to the middle path.

On July 8, 1891, he married Florence Kling, daughter of Amos Kling, now deceased, who, during his life, was one of the leading business men of the city of Marion.

The following are thirty-three degree Harding men who were the supporters of the Ohio Senator from the very first: Judge C. W. Hanley, County Recorder George Scott, County Clerk Jesse Nichols, County Assessor G. L. Thornton and Attorney Moses Leopold. There may have been others, but there is no denying the faithfulness of the above men. Of course, the usual "I Told You So" club made itself heard shortly after the success of Mr. Harding had been announced.

The ball game between Wheatfield and Boone grove at the former place Sunday ended in the eighth inning with the Boone Grove team leading 5 to 4, rain putting a stop to the pastime. Wheatfield had a runner on third base with one out when the deluge came. The score reverted to the last half of the seventh inning. Several from here witnessed the game.

NEW OCCUPATION FOR GOAT

Billy and Nanny May Be Profitably Employed in Clearing Away the Impeding Underbrush.

The monkey cotton picker was never an entire success. The monkey could pick the cotton, but it cost more to provide human direction to guide his efforts than the negro cotton pickers asked for the whole job, picking, directing and all. But the Angora goat as a clearer of land requires no direction. Just string a few strands of barbed wire around the land to be cleared so that Mr. and Mrs. Goat and the kids shall not clear the land that is not to be cleared and they will do the job without even a casual suggestion from the land owner.

The success which has attended the raising of Angora goats in the rugged Ozark country of southwestern Missouri has suggested to specialists of the department of agriculture that it might be equally profitable to place such herds on many other wild tracts, particularly those which have been cut over, because these goats are proving of great help in clearing away underbrush. Growing mohair and producing kids, the Angoras in the Ozarks are also trimming down the brush, manuring the hills and preparing the way for grass, cattle and sheep.

According to reports secured by a representative of the state college of agriculture in Missouri, the Angoras required to clear an acre of land varies from two to five, depending on the density and size of the brush.

SOUL'S ORDEAL AFTER DEATH

Old Volume, Known as "Judgment of the Dead," Is a Fancy of the Ancient Egyptians.

"Book of the Dead" is a very old book, known in ancient Egypt as the "Judgment of the Dead," and it contains the funeral ritual of the Egyptians, describing in mystical language the experiences of the soul after death and the text it must quote to escape the torments and trials of the lower world. In one chapter, the longest in the book, is a picture showing the judgment which the defunct, before entering into the fields of the blessed, will undergo in the lower world, in the presence of Osiris and 42 judges of monstrous form, who are on hand to devour the guilty and drink his blood. Anubis, the god of the dead, and Thoth, the god of wisdom, examine the deceased by weighing his heart in the "sacred" balances of Justice. The famous "negative confession" enumerates 42 capital sins from which the deceased must be free. Should he fail to pass the ordeal, he is either handed over to be devoured by the monster, part hippopotamus, part crocodile, and part lion, which represents the Egyptian Cerebus, or is thrown into the fiery lake.

Queer Wedding Presents.

The following are a few of the many curious wedding presents that have been received by those about to enter the bonds of matrimony.

A well-known author received on his marriage, from a rival man of letters, a scrapbook containing a collection of all the adverse criticisms his works had ever received; while a popular artist was on similar occasion presented with a set of elementary works upon self-instruction in drawing and painting.

Unusually vexatious was the gift received from his neighbors by an infirm octogenarian, who had married a pleasure-loving woman more than fifty years his junior. It took the form of a large brass cage, "intended," so ran the accompanying note—"to restrain the wayward flight of a giddy young wife who had married a decrepit old fool for his money."

Timid Old Soul.

My aunt was a timid old soul and was quite afraid of holdups. For safe keeping she always put her money in her stocking. One day when she was going to do some Christmas shopping she thought she would play a joke on the holdups. She put the money in her pocket and carried her purse. In the purse she put newspaper crumpled up. She kept her hand in the pocket that had the purse and walked along merrily. But to her surprise when she had purchased her needs she reached for the money, but it was missing. Then, forgetting she reached for her pocketbook and pulled out the paper she had to give back all the articles and walk home empty-handed. Chicago Tribune.

As to Brevity.

Of course brevity can be carried too far, may be awkward and inarticulate and incomplete. We may be brief and tedious at the same time. Some one brought Voltaire, the master of brevity, an epitaph in two lines. "Ah!" said Voltaire. "Very good; but it drags in spots." The old comic dramatist said of a dull cat: "The laconic has made brevity ridiculous." We do not want to make brevity ridiculous or let it make us so.

Nevertheless, we should all do well to cultivate and practice brevity, and we may be sure that we should be much more listened to if we spoke less. —Youth's Companion.

Incredulous Lady.

"Why do you sit at a coffee board when you might be enjoying interesting conversation? You can't believe a thing the boys say."

"Well," replied Miss Cayenne, "I might believe the conversation, either."
