

SIX MONTHS I COULD NOT WORK

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Made Me Strong and Able to Work—I Recommend It To All My Friends.

Bayonne, N. J.—"I had pains in back and legs so that I could not stand caused by female trouble. I felt so tired all the time, had bad headaches, and for six months I could not work. I was treated by a physician and took other remedies but got no relief. A friend told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I have helped me very much. I am well and strong and now able to do my work. I cannot thank you enough and I recommend your medicine to my friends who are sick."—Mrs. SUSIE SACATANSKY, 25 East 17th St., Bayonne, N. J.

It must be admitted by every fair-minded, intelligent person, that a medicine could not live and grow in popularity for over forty years, and today hold a record for such wonderful success as does Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, without possessing great virtues and actual worth. Such medicines must be looked upon and termed both standard and dependable by every thinking person.

Suits That Win Favor in Paris

In Paris there is a marked preference for extremely simple toilettes. In fact, writes a prominent fashion correspondent, the tailored costume of almost classic style is now tremendously fashionable with its long, half-fitted jacket and slender skirt, the latter either plain or plaited. A costume of this type is more representative of the real Paris fashions than anything Zouave, African, Czech-Slovak or Egyptian. The Parisienne, therefore, may rightly claim that not all women in France are extravagant nor are all of the Paris dressmakers producing extreme effects.

Fashions are often misrepresented, and through this misrepresentation one might gather that the taste of the present-day woman is for clothes that are showy and extravagant, rather than those that are beautiful and simple. Many people, when viewing the new fashions, are inclined to talk of the things which are extreme and unusual, rather than those that are simple and refined, which latter the best-dressed women buy. The women of Paris, even more than those of America, are misrepresented in this way, so that it would appear that the Parisienne is a slave to every delirious creation that the French couturiere may put out. A mannequin at the races wearing some bizarre costume will be immediately proclaimed to the world as wearing the latest Paris fashion, when perhaps this dress is the only one of its kind seen during the whole season in Paris.

Simplicity Sought After.

What more simple and economical than the tailored suit or blue serge dress, both of which are now and have been for some time pre-eminent in Paris fashions? What more refined than the models which the leading dressmakers create for their own private customers? That this simplicity is greatly admired and much sought, regardless of the publicity attached to the bizarre styles, is proved by the fact that certain houses in Paris who cater entirely to private trade are sought in a roundabout way by purchasers of models.

One house in particular that has a great Paris following and which because of this refuses to sell to manufacturers or dressmakers, preferring to keep their models exclusive, can and do get from their private trade from 2,000 to 3,000 francs each for their simple silk crepe dresses made without one stitch of embroidery, lace or trimming of any character. Even the hems are only hand-rolled, and the dresses, which are little more than slips with pendant cascading panels or handkerchief points, are without lining, gumpie or undersleeve. Some of these models have not even a hook. They slip on over the head and a sash ties around the waist. Yet for this simplicity and grace the discriminating Parisienne will pay 50 per cent more than for a dress with trimming, which lacks the cachet of simplicity, individuality and perfect cut.

Tailored Suits With Fur.

For the autumn there are charming tailored suits in redingote, style trimmed with fur bands. Sometimes these redingotes have plaited fullness let into the skirts. Simple fall dresses also are being shown in both redingote and apron styles and new wraps are in perfectly simple outline.

In dresses many variations of the redingote appear. They may be made entirely of cloth and trimmed with braid or with a slip or underdress of satin and a long redingote of cloth. Many such frocks have high collars which button tightly about the throat and are faced with a contrasting cloth.

Autumn skirts are somewhat longer than those worn during the spring and summer. A skirt with its hem ten inches from the ground is smart, yet not extreme.

coat is trimmed with skunk fur. In this model we see the beauty and grace of the suit with a very long coat. In past seasons women have declined to accept the long-coated suit, saying that it had a tendency to make one look older. This, however, is not true of the really long coat. Nothing could be more girlish than a suit such as this one, giving, as it does, the appearance of a one-piece dress with an underskirt.

Another example of the redingote type is evolved from brick-red broadcloth material, and the trimming is kolinsky fur.

Ideal Dress for Street Wear.

One of the newest and most popular blue serge dresses is very much like the redingote suits in outline. It gives the effect of a skirt and a very long coat, although it is really a one-piece dress. The trimming consists of bands of tailor's braid of the same dark blue hue as the frock. It is an ideal dress for street wear in the autumn.

Braid as a trimming has found considerable favor in this autumn's fashions. Dressmakers are showing great originality in their methods of using this trimming. Not content with braid alone, they have stitched it in silks of contrasting colors and applied it in ways that give the effect of new and elaborate embroideries. Often the braid is embroidered by hand.

The new square-hanging satin mantle is of the very heavy quality which is being used for street wear this fall. The trimming is moleskin, a fur which will vie with squirrel in popularity this winter.

Great stress is laid on satin for wraps of all sorts. The satin of 1920 is a striking example of the wonderful progress that has been made in the silk industry. One never would suspect it of being even a distant relative of the stiff and lustrous satins of bygone days. In past years satin coats were considered suitable for elderly ladies only, while a wrap of today's satin is youthful.

Lining silks are quite as handsome as those from which the garments themselves are made. These are beautiful Chippendale prints and mikado jacquards, both of which have radium backgrounds. The Chippendale is printed in multicolors in Japanese, butterfly, leaf and flower motifs, while the mikado jacquard is brocaded in conventional and floral designs in self-colors.

A strong fancy is manifested at the present time for plaits arranged in groups of ten to twelve, with plain spaces of equal size intervening. There are dresses on which the trimming consists of inserted plaited bands surrounding the skirt in rows. Many of the new printed silks are worked up in this way.

HOME TOWN HELPS

DIRECTIONS FOR GOOD LAWN

Good Judgment and Much Work Necessary, But the Results Will Be Found Worth While.

Success or failure in lawn-making is based on the preparation of the seed bed, which necessarily requires great care and good judgment. The physical condition of the soil may be greatly improved by growing some soil-building crop preparatory to seeding. The land should be turned and sub-soiled to a depth of 6 to 12 inches, and harrowed until it is thoroughly pulverized. Before turning, a liberal application (6 to 10 tons per acre) of well-decomposed stable manure and 300 pounds of lime should be applied. When a perfect seed bed has been made, apply 600 to 800 pounds of 8-4-4 commercial fertilizer and harrow thoroughly into the first few inches of soil.

The lawn grasses should be carefully selected, and only those grasses or mixtures used that are adapted to that locality and are capable of making a good sod under existing conditions. A mixture of Kentucky blue grass, Bermuda, and white clover is especially suitable to the partially shaded lawn, the blue grass predominating in the shaded portions of the lawn and the Bermuda in the sunny spots while the clover keeps the entire lawn green throughout the winter.

The mixture should be planted during early October, using 30 to 35 pounds of blue grass, four to five pounds of clover, and a proportionate amount of Bermuda roots per acre. The seeding of the blue grass and clover should follow the planting of the Bermuda, which should be planted in rows 18 inches apart, dropping the roots 12 to 15 inches apart and covering three to five inches deep with alternating rows. Separate sowings of blue grass and clover should be made, sowing the seed broadcast by hand or by use of a mechanical seeder. The seed should be covered lightly, brushing lightly or raking into the soil, and this followed by a light rolling.

BIRD BATH IS GOOD IDEA

Feathered Creatures Will Appreciate It, and It Is Recommended as a Gloom Dispeller.

Anyone who wants a true gloom dispeller right before his eyes all the time has only to fix up a bird bath of some sort on his lawn. No lawn is too small to afford space for one and no city street so congested that sooner or later some feathered neighbor will not seek out the bird bath and make himself its immediate excuse for being.

It is not necessary to have anything elaborate. A fountain of stone or cement may be very tasteful, but little old robin will take the finest bath in the world in any shallow tin pan. A coat of moss-green paint will turn the home-contrived article into a thing of beauty, blending in with the green of the grass around it.

No old swimming hole ever saw more antics than are carried on by the splashing birds, not any more unrestrained delight in the water, nor any more democratic gatherings, nor heard more chattering. If an occasional fight is pulled off, why that's just human and bird nature.

The possessor of a bird bath for his lawn has a long option on the pure joy of life. He will find himself more than repaid for his trouble, and probably astonished at the number and variety of birds common to his neighborhood that he never saw before.—St. Joseph Gazette.

Twelve Giraffes in America.

There are only 12 giraffes in this country—eight with circuses and four others in the zoos of New York and Philadelphia. Four of the 12 were raised by a Belgian, named Andrew, in the employ of a circus, who used to be a hunter in Africa. He has made pets of them all, and Mary, who is almost 19 feet high, responds instantly to his call, and is delighted to eat sugar from his hand.

City Manager System.

American cities will be interested in the test of the city manager system in Montreal, Canada, with its 475,000 population. On this side Dayton, with 207,000, is the largest city having a city manager, and it has been a stock argument of the opponents of the system that while it may be all right for villages and small towns, it would never do for a great city. Montreal is not afraid of trying the experiment.

A Flat-Footed Failure.

While in London, Mary Pickford told Lady Desborough a new story about Charlie Chaplin. At a fair in California a prize was offered to the person who could best imitate the Chaplin walk. Charlie himself entered the competition, minus the usual mustache and boots. He was a flat-footed failure and the judge gave him twentieth place.—Boston Transcript.
